men's Association are holding a conference here to-day on various subjects of interest to hunters and sportsmen.

They expect to ask the Legislature to pass a bill as promptly as possible specifically appropriating for the use of the State Game Commission the accumulated revenues from the hunter license tax, which has been in operation for the past two seasons. This fund now amounts to approximately $600,000 and is intended for the propagation and protection of game.

It is probable the united organizations will also ask the Legislature to designate a uniform open season for all small game so that when the dere season opens the hunters for all other kinds of game wil be out of the woods, thus lessening the death and injury toll from accidental shooting.

The Outdoor League, which has been active for some time, especially in the western part of the State, also held a separate conference on organization and legislative program.

BALL PLAYER GOES BLIND

Ray Bellis of Muhlenberg Is Stricken on Train in New York State Special to The Telegraph Allentown, Jan. 20.—Ray Bellis, of Williamsport, second baseman on the Muhlenberg baseball team, will be unable to read for probably a month on account of an unusual affliction. He was away last week drumming up students for Muhlenberg, especially men with athletic proclivities, when on the train near Elmira, N. Y., he suddenly began to bleed from nose and eyes, and fainted away in his seat.

A physician connected with New York State department of health, who was on the train, took charge of him, and after working two hours, brought the young athlete back to consciousness. He diagnosed the trouble as due to the rupture of a blood vessel in the head. The affliction is puzzling, since Mr. Bellis is in the pink of health and had not been feeling badly. His eyes are so bloodshot that he has to wear dark glasses, and he has been forbidden to do any studying until his sight is thoroughly restored.

Bellis played football and baseball when attending Mansfield, and for several seasons was one of the best infielders in the Williamsport City League.
