To Renew Complexion Without Cosmetics

If the excessive user of cosmetics only knew the impression her artificial ally really makes upon others, she would quickly seek means of gaining a natural complexion. Let us acquire the mercurized wax habit, discarding make-ups entirely, and she will soon have the kind of complexion that women envy and men admire. It's so easy to get an ounce of mercurized wax, and the results are so remarkable. Gradually the useless cuticle peels off, in almost invisible flaky particles. In a week or so there's a brand new complexion, clear, velvety—soft, of girlish color and texture. The treatment is so simple, harmless and marvellously effective, the wonder is that every woman whose skin is withered, discolored, rough, chapped, freckled or pimpled, has not already adopted it.

A Simple Way to Beautify Your Hair

The hair is like a flower—it must have care and proper nourishment. Just as a plant without air and water withers and dies, so will the hair go if not given proper nutriment. The scalp must be perfectly healthy and free from dandruff, as the scalp is to the hair what good soil is to plants and flowers.

If your hair is not pretty: if it is losing its color, too dry, matted, falling out, or if the scalp itches, you can quickly overcome all of these conditions by using Parisian Sage, which supplies every hair need. It soaks right in to the hair roots, stimulating them and furnishing the nourishment that is needed for the hair to grow not only long and heavy, but fluffy, soft, lustrous and gloriously radiant.

You can get a bottle of this inexpensive yet delightful and helpful hair tonic from H. C. Kennedy, or at any drug or toilet counter. Improvement begins with the very first application—besides stopping the scalp irritation it removes every bit of dandruff. The use of this unequalled hair tonic will surely give your hair new life and

Ellen Terry Will Wear Senator Clapp

Suffrage Lecturer This Evening Will Have Famous Actress in Audience

Ellen Terry, who appears at the Majestic theater to-morrow, presenting her famous scenes from Shakespeare, advised Mr. Burlingame, her local manager, that she expects to arrive in the city to-day in time to hear the lecture this evening at the House of Representatives by United States Senator Moses E. Clapp, who speaks under the auspices of the Pennsylvania State Woman Suffrage Association. Miss Terry will be invited to briefly address the meeting.

Miss Terry is an enthusiastic suffragette, the truly English kind, and in her interpretation of the various roles of Shakespearean heroines, she asserts that she finds in each of them, all the attributes of the modern suffragette.

Miss Terry appears upon the stage in her present work but twice a week, she finds the strain so great in giving the high and most difficult parts of each play and so many plays in one evening. For this reason she generally arrives in the city where she anticipates playing a day ahead in the late afternoon and after dining will go directly to hear the lecture of Senator Clapp.

Tomorrow evening Miss Terry will present to capacity audience at the Majestic theater her most famous roles of Shakespeare, which will include the characters of the suffragettes, Mrs. Eliza Knapp, Cathella, Cordelia, Juliet, Desdemona and others.

The subject of this is an interview, the editor of the Telegraph saying to me the other day the interview is then of "Bell" ways of being a reporter. He said Irvin Cobb, who is to talk about himself here this Thursday, is the biggest interviewer in the U. S., he hasn't got a famous pressman on this subject would make good readin' for Harrisburgers.

Pretty soon a fellow came in and set down one side me and ordered soup; then another come on the other side me and ordered seltzy and began chewin' on it and then I thought it made a awful racket in my ear, which together with the man swillin' his soup on the other side, upset my thoughts and the interview was made up.

So I went into the dary lunch counter down the alley for to interview the prop. Tony Macaronie about what he does with come-backs and how he makes his soup, thinking his thoughts on this subject would make good readin' for Harrisburgers.

SYNODICAL SOCIETY AT THE BAILEY HOME

Presbyterian Committee Makes Apportionment For Home Missions

Members of the Executive committee of the Woman's Synodical Society of Pennsylvania held their midwinter meeting to-day at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. William Elder Bailey, Front and South streets. Mr. Bailey's mother, the late Mrs. Charles L. Bailey, was for years connected with this committee.

Mrs. Edgar Gell, of Doylestown, the president, was in the chair, and the most important business transacted was in making the apportionments for Home Missions for 1915-1916 for twenty Presbyterian societies from the fund granted by the Presbyterian Board of Home Missions in New York City.

The session lasts all day and at 1 o'clock Mrs. Bailey served luncheon. The appointments were of pink, with a centerpiece of fruit and tall candles.

In attendance were Mrs. Gell, Mrs. Joshua W. Sharpe, of Chambersburg, Mrs. Lovery, of Butler; Mrs. Evans, of Pottstown; Mrs. Frances J. Diefenderfer, of Erie; Miss Letitia Murchugh, of Oxford; Mrs. Mabel Furst, of Lock Haven; Mrs. "Pisike" of Philadelphia; Mrs. J. E. Ramsey, of Swarthmore, and Mrs. William T. Scheffer, of Harrisburg.

THEODORE N. VAIL

played in their earliest experiments and had answered:

"I hear you perfectly. Do you hear me well?"

Bel—"Yes, your voice is perfectly distinct. It is as clear as if you were here in New York instead of being more than 3,000 miles away."

"I want to switch in another telephone and talk to you through that."

Bel—"I am now talking through an exact duplicate of the first telephone, which was made in June, 1875. Can you hear me?"

Watson—"I hear it perfectly, though less distinctly than the other, of course."

(Now switching back to the standard transmitter.)

Wonderful Progress of System

"What wonderful progress has been made by the Bell system since then to enable our voices to be transmitted over a circuit of 6,800 miles without the least apparent distortion or weakening."

Dr. Bell's voice leaped across the wires from New York to San Francisco in 1-15 second.

The limit was two miles, from Boston to Cambridge, and one had to have pretty sharp ears and a pretty good voice at that; 1884 saw Boston and New York linked; then the 900 miles to Chicago were bridged in '95. One after the other came Omaha, Denver and Salt Lake City. Yesterday the oceans were linked by a great talk canal over whose copper strands Bell and a hundred officials and business men who attended the celebration sent their voices in electrical waves, at the rate of 2,000 per second, from coast to coast.

The celebration was held in the office of Theodore N. Vail, president of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company, at the New York end, in an office of the Pacific Telephone and Telegraph Company, at San Francisco. Between these two points 120,000 special poles have been erected, and almost countless inventions and tricks of the telephone scientists' skill have been used to make the transmission perfect.

From New York the new line sweeps down first to the outskirts of Philadelphia, leaps across the Susquehanna, zigzags up and down the Alleghenies, and winds into the muck of Pittsburgh, goes straight on through Ohio and Indiana to the windy city of Chicago, then traverses the plains, crossing Missouri at Omaha, and then it runs along the very brink of the Grand Canyon and up over the snow-capped peaks of Pueblo and the lofty city of Denver; then it turns northwest to Salt Lake City and dips down through the foothills of the Rockies, past the orange orchards of California and finally crosses the Sacramento river to San Francisco. From the Statue of Liberty to the Golden Gate at the rate of 56,000 miles a second, infinitely less than the wink of an eye.

For years a corps of more than 550 engineers and scientists in the Bell organization have bent every nerve toward the means of making the feat possible.

At New York the new line was witnessed the demonstration included Mayor Mitchell, other city and state officials, a number of prominent business men and telephone officials.
