

MUST SEEK TO SHOW GUNSENSE?

Question of Warden and Nimrod Legal Status Before Dauphin County Court

The question of whether a hunter must seek a State game warden to prove he is regularly licensed or not, when the warden must seek the hunter whom he suspects of violating the game law by failing to carry the proper tag, was put up to Additional Judge S. J. McCarrill of the Dauphin County Court when George Fleck appeared for the summary conviction of Squire E. B. Dunkle from the charge of failing to produce his tag on the morning of Jan. 26.

District Attorney Michael E. Stroup filed the unique position of counsel for a defendant this morning in appearing for Fleck; J. Clarence Funk represented Smith. Judge Kunkel emphatically remarked upon Mr. Stroup's position.

By the testimony it appeared that Smith from his automobile spied Fleck with a gun and he promptly called him to the scene. Fleck admitted that he saw a tag on Fleck's arm, but that it had slipped around in such a way as to hide the number. He called to Fleck to appear so that he could investigate, whereupon Fleck, he said, started to run. The district attorney and Judge Kunkel, who sat with Judge McCarrill, put in some minutes in a lively argument on the merits of the case in which the district attorney contended that Fleck was not a warden and he was not a hunter.

Smith was not a warden and he was not a hunter. He was a game warden and he was a hunter. He was a game warden and he was a hunter. He was a game warden and he was a hunter.

ASK FOR REPEAL OF FILM CENSOR LAW

Senator Joseph H. Thompson, of Beaver Falls, Pa., this morning handed down to Pittsburgh and more than a score of other legislators, made addresses last night before the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League of Pennsylvania, at a smoker in the Bolton hotel.

All of the speakers said the exhibitors were right in asking for the repeal of the State censorship law. Many of the exhibitors made statements this morning about the order of Louis J. Bretlinger, chief of the State censorship board, to take down the "six-sheet" posters by the motion picture houses. He has also issued tickets to inspectors giving them the right to enter any "movie" to inspect the films.

An open meeting was held this afternoon at which many manufacturers, exchange men and the exhibitors were present. Length of program for the evening was 10:30.

Will Elect To-morrow.—J. W. Binder, president of the national censor board, will speak to-morrow at "Voluntary Versus Legalized Censorship." To-morrow officers will be elected for the coming year and a place chosen for the convention and State headquarters.

SHELLS AND TORPEDO SEANT BLUECHER DOWN

Broadsides of British Cruisers Sealed Fate of German Warships

London, Jan. 27, 2:15 A. M.—The Scotsman to-day publishes the narrative of a German bluejacket, a survivor of the German armored cruiser Bluecher, who once lived in the United States.

The bluejacket said the German fleet was advancing at full speed to attack the English coast when the British warships were sighted. Thereupon the Germans turned and made for port. The Bluecher, which was comparatively slow, made desperate efforts to keep up her maximum speed, but the British overhauled her and opened fire at a range of about ten miles.

"We were under fire from first to last," the bluejacket continues. "The British centered their fire on us. Their shells were awful. Our guns were put out of action, our decks were swept and our gun crews wiped out."

The Scotsman, which is published in Edinburgh, also prints other accounts of the battle as gathered from men engaged in it.

Race for Forty Miles.—For forty miles the two fleets raced along over the shortest route for Heligoland before the German fleet sustained damage. Then the Lion, which was leading, overhauled the slow Bluecher, and in passing her gave her a broadside, causing frightful damage.

The Lion did not wait, however, but continued in pursuit of the fleeing Derfflinger, Seydlitz and Moltke.

The Tiger, which came next, also poured a broadside into the Bluecher, as did also the Princess Royal, both of which were speeding on to join in the chase of the others.

"Within half an hour's run of the mine area," said one of the men, "the Derfflinger was on fire as a result of the British shells. Masses of flames shot up from her forward deck, her decks were strewn with wreckage and when she reached the shelter of the mines she had no answer to give to the hail of projectiles which followed her."

Third Ship Suffered.—The third vessel in the line was believed to be Seydlitz, but possibly the Moltke. It suffered even worse. It came under the Lion's fire and besides received something from the fire of the Tiger, the Princess Royal and the Indomitable. She was in a terrible plight.

"The Bluecher made a gallant fight, but as ship after ship turned their guns upon her with deadly effect, her doom was sealed from the first. Her upper works were smashed out of all recognition and virtually every gun was put out of action."

Just at the close of the action the Arethusa fired a torpedo at the Bluecher and she went down.

"The British vessels turned their attention to rescue and large numbers of men were picked up. More might have been saved but for a new factor in the direction of Heligoland came a huge Zeppelin and a number of aeroplanes, which began dropping bombs upon the destroyers engaged in the work of rescue, and which therefore had to abandon their task."

"A slight temporary derangement in the running gear of one of the British warships may have led the observers in the aircraft to the conclusion that serious damage had been inflicted and given the Germans a basis for their claim that a British battleship had been destroyed."

"The vessels have come out of the fighting bearing undoubted marks of the conflict, but in no case has the damage been other than slight."

ECKINGER ASKS FOR PAXTONIA LICENSE

Former Russ Hotel Proprietor Files Application; 124 of 179 Requests In

The only new application for a retail liquor license that is expected to be made at the 1915 session of the Dauphin County License Court, February 19, was filed to-day by Harry F. Eckinger, former proprietor of the Russ Hotel, who wants a hotel privilege at Paxtonia.

Twenty-two signatures were attached to Eckinger's petition. For a year Paxtonia Inn has been "dry," the application for license which James M. Wix filed prior to last year's session of license court having been withdrawn before the court convened. It was understood that Wix took this step when he learned that a strenuous remonstrance was about to be made.

"Friday the time limit for filing applications expires at the 179 licenses that are on the list 124 have been presented to Prothonotary H. F. Holler. With the exception of the remonstrance filed several weeks ago against the transfer of the license now held by John A. Haas, of the Ann Street, Middletown, hotel privilege to Harry White, no objections have been received by the prothonotary. Remonstrants may file until three days prior to license court.

Federal Reserve Board Makes Its First Report

Washington, D. C., Jan. 27.—The first report of the Federal Reserve Board covering the developments which preceded the opening of the twelve regional reserve banks last November and the two months in which they have been in operation, was sent to Congress to-day. It announces that noteworthy results already have been accomplished and that the system now in operation is an experimental one in the sense that there is no uncertainty as to the outcome. No legislation is asked for, the board deeming its report chiefly an outline of how the new system has functioned and the nation's financial situation.

"Less than five months have elapsed," says the report, "since the introduction of the national system of the most far-reaching change that has been made in the field of American banking since the passage of the national banking act. Less than two months have passed since the Federal Reserve banks actually opened for business. The system, however, is in operation and has already produced results of the most noteworthy character."

STORY RITEN

I took a tour to Steelton, Highspire and Middletown the other Sunday and had a chicken dinner with some relations, which was different from the regular bean-soup at home. Also it gave a chance to see the customs which are different from those of our own town. Among which is the girls which is very striking in Steelton, Highspire, and Middletown.

I guess it is the clear air and bright sunshine in those places which makes the girls' complexions so beautiful and vivacious, so they don't need to carry powder, or to shoo the sinders from their eyes, while the policeman yells frantic to make 'em look out for a auto-truck which is approachin', at twenty-two miles an hour according to the speed limit.

Also in Steelton, Highspire and Middletown they have level streets and good wooden boardwalks instead of the muddy streets and sidewalks in Harrisburg. To make life more comfortable on a icy day. Also they have back yards where you can raise onions and turpins when the weather gets warmer. And there is room to use clothes-prop on wash-day, which we don't need here, the yards bein' so small.

Steelton, Highspire and Middletown has many things better than Harrisburg, but I wouldn't want to deliver a message on a bike in those places, so I guess I'll stay in Harrisburg a while longer.
