Husband Forced Her to Cook For Drunken Mob

Smiles and more than a suggestion of tears were woven into many of the stories of disillusionment that were related to Judges Kunkel and McCarrell in the continued session of January divorce court this morning. Only, as a rule, those who told the stories didn't smile.

In Judge Kunkel's court Rosa Kelley appealed for a divorce from her husband George W. He abused her frightfully, she declared, especially when he became intoxicated. His favorite pastime was to invite a host of negroes around to his house, open several kegs of beer, and compel her to cook for the drunken mob.

CHURCH IS FACING ITS GREATEST TEST

Mission Worker Says Church Has Opportunity to Be of Real Service to Humanity

MELVIN E. TROTTER

"The church of to-day is facing the greatest test of its existence," said "Mel" Trotter, the mission worker, soon after his arrival in Harrisburg at 1 o'clock this afternoon. "It stands on trial this winter as to whether it can take the opportunity to be of real service to humanity. This winter is the hardest we have ever had in the cities, and it is up to the church to save the men who naturally turn to it in time of distress."

Afternoon meetings for women were well attended. James W. Barker, president of the Harrisburg City Rescue Mission, presided. Singing was led by a ladies' choir from the Stough evangelistic chorus, the "Make Christ King" songbook being used. Mr. Trotter told the story of his life and outlined the need and the usefulness of the chain of Rescue Missions which he has established in fifty cities in America.

After the afternoon meeting Mr. Trotter is to be tendered a reception by a number of local business men at supper in the Commonwealth Hotel. The Mayor and Chief of Police will be present.

The evening mass meeting, intended principally for men, but from which women will not be excluded, starts at 7.15, with a song service by a mixed chorus from the Stough tabernacle choir, under the leadership of Charles Clippinger. The Stough songbook will again be used. Louis Houseal and his corps of tabernacle ushers will take care of the seating and the comfort of the audience. A large attendance is looked for at the evening session to hear the story of Mr. Trotter's conversion.

No charge for admission is made for either meeting, but an offering will be taken up to help defray the expenses of Mr. Trotter's visit. Mr. Trotter goes from here to Philadelphia, where he is one of the principal speakers at an undenominational rally held there from to-day until Thursday, and he will also visit and take part in one of the services at the "Billy" Sunday tabernacle meetings there.

ROMANTIC LIFE OF MRS. HART AT END

With Husband Through Rigorous Indian Warfare; Bore Son in Sagebrush Camp

Ending a life replete with romance and which for daring and adventure has seldom been equaled by woman, Mrs. Anna E. Hart, aged 62 years, died at the home of a daughter, Mrs. Harry Robinson, 1002 Susquehanna street, early this morning.

Born near Carlisle, she attended the same school with her childhood sweetheart, "Mel" Trotter, the mission worker of the Civil War and young Hart were engaged. Faithfully the girl waited until her fiancé had completed his enlistment. At the age of thirteen under romantic circumstances she was married.

Stirred by the tales of martial adventure which the young soldier related, Mrs. Hart urged her husband to re-enlist. Because of his bravery in the Civil War Hart was made a non-commissioned officer and was stationed at Carlisle where he was transferred to New Mexico and by special orders allowed to take his girl-wife with him.

Less than a year later the Blackfoot and Crow Indians in Washington and Oregon rebelled and the majority of frontier troops were mobilized in the northwestern states. Hart was ordered north with a troop of cavalry and with his wife by his side he crossed the intervening deserts and plains. Late in the fall they arrived at their destination.

Hart's troop was stationed at one of the most hazardous positions in the Indian back on the reservation. He refused to leave him and suffered the rigors of the winter and Indian campaign.

Son Born in Brush Camp In a sagebrush camp hastily thrown together to protect the cavalry from Indians a son, William F. Hart, now a resident of Carlisle, was born. That night the troopers slept with guns in their hands, momentarily expecting an attack by the Indians. Half-starved panthers were forced back by a fire line.

After the Indians had been placed back on the reservation Hart, who had been made a sergeant because of valorous service, was allowed six months' leave of absence, brought his 16-year-old wife and their young son home through the Indian California and across the Isthmus of Panama. They returned to Carlisle and Hart was mustered out of service.

Mrs. Hart's death occurred to-day from a complication of diseases. Sergeant Hart died exactly eighteen years ago to the day and hour. The children have arranged funeral services for Mrs. Hart which will coincide with those of her husband.

Surviving Mrs. Hart are three sons, William F., of Carlisle, Harry and Robert, of this city; two daughters, Mrs. Harry Robinson and Mrs. Morgan Williams, of this city; a sister, Mrs. Frederick Barthel, of Carlisle; seventeen grandchildren and seven great-grandchildren.

Funeral services will be held Friday afternoon at 2.30 o'clock. Burial will be made in Harrisburg Cemetery.

ROCKEFELLER, JR., ARRAIGNED BY LABOR REPRESENTATIVE

New York, Feb. 2.—John D. Rockefeller, Jr., and the Rockefeller Foundation were arraigned to-day by another representative of the labor who testified before the Federal Industrial Relations Commission. The witness was Edward P. Costigan, of counsel for the United Mine Workers of America, and his testimony, consisting chiefly of a statement which he read, followed closely the lines adhered to last week by John R. Lawson, the Mine Workers' executive board member for Colorado.

J. P. Morgan told the United States Commission on Industrial Relations yesterday that he had no opinions to offer on a great many of the subjects with which the present inquiry into the causes of social and industrial unrest is dealing, and that it was for others to say what shall be done in alleviating the conditions of which complaint has been made.

Departments Combine to Make Sale a Success

Almost two pages of this paper are devoted to the advertisement of Dives, Pomeroy & Stewart, to announce the many attractions that will feature their semiannual Mill and Factory Sale which begins to-morrow morning.

This event which assumes great proportions each year, will in the present instance be of still greater magnitude than its predecessors.

Mills and factories which have been left this year with greater surplus stocks than for many years have come forward with more than the customary price concessions in the desire to rid the mills of all remaining merchandise. Practically every department of the big store will contribute its share of attractions to the public, and buyers are enthusiastic over the exceptional merchandise that has been procured for the occasion. The doors will swing open for the beginning of the big sale to-morrow morning. Full particulars and prices will be found in the store's advertisements on pages 4 and 14 of this paper.

Will Decide If Trust Companies Are Liable to Taxation as Rent Agents

City Council this afternoon instructed City Solicitor Seitz to submit a written opinion on the question of whether or not trust companies which act as rent agencies may be liable for the city license tax imposed for renting dwellings. Commissioner W. L. Gorgas had raised the point as to whether such companies are liable in view of the fact that they pay a State tax. Mr. Seitz said he will investigate the legal status of the case more fully. The license tax ordinance was accordingly postponed for another week.

The ordinance changing the names of a score or more of streets was amended and laid over for reprinting and the ordinance authorizing the purchase of a motor truck for the streets department and three motor tractors and two chemical combinations for the fire department were passed finally. Immediately after Council adjourned the commissioners went into session as a board of revisions.
