This Famous Attorney and Publisher is a Great Friend of Peruna.

Mr. Charles E. George, 825 Perdido St., New Orleans, La., writes: "I think Peruna the best tonic ever put on sale. Having for years been afflicted with catarrh of the head and taken medicine prescribed by different physicians without avail, I finally was induced to try Peruna. It effected a cure. That is the strongest testimonial I can give as to its use."

WHO INVENTED THE NEWSPAPER SCOOP?

John Walter, Who Founded The London Times in 1785, Called Its Creator

In England the newspaper "beat," "scoop," is sometimes called an anticipation. Whatever its name, it is one of the most important features of modern journalism and may be considered almost an invention of that greatest of European dailies, The London Times.

John Walter founded The Times in 1785, and was the first to understand the political and overwhelming importance of early information. He was not satisfied by the treatment he received from the British postal authorities...

Among the fourteen great editorial departments of The Times, the foreign and military departments have always been the most important, the organization of the foreign department being exceedingly far-reaching.

At a time when the other and less enterprising European papers were printing conventional reports of what was going on in the Crimea, Mr. Walter, in 1855, where Great Britain and her allies were pitted against Russia.

One of the most celebrated of "scoops" was the announcement by The London Times in the columns of its series of long editorials—not in the news columns at all—of the exceedingly important fact that Disraeli had purchased on behalf of the British Government the Suez Canal Company.

An English provincial paper, inspired by the great scoops of The London Times, printed a copy of the Suez Canal Company. This was in the days when the Oxford-Cambridge boat race loomed up as the one great sporting event of the year.

A "scoop," said to be unparalleled in the history of journalism, was effected by the London Times in the columns of its series of long editorials...

This same De Blowitz, who possessed the most complete information, more complete than most of the rulers and diplomats with whom he came in contact, is also credited with having reported in 1875, a second Franco-Prussian War. This was accomplished by an expose published in the Times of certain diplomatic conditions which in continental newspapers could not possibly have been put in print without bringing on war.

During the year 1893 the foreign intelligence of The London Times cost about $250,000. A single cable message, on the subject of a revolution in Argentina, cost $5,000. During the Boer War The Times supplied its readers with war dispatches from some twenty-four correspondents.
