

Women and Their Interests

Why I Lost My Wife

By DOROTHY DIX

"I lost my wife," said the seventh man through drink. Believe me, Cleopatra was not the only sinner who has dissolved a priceless pearl in the wine cup, and quaffed it down.

"We hear a great deal about the drunkard's wife, whose love never wavers, no matter how low the man sinks, and who can still see her husband as the hero of her girl's dreams, even when he wallows in the gutter, but I wonder if that isn't a fairy tale that men have invented for their own consolation. I wonder if any woman's love ever survives the disillusionment of meeting the man she is married to turned by drink into a maudlin, besotted beast.

"Certainly my wife's affection was not of the kind that can drap the pink chiffon of imagination about a reeling, senseless, speechless drunkard and see in him a figure of romance. She was a delicate, refined, sensitive woman, and when I was in my cups, and when I had revolved from me, I was to her a thing unclean and abhorrent, and while she pitied my weakness, she had at the same time a contempt for me, and contempt is the greatest of loves.

"When we were married I was a young lawyer, had already begun to make my way in the world, and had every prospect of success. I had set up a charming little home. My wife was a capital manager, and anxious to help me in every way, and no young couple could have looked forward with more assurance to a happy life together.

"I had always been a little too fond of drink. The habit had not got me at the time of my marriage, but I had got the habit of it, and I had not the distinction. I didn't get drunk, but I took just enough to get what Jack London calls 'joyfully spifflicated,' just enough to make me see the world all rosy, as one sees it through the bottom of a wine glass.

"His Wife Speaks About It
"Soon after our marriage my wife spoke to me about this, but I assured her with fatuous self-confidence that I knew just when to stop, and that I could break off whenever I wanted to, and that to drink a certain amount and be a good fellow, because it brought me in close contact with certain men who controlled big interests. She looked the doubt she felt, but said nothing more.

"When our first baby came my wife went into the Valley of the Shadow, and when she came back she brought with her a tiny, frail little creature, in whose frame the spark of life glimmered so feebly that only a mother's incessant devotion could keep it alive.

"I was passionately in love with my wife and frantically anxious about her, and like many another man under such circumstances, I tried to drown my fears and anguish in drink. The night that my wife was fighting with death I was pouring drink after drink down my throat, and when with her first conscious breath she asked for me I, who should have been standing by her side, was lying in a drunken stupor in the back room of a saloon. I had felled her at the great crisis of our lives.

"I don't know what she told her. I don't know what she thought. I suppose she suspected the truth, and in her woman-wise way made allowances for me, but her face, when I was sober enough to be admitted to her presence, wore for the first time the look of sorrow that I was never to see out of her eyes again. It was the look that every drunkard's wife wears.

"The Downward Path
"My wife had given most of her time and attention to the care of our sickly little baby, and I got into the way of spending my evenings at the club and in saloons, and before I realized it I had passed from being a moderate drinker into being a hard drinker, and the habit that I had boasted that I could control controlled me.

"What followed is the old story. I became a drunkard. I lost my practice. I lost all of my friends who were worth while. The money that should have gone to the support of my family went over the bar. We moved and moved and moved, each time to a cheaper and poorer place. Our furniture and clothes became shabbier and shabbier, and I became the typical drunkard's family.

"At first I was ashamed to come home drunk, and would sleep off my carouse in my office, or at some hotel. Then I lost all shame, and my wife saw me reeling, tottering, maudlin, my eyes bleary, my mouth dribbling, my clothes filthy, surely the most disgusting sight on earth to a woman of delicacy and refinement.

"She knew what it was to watch and wait through long nights for the coming of a shambling step. She knew what it was to open the door for a man whose fumbling hand could not even find the latch. She knew what it was to help a big, strong thing in the shape of a man—who had lost all manhood—to get there to slumber in a dozed sleep, with open mouth and stertorous breathing until his alcoholized brain awoke to life again.

"My wife stood all of this with the stoic of an angel for a few years. She stood it until her every effort to reform me had failed, and her every hope was dead, and then she left me. The shock of her going sobered me so that I have never taken a drink since, but my reformation came too late. She had killed her respect and her love for me, and I could no more bring them back to life than you can breathe life into a corpse.

"I had had home and happiness, wife and child, and I lost them all through drink."

FOOD FOR GERMANS AT HOME

vised that a number of cargoes of foodstuffs are to be sent in American ships as gifts to the German civilian population from German friends in America.

Girls! Clean and Beautify Hair
NO DANDRUFF--25 CENT DANDERINE
Stop washing hair! Try this! Makes hair glossy, soft and abundant

Besides beautifying the hair, one application of Danderine dissolves every particle of dandruff; invigorates the scalp, stopping itching and falling hair.

Danderine is to the hair what fresh showers of rain and sunshine are to vegetation. It goes right to the roots, invigorates and strengthens them, its exhilarating, stimulating and life-producing properties cause the hair to grow long, strong and beautiful.

You can surely have pretty, soft lustrous hair, and lots of it, if you will just get a 25-cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drug store or toilet counter, and try it as directed.—Advertisement.

Detective White's Avoirdupois Doesn't Hinder His Efficiency

Corpulent Sleuth While Different in General Construction from Sherlock Holmes is There With the Goods; Rounding Out Fifteen Years of Service on Local Force; Ability Widely Recognized

HARRY C. WHITE
Member of Local Detective Force Who Has Been a Very Busy Man

By WELLY JONES
Some of these fine days, writes of detective stories will probably use real sleuths as characters in their thrilling tales. If they confer with one portly gentleman known as Harry C. White, they will get enough "dope" to fill a dozen books.

Foot and Mouth Quarantine Given Another Change

The new quarantine order of the State Livestock Sanitary Board includes parts of Dauphin and Cumberland counties. The order modifies the original list materially, but it demonstrates that the danger is not yet over.

The following order of general quarantine was adopted by the State Livestock Sanitary Board January 27, 1915:

All territory in Pennsylvania is released from quarantine except the counties of Lancaster, Lebanon, Lehigh and York, also the townships of Berwick, Conowingo, Germany, Hamilton, Mt. Pleasant, Reading, and Union, in Adams county; Baldwin, also the boroughs of Millvale and Spring Garden, also the Fourteenth, Twentieth, Twenty-third, Twenty-fourth and Twenty-sixth Wards, city of Pittsburgh, in Allegheny county; South Beaver in Beaver county; Albany, Alsace, Bethel, Brecknock, Caelmarvon, Cumru, Greenwich, Heidelberg, Hereford, Jefferson, Maiden Creek, Marion, Maxatawny, Muhlenberg, Ontelaunee, Penn. HUNDREDS OF WOMEN nowadays are entering the professions or business world and so to work day after day in hard weather, often with some female ailment, dragging one foot wearily after the other, working with an eye on the clock, and wishing for closing time to come.

Women in this condition should take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs. It has brought health and happiness to more women in America than any other remedy. Give it a trial.—Advertisement.

MANY CASES OF RHEUMATISM NOW
Says We Must Keep Feet Dry, Avoid Exposure and Eat Less Meat

Stay off the damp ground, avoid exposure, keep feet dry, eat less meat, drink lots of water, and above all, take a spoonful of salts occasionally to keep down uric acid.

Rheumatism is caused by poisonous toxin, called uric acid, which is generated in the bowels and absorbed into the blood. It is the function of the kidneys to filter this acid from the blood and cast it out in the urine. The pores of the skin are also a means of freeing the blood of this impurity. In damp and chilly, cold weather the skin pores are closed, thus forcing the kidneys to do double work, they become weak and sluggish and fail to eliminate this uric acid which keeps accumulating and circulating through the system, eventually settling in the joints and muscles, causing stiffness, soreness and pain called rheumatism.

At the first twinge of rheumatism get from any pharmacy about four ounces of Jad Salts; put a tablespoonful in a glass of water and drink before breakfast each morning for a week. This is said to eliminate uric acid by stimulating the kidneys to normal action, thus ridding the blood of these impurities.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, harmless and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia and is used with excellent results by thousands of folks who are subject to rheumatism. Here you have a pleasant, effervescent lithia-water drink which overcomes uric acid and is beneficial to your kidneys as well.—Advertisement.

for a number of years. When you see him doing the promenade act, or busy on a "case," he does not impress you as being the Sherlock Holmes type. Detective White is short and stout. Neither does he smoke a pipe, like the mythical Sherlock Holmes. Cigars are his hobby, and whenever you see him chewing on the end of a cigar, it is a safe bet he is working out a difficult turn of some mystery. Later on if he offers you a cigar, it is proof it is solved.

Worked Many Cases
As a detective, Harry C. White is considered one of the best in the State. He has handled many important cases, and has recovered hundreds of dollars' worth of stolen goods. He was prominent in cleaning up several big shoplifting cases several years ago. Picking out sick-minded gentry in crowds is a feature of "White's."

In towns throughout the State, the ally of Harry White is recognized. He has done special duty at Bradford, Pittsburgh, Lancaster, Reading, Allentown and other cities. He comes from a family of detectives, his brother, Charley White, being another prominent sleuth.

Born in York
Harry White was born in York during the year 1866, and moved to Harrisburg June 27, 1894. With his father, T. Kirk White, he introduced the popcorn business on the streets, and had an army of boys selling fresh corn sticks. Later, he engaged in the cigar business on South Second street. "White" was granted a private detective license in 1899 and was appointed a city detective by Mayor E. S. Meals in 1908. When Mayor John K. Royal assumed office he retained Detective White, who is now rounding out his fifteenth year as a sleuth.

Windows Should Be Kept Open During Winter Weather
State Commissioner of Health Samuel G. Dixon says that people are too prone to do without fresh air in winter because they are afraid it is not healthful. He holds that it is unhealthful not to have it and urges that windows be kept open in the winter as in summer. On this point the commissioner says:

Does your bedroom window drop with the mercury? Do the window openings that cannot be too wide in the summer time gradually narrow down to an inch or two at this season of the year? Do you think that your need for fresh air diminishes with the arrival of the first cold wave? If so, you are greatly mistaken.

If the thought of wide open windows in zero weather is appalling, plug up courage and try a small dose first. You will find that it is far better to spend more money for blankets and comfortable than for doctor bills and medicine, and eight hours' sleep in cool, fresh, invigorating air is a far better stimulant than anything that comes in bottles, no matter what the claims on the label. It may be that your daily business

FOR REAL COMFORT
A Sleeping Garment that will Protect the Most Active Child.
By MAY MANTON
8513 Child's Sleeping Garment, 2 to 8 years.
Here is a sleeping garment that has all the practical advantages. If it is made with feet portions it must keep the extremities warm, no matter how restless the sleeper may be, and even without them it is really protective. The sleeves are in Japanese style, so there are only two seams and nothing to irritate the tender shoulders. There is a pocket that gives a really grown-up suggestion. Altogether the garment is one of the most useful and most practical that could be devised. At the back, the body portion and the drawers are separate and buttoned together. For really cold nights, cotton flannels make good materials, but madras is felt to be heavy enough by many mothers, and those who are looking forward to the coming season will like to use cambric and the like. In the picture striped madras is finished with collar of plain.

For the 6-year size will be needed 3 3/4 yards of material 27 or 36 in. wide, with 3/8 yard 27 for the collar.
The May Manton pattern 8513 is cut in sizes from 2 to 8 years. It will be mailed to any address by the Fashion Department of this paper, on receipt of ten cents.
