JACK JOHNSON SAILS; BOUND FOR LONDON

Hopes to Sidestep American Authorities and Land in Juarez on Schedule Time

New York, Feb. 5.—A cablegram received from Buenos Aires sets at rest the rumor that Jack Johnson has not left the South American capital. Johnson sailed from Buenos Aires on January 21 on the steamer Highland Harris, bound Londonward, and announced that he intended to fight Willard at Juarez, says this message. This means that the giant black heavyweight champion is on the high seas somewhere, and presumably is trying to keep his appointment to meet Willard on March 6 in the Mexican city, just across the river from El Paso, Tex.
