For Those Who Can Swim

Special to The Telegraph

The test is to swim 200 yards, showing a mastery of at least two strokes.

He says: "Of every entering class fifty or sixty students are unable to swim more than a short of each entering class must be instructed in the essentials of swimming In addition to the above number 15 per cent. more of the class require a certain amount of further practice before they become able to pass the test."

The Princeton director of swimming, Frank J. Sullivan, points out: "The result of the enforcement of this rule is that every man in Princeton, with but few exceptions, is able to swim before he graduates, thus making a record the like of which no other university, college, athletic club or preparatory school is able to boast."
