THE VOTE ON SHIP BILL NOW POSSIBLE

With Return of Newlands and Smith, Fight in Senate Takes New Aspect

MARSHALL MAY BE CALLED

Republican Leaders in Conference to Consider New Plans of Action

Washington, Feb. 8.—The lull in the battle in the Senate over the administration ship purchasing bill came to an end today. The Senate had been in recess since Friday. Meantime the Democratic leaders had been waiting for the arrival of Senator Newlands to reinforce their side.

The motion of Senator Clarke to recommit the shipping bill without instructions still was pending with indications that it would be allowed to come to a vote. Even with the vote of Senator Newlands the Democratic leaders admitted that they could not defeat the Clarke motion.

The leaders, however, are pinning their hopes on the motion of Senator Gore to discharge the commerce committee for further consideration of a substitute ship purchase bill which he introduced last week. They are confident that with the support of progressive Republicans they will carry the Gore motion. In that event the substitute bill would be brought back to the Senate and the Republicans would be compelled to resume their defensive fight.

With the arrival of Senator Newlands and Senator Smith, of South Carolina, the parliamentary situation was changed. Senator Smith had been expected to return on account of serious illness in his family. With his vote and that of Senator Newlands, administration leaders claimed a tie vote on the motion to recommit instructions. Then the Vice-president would be relied upon to cast the deciding vote.

As soon as Republican leaders learned of the return of Senators Newlands and Smith, a conference was called to consider plans of action.

FATHER'S THIRD TO MEET DEATH BY FIRE

Daughter Was Burned in Gas Explosion; Her Husband Blown to Bits by Dynamite

The death of John H. Park, aged 66, of 622 Race street, at the Harrisburg Hospital yesterday afternoon as the result of burns received while on duty Saturday at the Rutherford yards of the Philadelphia and Reading Railway was the third tragedy of the kind in the family. The first occurred fourteen years ago, when the eldest daughter of Mr. Park, Mrs. William Liddy, was burned to death at her home in Fagetstown in a gasoline stove explosion.

The third sudden death was that of Mrs. Liddy's husband, killed nine months after her in a dynamite explosion during the construction of the York Haven power plant.

John H. Park was an engine inspector at the freight yards at Rutherford and he was opening the fire door of an engine when flames blew back, presumably caused by a leaking gas igniting his clothes and severely burning his head, face and the lower part of his body. Fellow-workmen tore the burning clothes from the victim, wrapped him in other garments and took him on a shifting engine to the Philadelphia and Reading station, thence to the hospital by ambulance.

Coroner Eckinger held an investigation late this afternoon.

Lived Here Half Century

John H. Park was born February 2, 1849, in Philadelphia. He first went to work for the Philadelphia and Reading Railway in Harrisburg when 16 years of age and had worked for that company all his life, with the exception of ten years, when he was an engineer on the Pennsylvania. He was an engineer on the Reading twenty-eight years and for the last ten years had been a locomotive inspector at the Rutherford yards. He was a member of the Philadelphia and Reading Veterans' Association and the Philadelphia and Reading Relief.

Mr. Park is survived by his wife and nine children, Charles, Mary and Gertrude, at home; Mrs. William J. Madden, Mrs. Charles Kaufold, Mrs. Daniel Brennan, Dr. John H. Park, Jr., William J. Park and Frank A. Park, all of Harrisburg; also sixteen grandchildren.

Funeral services will be held Thursday morning at 9 o'clock in the Sacred Heart Catholic Church, South Cameron street, the Rev. W. V. Dailey officiating. Burial will be in Mount Calvary Cemetery.

Habit-Forming Drugs GORGAS' DRUG STORES

did not wait for laws to regulate the sale of "Habit-Forming Drugs." They were among the first to take individual action in restricting their sale. On July 15, 1914, the Gorgas Drug Stores formally announced through the newspapers that they would not sell Opium, Morphine, Laudanum, Heroin, Chloral, Cocaine, etc., except on the written prescription of a reputable physician.

The high standard of the Gorgas Drug Stores is an assurance to the public that there is care and integrity back of every sale.

Coal and "Clinkers"

Don't always blame the coal if you find "clinkers" in your furnace.

Clinkers are often the result of the way the furnace is handled. The feed door should never be left open, as cold air rushes in and deadens the fire and causes clinkers by suddenly chilling the hot coals, which are in a plastic condition.

The fire will settle down into a solid mass and you will have trouble to remove the ashes.

The best coal is liable to clinker from this cause.
