MAYOR TRIFLE BITTER OVER COUNCIL ACTION

resolution directing the superintendents of streets, parks and public safety to proceed at once with the important public improvement work they had planned, in order to provide work for the hundreds of the city's unemployed.
No Suggestion For Solution
No suggestion as to how Superintendents Bowman, Lynch and Taylor—the departmental heads affected—could provide the work or the money was made. Commissioner Lynch declared that contractors couldn't work in the cold weather, and that it was impossible to expect them to go ahead unless the city provided money for a "force account"—the extra sum which would be added to compensate the men whom the contractors could take on at the city's suggestion. This would require a change in the specifications, however, according to Mr. Lynch, so that immediate assistance would not be forthcoming at any rate. Council agreed the work is needed for hundreds of men in Harrisburg and asked Mayor Royal to suggest some plan for action. The Mayor had none. So the Mayor's resolution was laid over until yesterday afternoon when it was passed unanimously.

And yesterday Mr. Lynch offered what will probably go down in city history as the Royal buncombe resolution. This directed the Mayor either to suggest a way to provide the work or to admit that his own resolution was simply "political buncombe." Hence the astonished chairman's ruling:
"I declare the resolution out of order," he stated, "on the ground that the superintendents of public affairs and finance, the authors of the measure of yesterday, are not acquainted with the work of the heads of the other three departments."
For half an hour the same question that started such general discussion Tuesday were rehashed out again—the Mayor endeavoring to show that he really knew what he was talking about, Commissioners Lynch, Bowman and Taylor carefully showing him that he didn't.
The Mayor angrily declared that he wasn't guilty of "political buncombe" but that if anybody was, it was the majority councilmen. He insisted that he had offered his own measure in absolutely good faith, actuated solely by the desire to provide work for the unemployed. He said he believed the city could readily spend the additional money that might be necessary in order to start work at once and the money would be "well spent."

"Well," said Mr. Lynch, "we've started, all of us want to do all we can to help. I think every department has gone to the limit to provide work this year. But we can't go ahead in this cold weather. You've suggested that some way be devised; now you suggest the way. You provide the money."
Mayor Royal: "Why you've got the money. Something like sixty thousand dollars for sewers."
Mr. Lynch: "You're right, we've got the money—and we've got to spend it legally. That's what we're going to do."
Messrs. Lynch and Taylor both reminded the Mayor that he had evidently been making another play for publicity, that, without consulting the departments affected, he had gone ahead with the preparation of his resolution. "In five minutes you could have called all of us together and we could have talked it over. But you didn't propose to do that," declared

Mr. Lynch. "Talk of playing politics! You're defending that action." The superintendent of streets added that he didn't propose to start any work in cold weather unless council ordered it.
Did Try Cold Weather Work
"Couldn't you try it?" the Mayor asked.
"We did try it—are now trying it—with sewer construction in Seventeenth street," promptly returned Mr. Lynch. "And the contractor has had to quit."
"That's equally true of the new entrance and roadway to Reservoir observed Mr. Taylor.
"Well," expostulated the Mayor, "if you didn't think my resolution was a good one why didn't you vote it down?"
"Why I didn't say the suggestion wasn't right," replied Mr. Taylor, "I only asked for a feasible plan."
"That's what we want to get at," cut in Mr. Lynch, "a feasible plan."
The Mayor: "Then suggest some plan."
The Reason For Late Work
Mr. Lynch: "I want to say that every department went the limit this year in taking on men. You started this, it's up to you now to come across with the plan. Do you know of anybody starting this work in this cold weather. That is unless they failed to finish their contracts in required time and are now only working because they are penalized for every day over time and each day's delay means money to them. That's true of the construction of that new building at Tenth and Market streets. The job was to have been done by January 1."

"You give us $5,000 or $10,000 and we'll take care of the work and provide employment."
"But you've got plenty of money."
"For the City's Best Interests."
"Yes," quickly returned Mr. Lynch, "I have—and I'm going to spend it for the best interests of the city, too."
The Mayor declared that Mr. Lynch had made no request for additional money the previous day. "Why certainly I did," replied Mr. Lynch.
"Perhaps," added the superintendent of streets, "I didn't specify the amount, but I said 'force account.'"
The Mayor declared that he wasn't familiar with the work of the other departments on the improvement jobs.
"Why," said he, "what do I know about your contracts?"
"Why you've voted to approve every one of them," returned Mr. Lynch, "that, Mayor, is a matter of record."
Then Mr. Lynch appealed from the chair's decision on declaring his resolution. Mayor Royal again ruled on the resolution.

Another Reason
"I ruled it out," said he because it is not germane to the question and reflects upon the members of council."
Messrs. Bowman, Lynch and Taylor voted to sustain the appeal and when the question on the Lynch resolution was called for, the Royal buncombe measure became a part of the city record by a vote of 3 to 2.
Commissioners Bowman, Lynch and Taylor voted "aye."
Commissioners Gorgas and Royal voted "no."

SIR EDWARD GREY GIVES HIS ANSWER ON TERMS OF PEACE
By Associated Press
London, Feb. 11, 3.20 P. M.—"The recent public utterances in Germany give no reason to suppose that the purpose in view will be promoted by adopting the course suggested," was the answer of Sir Edward Grey, the British foreign secretary, to a question in the house of commons this afternoon asking whether, with a view to ending the terrible loss of life in the war, Great Britain was prepared to declare publicly the basis whereon the allies were willing to discuss terms of peace. The members of the house greeted Sir Edward Grey's answer with cheers.
BATTLE RAGES FURIOUSLY
By Associated Press
Geneva, via Paris, Feb. 11, 6.40 a. m.—The battle which began in the Carpathians on February 7, still is raging furiously along a front of sixty miles from Mount Polovina Runa to Mount Mako, according to the latest information received here. In the Mezeloborz region General Dankl is said to have been obliged to send reinforcements to extricate a Hungarian corps which was almost cut off.
