CITY HAS CHANCE TO DEVELOP 'WHITE COAL'

Harnessing of River Would Create Splendid Industrial Opportunities, Engineers Say

Hugh L. Cooper, a well-known hydro-electric engineer of New York city, will lecture before the Engineers' Society to-morrow evening on the world's largest water power plant at Keokuk, Iowa, of which he was engineer.

The event will be of particular local interest owing to the fact that Mr. Cooper was the engineer in charge of the McCall's Ferry project after its first failure and brought that work to a successful conclusion at Panama.

His lecture here will cover the history of "white coal" from its early inception in Japan and India to its later developments at Brazil and Jamaica, and in this country at Niagara Falls, McCall's Ferry, and finally, to the greatest hydro-electric plant in the world at Keokuk.

This plant was built at a cost of $20,000,000 after three years' work. It supplies 250,000 horsepower in the form of high voltage electric current to the territory covered in a radius of 175 miles. Its most important consumer is the city of St. Louis, 160 miles away.

The United States government required the owners, the Mississippi River Power Company, to construct great locks to take care of the river traffic. These locks themselves are a notable engineering feat, being the largest on this continent, greater even than the Gatun locks at Panama. The locks will make a single lift of forty-two feet.

Engineers and others interested are invited to attend the lecture, which will be held at the clubhouse, 31 South Front street. A large audience is expected because of the fact that there has been so much said as to the possibilities of the "white coal" at our doors and the larger industrial opportunities for Harrisburg that could be created.

GERMANY NEEDS $1,250,000,000
London, Feb. 11, 4:05 P. M.—German financiers have been summoned to a conference in Berlin with the finance minister, who considers that a loan of $1,250,000,000 is required for the continuance of the war, says a dispatch from Amsterdam to the Exchange Telegraph Company.

Pull the Teeth and Beauty Fades
In England it is common practice to pull all the teeth to cure pyorrhea, or "flesh disease." Sir John Goodhart, the famous surgeon, raises an earnest protest against this. He said in the Lancet, "To one not an expert in dentistry, it seems more reasonable that so long as teeth are in their sockets, free from intense pain and serviceable for mastication, there is something to be said on the side of keeping our own rather than take to others that we know not of. Store teeth detract from health and beauty. When you find the teeth or gums are sore, or bleed, or food or tongue, sensitive to heat or cold, loose, brittle, get on edge easily, tender, or gums shrinking from the necks of the teeth, it is time to begin the work of destroying the microbes that infest the cracks and crannies of the teeth. You can readily overcome these conditions by getting four ounces of fluid organ from the drugist (you don't need more), using a teaspoonful morning, noon and night, simply gargling the mouth with this a minute or so. The microbes will be washed out, the cracks cleaned, the teeth become strong and firm in the gums and the yellow peel off.—Advertisement.

Walker, a prominent lawyer, whose office is at 135 Broadway, New York City, will adopt the lad. He believes the boy was kidnapped. The waif has flaxen hair and winning blue eyes. When found his hair was in curls about his ears, and he wore a blue sailor suit, black velvet hat with red band, black stockings and high black shoes; red woolen mittens hung from a tape about his neck. There was no mark on the boy's clothing, which was of good texture.
