COAL AS A UTILITY

NE of the problems which the present Legislature may called upon to solve will be whether coal and ice can be considered as utilities and should be included in the list of those covered by the act known as the public service company law, on which the work of the Public Service Commission is The suggestion was made a peculiar relation to the consumer the purveyors of these commodities were in the same position as companies, ersons or firms which supply water.

the commission jurisdiction over a long list of utilities from railroads to steam heat corporations. No complaints have come in under some of the classifications, but the commission has undertaken to regulate them and to provide systems of charges and standards of service. In many respects the commission act is like the school code, in need of a good tryout, and it should not be disturbed any more than is absolutely necessary to secure efficient and speedy handling of matters brought before it for adjudiation. However, if there are lines in which the police power of the State should be invoked to secure a square the advisability of adding these articles to the services over which the commission has control is worthy of serious study.

HARD WORK AHEAD

EMBERS of the Legislature would do well to rest up during the recess which has been ar-March, because when they come back to Harrisburg they will have to hustle if they are to get away in the latter part of April. It is understood that there will not be many bills passed this session, that is, compared to some which have gone before. There are, of course, many appropriation bills which make up the record of a session, but the prevailing impression appears to be that there will be fewer general laws than here-

But anything that tends toward keeping down the cost of the staff of life in the present emergency is worthy of considera-

Austrian bakers are now compelled by law to use at least 30 per cent. potato meal in making their bread. Dried bananas, ripe and unripe, and chestnuts are other substitutes for wheat flour with which experiments are being made by the Bureau of Chemistry. Still other products which offer promise of furnishing the public with a cheap and nutritious bread are bran, soy bean, white bean, millet, kafir, milo, dasheen, cottonseed flour, oatmeal, cassava, buckwheat, rye, congluten, kaoliang, rice (polished and natural), peas, potato (sweet), cornmeal (white and yellow).

The American public is so "set in its ways" of eating that it is difficult to persuade it to change its standards of diet. Its attitude toward "potato bread," therefore, when it knows it to be such, is difficult to forecast.

THE REASON

THE Chio State Journal, a bright, breezy and usually well-in-formed newspaper that ought to know better, publishes the fol-wing in its editorial columns:

owing in its editorial columns:

Pennsylvania is still a wild country, wilder in big game than Idaho or Arizoha. Think of it, that in the hunting season just closed 378 bears and 1,100 deer were killed in the Keystone State, the center and seventh of the arch of the thirteen original States. Civilization must have had a hard time keeping up in that State. Here in Ohio, the next State to Pennsylvania, there has not been a deer or a bear killed during the past year, and no bears for several years. Can it be possible that it is the bad politics in Pennsylvania which is keeping that State so attractive to wild animals, and so disinclined to the beautiful ways of civilization?

No, dear Journal, it is not because

No, dear Journal, it is not beca civilization is behind hand here that we in Pennsylvania have forests and that these forests teem with wild animal life. On the contrary, it is because we in Pennsylvania enjoy an advanced stage of civilization that these things are true. We have been wise enough to preserve some of our game in a manner that it would have had that commonwealth realized its duty to future generations

We do not desire to be boastful but we in Pennsylvania were practicing conservation of our natural rebut we in Pennsylvania were practicing conservation of our natural resources long before that phrase was adopted by politicians largely for their own selfish purposes. Not only are we not ashamed of the fact that we have thousands of acres of woodland where the hunter may still delight in the chase, but we are adding, year after year, to our wooded area, and our Legislature will during the present session set aside large sunts for the purchase of private land of this kind to be turned back into the public domain.

Instead of poking fun at Pennsylvania, Ohlo should take a lesson from us in this respect and go and dollikewise, if her opportunity to do so is not already passed.

POTATO MEAL BREAD

THERE is nothing very new in the government experiments with the use of potato meal in bread. Our mothers knew that the addition of potatoes added to the flavor and preserved the moisture of bread. And there never was "baker's bread" to compare with that which mother used to make in the good sold days.

Not much has been done by the discaster of official statistics covering the ficial statistics covering the continuation of the saccrding to official statistics covering the ficial statistics covering the continuation of them, by the disaster at Schaefferstown recently. The bankers realize this and they are going to have no more happenings of the kind if they can help it. The bankers realize this and they are going to have no more happenings of the kind if they can help it. They are going to have their banks examined by examiners employed by an association of bankers, as well as by State and national bank examiners. They want to know for their own protection, and the bank that is not willing to bay some insurance of this kind will be looked upon with suspicion at once.

Curator Boyd P. Rothrock, of the State Museum, has placed on the walls y of the Museum a collection of the butterflies of the State which is of particular local interest because so many of the varieties have been taken in this section. The specimens are large and every detail is perfect, the care the Museum gives to its mountings being demonstrated. In the collection are a number of moths which have been studied by pupils from the city schools, it is the intention to gradually extend the collection which now includes the animals, birds, reptiles and fishes of the State to take in the insects especially those of value to the farmers and those which are plain out and out pests.

Superior Court Head Announces That He Will Not Seek Reelection This Autumn

TRIBUTE TO COLLEAGUES

Judges Orlady and Head Are Commended; Crow Doubts Early Adjournment Date

Announcement was made last night from Wilkes-Barre that President Judge Charles E. Rice, of the Superior Court of Pennsylvania, will retire and not allow his name to go before the voters in the coming campaign. This announcement is made in a letter written by Judge Rice to Joseph D. Coons, secretary of the Luzerne County Bar Association which recently indorsed him, along with Judges Orlady and Head for re-election.

—Judge Rice in his letter pays tribute to Judges Head and Orlady, his associates, and declares they were fit for ten years more work. He refers to them as "able, high-minded, honest and fearless judges. They have demonstrated by their work their keen appreciation for the responsibilities of the office and their fitness to discharge them. Much of the usefulness of the court has been due to their loyalty to it and to their interest in the work it was created to do and to their fidelity."

Concerning himself, Judge Rice says:

I would like to remain in the judicial service as long as Long

Concerning himself, Judge Ricays:

I would like to remain in the judicial service as long as I can do the work. I have no wish to leave it to enjoy the ease that would follow. No feeling of that kind enters into the determination of the question of my candidacy for re-election.

But, although I am in fair condition now, my bodily health, as has been demonstrated, is unreliable. Taking this into consideration with my age, the probability of my being capable of long sustained mental effort as a judge ought to be, for any considerable part of the new term, to speak within bounds, not strong.

It is enough to say they have led me to a definite conclusion as to what my duty to the court and to the people of the Commonwealth, who have so generously honored me, requires.

Keep Your Lungs Strong

This advice is doubly important with the knowledge that every three minutes some one in the United States succumbs to consumption and many refuse to realize they are afficied until it is too late. It is after colds or sickness, from over-work, confining duties or when general weakness exists that tubercular germs thrive because the resistive powers of the body are weakened.

Only with fresh air, sunshine and abundant rich blood can one hope to arrest their progress, and the concentrated fats in Scott's Emulsion furnish fuel for rich blood, and its rare nourishment helps strengthen the lungs while it builds up the forces.

If you work indoors, tire easily, feel languid or run-down Scott's Emulsion is the most strengthening food-medicine known and is free from alcohol or stupe-fying drugs. Avoid substitutes.

DON'T USE SOAP ON YOUR HAIR

When you wash your hair, don't use soap. Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali, which is very injurious, as it dries the scalp and makes the hair brittle. The best thing to use is just plain mulsified coccanut oil, for this is pure and entirely greaseless. It's very cheap, and beats soaps or anything else all to pieces. You can get this at any drug store, and a few ounces will last the whole family for months.

Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in, about a teaspoonful is all that is required. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, cleanses thoroughly, and rinses out easily. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and is soft, fresh looking, bright, fluffy, wavy and easy to handle. Besides, it loosens and takes out eavery particle of dust, dirt and dandruff.—Advertisement.
