

Beech-Nut Tomato Catsup

THERE are those who tell you that a woman isn't interested in the way an article of food is made—in the face of the fact that the one thing your American housewife will not tolerate in her own kitchen is careless, slovenly methods!

She knows what care, patience, delicacy of treatment will produce. And when she has learned that Beech-Nut Tomato Catsup is made from whole tomatoes direct—no materials recooked, no tomatoes hauled long distances—she knows that Beech-Nut Tomato Catsup is made as she would make it herself.

And so she naturally is not satisfied with anything less than the Beech-Nut Catsup for her table.

Your grocer has his supply of this year's pack now. Order a bottle today. Two sizes—25c. and 15c.

AN EVENING THOUGHT

God is our refuge and strength, a very present help in trouble.—Ps. 46:1.

TALAP FIRST TO MEET DEATH IN NEW CHAIR

son's came from the wall apparatus, the sound of the automatic whirring switch that dropped the charge gradually to 600 volts in six seconds.

At 7:21 Dr. R. J. Campbell, one of the resident physicians at the New Jersey State Penitentiary, pronounced Talap dead. Twenty-three persons, including witnesses, newspapermen and attendants, saw the man die.

Talap was convicted of murdering his wife at Norristown in August 1913. He was about 38 years old.

Priest Proceeds Condemned

Talap's death was staged in a gray, bare room and had one stately accompaniment. He preceded into the death chamber by a tall, straight-shouldered young priest. This was the Rev. Antonio Ulanitzky who presides over a Greek parish, at Remy, Pa. The priest, the one calm man present, strode into the room, dropped to his knees on a mat at the feet of the condemned man and with a smile like a child's lifted his crucifix before the anguished eyes of the victim. There he held it even after the heavy leather mask had been fitted over the man's face. No tremor of emotion touched the priest's countenance. Even after the first shock flung the body of the condemned man outward against the straps with a snap like a whip crack, he remained motionless on his knees. His face lifted and shining, a scarlet stole folded in his left hand against his breast.

Priest Remains Motionless

At the second shock a tiny corkscrew of blue smoke as faint as that which might arise from a cigaret, went up from the left leg of the man in the chair and drifted up through the metal dome above the chair. The priest remained motionless on his knees and only when the spry young warden with his stethoscope, stepped forward and said, "Gentlemen, I pronounce this man dead," did he arise. He moved to the stone bench with the other witnesses, slipped his crucifix under his long cassock and finally left the room.

The priest had spent the entire night in the doomed man's cell. Talap had refused to eat any breakfast. He entered the room a foot or two ahead of the doomed man he was whispering the litany for the dead.

"God have mercy on me, Christ have mercy on me," Talap whispered in reply.

Warden Francis was not a witness at the execution. Prisonkeepers are usually opposed to capital punishment. The deputies and the experts who installed the chair and the general equipment had spent most of the night grooming the great gasoline engine in the power room immediately under the row of six death cells.

Every circuit had been tested. When the power plant was set going at 6:30 this morning the muffled uproar penetrated upward through the steel and concrete floor.

Stops Praying to Cry

Talap who at that instant was on his knees stopped praying to cry. He refused to eat any breakfast. It was eleven and a half minutes after seven when the chief keeper of the death-house entered his cell.

"It's time, John," he said. "Dea," said Talap, uncertain and looked at the priest.

"This way, John," the priest said and the march began over the 21 feet of corridor that intervenes between the six death cells and the chair. Talap had cried during most of the night. He refused to sleep. He had been brought up from the Norristown jail last Monday handcuffed to a detective and under the eye of Sheriff Schwartz, of Montgomery county.

In Chair in Few Minutes

Talap following immediately on the heels of the young priest, walked wearily and seemed to have difficulty in moving his feet. A deputy warden supported him each elbow. A touch on his arm wheeled him to the chair,

What Could Be Done with the $2,000,000 Which the Full Crew Laws Arbitrarily Take From the Railroads

Increased Railroad facilities, better service, greater safety and convenience, business expansion and the employment of a great number of men now idle would follow the repeal of the wasteful Pennsylvania and New Jersey Full Crew Laws.

Facts—Not Theories

- $2,000,000 would buy 2000 steel coaches.
- It would pay for 80 locomotives.
- It would purchase 67,000 tons of rails.
- It would return 5 per cent. on $40,000,000.
- It would block-signal 1000 miles of track.
- It would eliminate 65 grade crossings.
- It would pay for 2000 freight cars.
- It would build 200 new stations at $10,000.
- It would provide additional freight terminal facilities.
- It would buy 2,500,000 railroad ties.
- It would pay for 2,000,000 tons of coal.
- The iron and steel industry would be stimulated, furnishing steel for new cars, rails, bridges, buildings, etc.
- Miners and coke oven operatives would get increased work as industry expanded.
- New construction would mean busy times for the Lehigh region cement plants and their workmen.
- Thousands of architects, contractors, building trades workers, electrical concerns and electricians, skilled mechanics, carpenters, miners, and day laborers would so get work.

With these incontestable facts thus clearly set forth, the twenty-one railroads of Pennsylvania and New Jersey feel it their duty to place the fate of the Full Crew Laws in the hands of the people. They are convinced the people prefer that employment be given to thousands for whom there actually is work to knowing that $2,000,000 a year is being paid in mandatory wages for extra men for whom there exists no essential service to perform and whose presence, it has been conclusively shown, increases—rather than decreases—the hazards of railroad operation.
