FULL CREW LAW IS THROUGH WRITTEN OF

Legislators Hearing From Their People About the Measure Not Yet Introduced

Although the bill to repeal the full crew act has not even made its appearance in the Legislature, it is the cause of more letter writing to members of the two houses than any bill now before the General Assembly. The mail of members is filled with letters asking the voters to urge the measure when it appears and in the absence of senators and representatives at their homes during the recess this week their boxes in the Capitol post offices are being filled with letters on the subject.

It is seldom that such an energetic campaign for and against a bill is undertaken before it is introduced and it is probable that when it does make its appearance arrangements will be made for a public hearing in the hall of the House of Representatives.

The indications are that there will be several big public hearings in March at the Capitol. On March 9 the Senate and House committees in charge of the child labor bill will give hearings and there will be a hearing on the oleo license bill about March 17 and expectations are that the local option bill will also have some hearings.

The battle over the bill to repeal the mercantile tax and for regulation of trading stamps will be renewed with vigor next week.

Codification of the laws of the state relating to the poor, the dependents and other charges of the State will be introduced as soon as the Legislature opens if bills now pending are enacted. It is estimated that there are 1,100 statutes on these subjects, some of them contradictory, a number dead letters and still others which have been declared invalid by courts either wholly or in part or which have been amended and superseded yet remain on the books.

The general plan is to have the State Auditor, Referees and Bureau take up other subjects as it has done with the codes on taxation, boroughs and corporations, which are before the present Legislature.

In the first place they wear neat dress suits instead of their comedy togs of yore. The second reason is the same with producing duo, who never depend on togs to win laughs. This duo is one of the best appearing at the Orpheum this week supporting the Omar Opera Company in an excellent

City's First Paid Ball Player Has Had Interesting Career

Charley Fleck, Native of Harrisburg, Ran Away to War; Was Sent Home Because of His Age; Worked Around Here in Various Industries; Pulled For the West; Went Railroading and Now Is Presiding Officer of the Day Desk at the Police Station

“CHARLEY” T. FLECK
 Day Desk Officer and All-Round Handy Man at the Police Station.

By “Wells” Jones

No baseball history would be complete without some mention of “Charley” Fleck, day desk officer at the police station. No police department in the State can boast of an attaché with a history so interesting as that of “Flecky.” Someday someone will write a book about this handy man and it will sell like hot cakes.

“Charley” Fleck was the first paid baseball player Harrisburg ever had. He started back in the seventies, played with the High Boys and Experts; can tell you about the first curve ball pitched in Harrisburg and many other interesting things. At the police station he is the one man who can help a fellow-officer, sharpen a knife, clean a revolver or perform any service requested. He will be missed when he is gone.

Charles T. Fleck was born October 22, 1851, in Harrisburg. He ran away with the Ninety-eighth New York Regiment, got as far as Fairfax Court House, Va., and was sent home by the late Colonel W. W. Jennings and the late Colonel F. Asbury A.W.L. He worked at the old Harrisburg car shops from 1866 to 1868, became a bricklayer and helped to build the Hope enginehouse. In 1871 he became a brakeman on the Pennsylvania railroad, was promoted to flagman and extra conductor. For five years he worked in Nebraska on the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy railroad and in 1893 returned to Harrisburg. In 1899 he was appointed a patrolman by Mayor A. Fritchey and has been in service ever since.

POLLUTION HAS BEEN GIVEN CHECK

Commissioner Buller Talks About What Has Been Accomplished in the Last Year

Filtration works to stop pollution of streams have been established at over 200 tanneries, acid works, refineries, paper mills and smaller plants at the instance of the State Department of Fisheries in the last year and streams in which no fish could live have been restored for fishing, according to Nathan R. Buller, State Commissioner of Fisheries, who has just returned from a trip of inspection to the western and northwestern parts of the state.

“In almost every section where filtration systems have been installed there has been a saving to the manufacturer or producer as well as clearing of the waters so that fish can go about,” said he. “There are tanneries which are making big savings in the way of hair and fishings and I know of refineries which save nine barrels a day, and all through the filtration plants. On the Allegheny watershed we have succeeded in getting rid of some of the worst pollution from oil works and acid works and I have letters from the manufacturers showing how they have saved. We intend to push this work and I believe I can bring about good conditions on some streams which are ideally located for fishing but which are now so full of poisonous matter that it is useless to plant fish in them.”

Mr. Buller says that as soon as the weather is fitted he will begin distribution of yearling trout. The number of applications is large, the mild weather having stimulated them, and hundreds of thousands of fish have been asked for. The commissioner made an inspection of the hatcheries and says there will be an abundance of trout to distribute this spring.

Harrisburgers Take Big Part in Rotary Meeting

Thirteen members of the Harrisburg Rotary Club have returned from the tenth anniversary of the birth of International Rotary held in Philadelphia, at which 600 members from cities of the eastern States were present. The Harrisburg delegation was composed of Mr. and Mrs. Howard C. Fry, Mr. and Mrs. John S. Musser, Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Griffin, Dr. and Mrs. S. Z. Shope, Mr. and Mrs. Fred S. Lack, W. S. Essick, D. D. Hammelbaugh and Edward Black.

W. S. Essick read the only paper by a Harrisburg member on “The Ideal Side of Rotary.” Howard C. Fry made things lively by leading in yells and songs by the Harrisburgers.
