

NEW SONG WITH QUANT MELODY Odd Ballad Said to Contain Many Pretty Strains

A new song of romance, now popular throughout the South, entitled "Virginia Lee," has just reached this city and is already being sung by some of the fair sex. While the words are quite ordinary, telling the same old love-tale as in popular songs, the music is rather pretty and has a very haunting swing. The song was written by Jeff Brannen, author of "In the Valley of the Moon" and other famous works. Here is a part of the chorus:

Probably the chief cause of the song's popularity is that there is no suggestive or unclean idea in its text, but a sort of refined theme that appeals to women.

RHEUMATISM IN ANKLES

One Bottle of Rheuma Relieved Woman Who Could Not Walk Marvellous as this story may seem, it is absolutely true; but this is only one of the many almost magical cures that Rheuma is performing these days. Use one bottle will convince any sufferer.

Motorcycle Cop Bumps Into All Kinds of Lively Mix-Ups

Paul G. Schelhas, One of Few Native Harrisburgers on the Police Force, Has Been Beaten Up Several Times in Pursuit of Duties; Risks Life in Runaway; Comrades Refer to Him as the "Young Officer With the Iron Nerve"

PAUL G. SCHELHAS Motorcycle Officer Who Shows Nerve and Ability in His Duties

Hurry calls sent to the police department are not always for the am-balance or to send out the reserve force. Motorcycle officers get many hurry calls in a month. One of the two men who answer these calls is Paul G. Schelhas. He is a newcomer in the police business, but since his advent as a city policeman of the Elliott-Fisher Typewriter Company in New York city. He was appointed a policeman by Mayor E. S. Meals, March 2, and was retained by Mayor John C. Royal. Because of his exceptional ability in getting on the job he was made a motorcycle officer. During a favorable weather motorcycle officers ride over the city three times each day.

FACED DEATH TWICE

Dorothy Kelley and Jimmie Morrison, of the Vitagraph Company, faced death twice in the two-act Vitagraph drama, at the Photoplay to-day. In "Two Red Nanas," the orphaned child, who is picked up from a terrible shipwreck by Stephen, Royston, a young farmer, is adopted by Stephen's parents and both Stephen and his brother, Geoffrey, soon learn to love the girl. This marvelous life portrayal brings to us a new realization of the mysterious workings of fate, fortune or whatever you call it, in bringing together two loving hearts after a series of hardships which have apparently separated them forever.—Advertisement.

BILLIE RITCHEE AT THE PALACE, "AFTER HER MILLIONS"

It's here! "After Her Millions," the hit comedy plot that ever was permitted to escape from a production studio. It's all jammed into three reels. Billie Ritchie, Fatha Lehman and Gertrude Selby are on the screen. Billie Ritchie is one of Nature's own comedians. In fact, she is wearing one merely looks at him. Those feet, those clothes, those graces! When Billie Ritchie is laughing, she has a three reels of tickling, side-splitting and back-breaking comedy. It's time to draw the curtains and let the light shine on her. "If I'm to die, let me die laughing." What's it all about? Billie Ritchie only knows. It starts somewhere and ends somewhere, but just what she does even those who, doubled up in their seats, try to follow the "plot" cannot tell. It's one of those comedies where, squint-eyed with laughter, you try to follow the next grand slam and the next grand slam, but you miss the hot tamale finale which sends your lady in the next seat put her handkerchief in her mouth. And the sort of a lady-like lady to explode the next moment, while the tightly wadded handkerchief is flying, and she is a head-headed man in the front row a terrific slap on his glazed dome. See Billie Ritchie in "After Her Millions" every night at the Palace to-morrow.—Advertisement.

"DAMAGED GOODS"

Robert Vaughn, who plays the "Doctor" in "Damaged Goods," at the Majestic, to-morrow, afternoon and evening, formerly played the lead in support of Macklyn Arbuckle in "The Round Up." About six years ago he appeared as leading man for Selma Hermann, who was then starring in "A Bad Man's Wife" and "Camille." In the closing weeks of last season he played the principal role, "Frederick Wagner," in "The Tiger's To-day." He was with Charlotte Walker when she starred in "Just a Wife," and also played leads with Virginia Harmed and Amelia Blingham, and has been identified with many road productions, including "The Deep Purple," in which he appeared as "Lacko," the crook. When H. B. Warner scored his hit in "Himmie Valentine," a play based on one of O'Neil's stories, he essayed the role of "Red."—Advertisement.

"TWIN BEDS"

Mail orders received at the Majestic for the local performance of "Selwyn Selwyn," the comedy play, the greatest laughing hit of the year, "Twin Beds," are indicative of capacity audience. The production of "Twin Beds" is a comedy play with the furniture name plays its local engagement. The engagement at the Majestic will open on Tuesday, and is for one day only.—Advertisement.

"ROBIN HOOD"

Although "Robin Hood" is twenty-three years old, and Reginald de Koven has written many other works, this is the first time in his career that he has written any company presenting his opera, "The de Koven Opera Company, headed by Scott, James, and the Center Opera, New York, will be heard at the Majestic next Wednesday, afternoon and evening. Reginald de Koven, Mr. de Koven is authority for the statement that the vocal balance and artistic merit of the opera, in the hands of the original Bostonians, is explained by the fact that in those days there was a great deal of coming to the comedians of the organization, and now while the comedy roles are not neglected, the music is sung by singers possessing voices suited to the score.—Advertisement.

BOSTON ENGLISH OPERA CO.

The slogan of the Boston English Opera Company, which comes to the Majestic Theater, Saturday, matinee and evening, is "Opera in the language which you can understand, at prices which you can afford to pay." That the American public has caught the fever is conclusively proven by the tremendous business which this organization is doing. The production of "Il Trovatore," given by the Boston English Opera Company, is a production of the highest quality, and it is towards knocking out the idea that we are dependent upon foreigners to produce our operas, that the Boston English Opera Company is making its appeal. The argument that we have as good singers as there are anywhere in the world and who are more important in proving that in order to enjoy opera, you must understand the word, the story and the plot, as well as the music.—Advertisement.

ORPHEUM

Unique and novel, "The Fashion Shop," the headliner at the Orpheum this week, has attracted a remarkable amount of interest among Harrisburg theatergoers. The ideas carried out by the promoter, Hugo Jansen, are entertaining and educational. In addition to displaying the styles and modes, Mr. Jansen has arranged along with the show, a comedy and musical comedy. The "Fashion Shop" is a very pleasing one-act comedy, and its success is due to the fact that it is a new and original production. COLONIAL

"Vacation Land," a rattling comedy act presented by a clever caddy with its scenes laid in a schoolroom, is creating an upheaval of laughter at the Busy Corner. The act consists of excellent comedy sprinkled with good songs. Also on this bill Mr. and Mrs. Mark Murphy, local favorites, are winning favor with their act, "The Ghost." These two acts are, indeed, clever for the seldom seen at the prices in vogue
