Allison Hill All Stirred Up Again by "Murder" Mystery LAUNCHED THIS

Allison Hill was stirred yesterday by the discovery of what on the face of things looks like a murder mystery. Near the Vernon school building. Fifteenth and Vernon streets, scores of people stopped to gaze at five hens, a Rhode Island Red rooster, and a duck. All were dead.

Who killed 'em and why, and to whom do they belong are questions as yet unanswered. The heads of the victims were unsevered, and a superficial examination by several expertsall gentlemen of color—showed the necks had not been wrung. Neither were there any traces of poisoning. That they were dead as doornails, however, there was no denying.

The duck created considerable interest. It was slightly larger than the ordinary millard, had a small crest and forehead and was glossy green and brownish black in color. It is believed it was a large "muscovy."

or intervene in the war. Following the reports of partial suppression by Italy of the mails to Austria and the conference of Emperor Francis Joseph with his minister of war concerning the defense of the Italian frontier comes a despatch from a Roman newspaper to the effect that the Italian fleet is being concentrated at Tarento. This is the point in Italy neares the Dardanelles. So far as has been reported officially,

The impression was gained in Washington to-day that the United States probably would protest to Great Britain and her allies against their plan to stop trade with Germany, as, outlined in the British order in council yesterday. The administration has had no time to consider the official text of the order, but President Wilson indicated informally that the measures contemplated are displeasing to the United States.
