Helen had just finished arranging the card tables. She managed to fit them from the living room with little trouble. It was the day for the bridge club to meet, and it was her turn to hold it. She looked about the room with a satisfied air. Everything looked just as she wanted it.

„Nora,” she called, „will you get me three vases from the living room?” „Yes, ma’am,” Nora answered. „Which ones do you want?”

„Bring me the green one and the silver and glass one on the table, and you might get that blue glass bowl from the dining room,” Helen told her.

„My, ain't the flowers grand?” she exclaimed. „When you get through with them, will you look at the dining room table to see if it's all right? I have the sandwiches and the cakes all ready,” she continued.

„I don't think it's so very funny,” Warren said. „Why didn't you take your coat off, too? It will be in a hundred wrinkles. It was pressed only yesterday,” Helen's practical economy was rising.

„Oh, never mind all that,” Warren laughed again. „Get all those old women out. Ask Louise if she won't stay for dinner. She can telephone Bob to come here. We can go to a movie afterward. He laughed. „Why do women always scatter their things all over, anyway?”

„I don't think it's so very funny,” Warren said. „Why didn't you take your coat off, too? It will be in a hundred wrinkles. It was pressed only yesterday,” Helen's practical economy was rising.

„How are you Helen?” She greeted her sister-in-law and kissed her. „How pretty you look. Stand off and let me see you. That shade of blue is becoming to you. How attractive the room is,” she continued.

„If it does it's partly owing to you, dear,” her flowers are beautiful. It was dear of you to send them. Come into our room to take off your wraps. Quickly, here comes someone else. Nora will take them.”

she thought. Would the clock ever crawl around to 5 o'clock, the time they generally stopped playing? She hoped the game would be over by the time Warren reached home. If he were in an irritable humor a crowd of women wouldn't improve it.

At a quarter past 5 the game stopped. Exclamations over points made, hands held, hands that might have been held, followed. Then Helen led the way into the dining room. She and Louise poured the tea and chocolate. Mrs. Stevens came over to Helen.

„Before I go,” she said, „could you give me the directions you said you had to knit sweaters? You remember you told me about it a few days ago. Would it be too much trouble to get? I thought I'd get the worsted tomorrow.”

„Why, not at all. I wrote the directions. Just wait a moment and I'll get the slip of paper for you.” She turned on the electric light.

„Why, Warren?” she cried. „When did you get in? I didn't see or hear you. Warren lay on the lounge blinking up at her.

„I don't think it's so very funny,” Warren said. „Why didn't you take your coat off, too? It will be in a hundred wrinkles. It was pressed only yesterday,” Helen's practical economy was rising.

Compensation and Full Crew Bills Will Receive Attention on Tuesday Afternoon

Three important hearings on legislation are announced for next Tuesday afternoon. The Senate Corporation and House judiciary general committees will give a joint hearing on the administration workmen's compensation bills at which it is expected Governor Brumbaugh will be present.

The Senate and House committees in charge held a joint hearing and gave the whole afternoon to it. Rescue Workers Report More Requests For Aid

The report of the work of the American Rescue Workers since the beginning of the year, issued by Adjutant General Smith, at the headquarters, Tenth and Cumberland streets, shows that 153 free beds and 429 meals were provided during January, and 127 beds and 812 meals in February.

Mr. Smith says the requests for assistance are far in excess of those of last year, but that he has been able to meet all demands so far, owing to the generous response of the public, on whom he depends entirely for help.

„I don't think it's so very funny,” Warren said. „Why didn't you take your coat off, too? It will be in a hundred wrinkles. It was pressed only yesterday,” Helen's practical economy was rising.

The House of Representatives has cleared its calendar of over forty bills in the last two days and to-day's record will enable it to get far ahead on the legislation in hand. Unfortunately it is still coming in and although committees are working there is no size of bill but a stop bill will probably be renewed next week.
