CAN THE ELKS TANGO?

Take It From the Members of the Carline Association They Can in "They're At It Again."

MOVE UNION DEPOT PLAZA TO MAJESTIC

Penny Station Traffic Space Will Be Transferred to Playhouse Via Painted Canvas

When the curtain rises on the second act of "They're At It Again" at the Majestic to-morrow evening don't gasp or rub your eyes or think you've been dreaming or—anything because you see Union Station plaza right before your very eyes.

For, it will be only a picture.

The plaza with its waiting taxis and cabs and autos and newsboys and hurrying travelers—it's all to be moved over to the Majestic Theater for a forty-eight-hour stay to-morrow evening, figuratively speaking, via some hundreds of yards of painted canvas.

The station plaza is to be the scenic setting for one of the funniest acts of the Carline Elks' annual frolic and the great canvas that has been prepared by one of the best painters of the country reproduces to the smallest detail the busy scenes around the depot.

Harrisburg Silks are planning a unanimous welcome for their brethren from down Carlisle-way and the social committee of the local lodge, under whose auspices the play is to be given, are finishing the details of arrangements for the coming of the Cumberland Valley guests.

By the way, lest it be forgotten that "They're At It Again" is really a nifty song revue, maybe it would be amiss to mention that in the three acts of the play there will be just thirty-two ballads sung by soloists and chorus.

Twenty Tiny Blackbirds Drawn From a Big Pie

Miss Dorothy Bushnell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Fairchild Bushnell, had the nicest kind of a party yesterday afternoon at her home, in celebration of her eleventh birthday.

Carnations, hyacinths and daisies decorated the rooms, and twenty little girls and one small boy—Billy Bushnell—had a jolly time with games and contests. When refreshments were served the supper table bore a huge pie from which the guests drew tiny blackbirds that whirled above their heads in a pretty flight, each one receiving a bird as a favor.

To Grow Hair on A Bald Head

BY A SPECIALIST

Thousands of people suffer from baldness and falling hair who, having tried nearly every advertised hair tonic and hair-grower without results, have resigned themselves to baldness and its attendant discomforts. Yet their case is not hopeless; the following simple home prescription has made hair grow after years of baldness, and is also unequalled for restoring gray hair to its original color, stopping hair from falling out, and destroying the dandruff germ. It will not make the hair greasy, and can be put up by any druggist: Bay Rum, 6 ounces; Lavona de Compose, 2 ounces; Menthol Crystals, one-half dram. If you wish it perfumed, add 1 dram of your favorite perfume. This preparation is highly recommended by physicians and specialists, and is absolutely harmless, as it contains none of the poisonous wood alcohol so frequently found in hair tonics.—Advertisement.

What Is Wrong With the Men?

By Beatrice Fairfax

A few days ago we considered the cardinal feminine weaknesses: hypocrisy, pretentiousness, unreliability and general pettiness, coupled with too great a tendency to expect life to yield things merely because one is a woman.

A correspondent writes to ask if I have a grudge against my own sex, and also if I see no faults in the "Lords of Creation." Indeed I see plenty of faults in men. But masculine faults, like masculine virtues, are big, constructive things that must be reached in the individual and that cannot be blotted out in the sex.

Men are seldom petty—the men who are are not manly, and so cannot be treated in any general view of their sex. Men have broader horizons and larger and more impersonal vision than those of which women, as a sex, are capable. Consequently their faults are not weaknesses which may easily be conquered by taking thought, but are actual big failings which must be worked at to be uprooted.

Women accuse men of selfishness, self-centeredness and actual cruelty, and women see these failings in men somewhat because of their own pettiness.

The one great fault in masculine human nature is its calm air of superiority. An old prayer says, "Lord, thankest Thee that Thou hast not made me a woman." Modern man does not voice this prayer, but he thinks and feels it and his whole attitude breathes it. Out of this attitude rises the unfairness man shows in his dealings with woman and all his slowness to aid her in her efforts to raise in the scheme of things. With his vices we are not dealing.

Being a man has always proved such a comfortable affair that man placidly sits back in selfish enjoyment of his privileges, and doesn't offer woman a helping hand as she rises above his old-time Oriental despotism.

Out of this air of superiority comes the calmness with which man accepts his own moral shortcomings and quite takes it for granted that the women of his own world must be spotless angels, with no one to admire the set of their brows! Hence, too, comes his sneering attitude toward women of the half-world and the underworld. If he has chivalrous impulses toward them, if he thinks of helping hands as she rises above his old-time Oriental despotism.

Men are too easy with themselves, too tolerant to their own failings, too willing to excuse selfishness, thoughtlessness and even unkindness on their own parts. They do not give kindly enough of their own personalities. They do not yield easily enough to the demands of other personalities. They are not sufficiently chivalrous in their attitude toward womanhood. But all of this is directly traceable to the masculine air of superiority that expresses itself in the old prayer, "Lord, I thank Thee that Thou hast not made me a woman."

The business absorption, the over-ambition, the lowered standard of righteousness and honor of which men are guilty to-day, are all directly traceable to this fountain-head of evil.

What's the matter with the men? The matter is that they think there is nothing at all the matter.

Once in a Lifetime a Trip Like This

There are two wonderful Expositions in California this year and railroad rates will be much reduced. You can get the most out of your trip to California by including the marvelous ride through Colorado and Utah on the way out. There are several ways of taking it all in, but only one beat way, without extra expense and inconvenience.

Everybody knows that the Burlington Route (C. & N. W. R. R.) is the standard, highly equipped "On Time" railroad to Denver; but I want to tell you in particular about our through service to California, passing in daylight, Denver, Colorado Springs, Pike's Peak, Pueblo, the marvelous Royal Gorge and Salt Lake City.

And then I can tell you about coming home by way of either Glacier National Park or Yellowstone Park.

In fact I will gladly help you plan your trip and suggest the most comfortable, interesting and economical way of going and returning. That is my business and my pleasure. Will you allow me to be of use, and furnish you without charge, such pictures, maps and train schedules, as will enable you to determine just what to do.
