MAUDE ADAMS
Barrie's comedy of sentiment and romance, "Quality Street," is proving to be immensely pleasing to the admirers of Maude Adams. When first presented by the actress the play scored a most decided success and this success its rival is more than duplicating. Those who have witnessed the revival of the comedy have been wondering why Miss Adams ever laid it aside. It is an intimate view of the lives of quaint people, lovable people that is given in this comedy. The two Throssell girls, who find themselves obliged to seek out a living by maintaining a select school, are such very human people and their lives are so gray that it is a joy to every one when Valentine Brown returns from the war ready to take up again that pleasant social relation that was broken when he left to serve his country. The comedy is laid in the early nineteenth century at a time when Napoleon was threatening the British shores and the scene is in a village which has its — neel poverty and its modest affluence as well. Miss Adams is to present the comedy at the Majestic next Friday evening, and that there is a desire to see her in it is very much in evidence. Miss Adams enacts the role of Phoebe Throssell. The role demands much of the player and Miss Adams gives bounteously. Indeed, her characterization is one of her charming achievements. The actress is surrounded by a very strong company.—Advertisement.

ORPHEUM
Two of the cleverest girls that have been seen at the Orpheum for a long time are Irene and Bobbie Smith, appearing on the current show at the Orpheum. One of the Smith sisters is

COLONIAL
If you would cure the "blues," you must consult "The Song Doctors," the rollicking and very clever musical comedy of that title that is enjoying prosperity at the Busy Corner. Another very clever feature of the Colonial bill is served up by Silver and Duval, who present a clever comedy and singing turn. Mosconi Brothers, excellent dancers, and Jack Folk, the popular monologist, complete a very entertaining bill. Interesting motion pictures are also included in the performance.—Advertisement.

ALICE JOYCE AT THE PHOTOPLAY TOMORROW
Alice Joyce, the clever Kalem star, appears in her first three-real dramatic production at the Photoplay to-morrow, "The White Goddess," a three-act

CARLISLE ELKS' PROLIC
Fresh from new victories in their home town, where for three successive nights they packed the Carlisle Opera House, the Carlisle Elks' Theatrical Association will come to Harrisburg and begin an engagement this evening at the Majestic Theater in their new musical comedy, "They're At It Again." The sale at the Majestic Theater is very encouraging, although there are still plenty of seats to be had. Many Harrisburgers, who saw the show in Carlisle, are enthusiastic over it, and declare that it is the best thing the Carlisle boys have ever done. In point of music, dances and costumes, it far outclasses last year's production.—Advertisement.

"CHILDREN OF THE GHETTO" AT THE REGENT
To-day the Regent Theater will have one of the film plays which is the talk of the United States. Wilton Lackaye will appear in Israel Zangwill's masterpiece, "Children of the Ghetto."
The story is woven about the life of Rabbi Samuel Jacobs, a sternly religious old patriarch, who insists that his son and daughter follow his religious customs. The first blow falls when his son becomes an actor. His daughter then marries a man forbidden to her according to rabbinical law. Then his wife dies and he is left alone. But life cannot be all bitterness. His daughter, now a widow, with her two children, returns to his home and he finds peace and happiness.
To-morrow, Saturday, Lew Fields in "Old Dutch," an interesting and delightful comedy. Mr. Fields is supported by one of the finest casts ever picked for a feature film.—Advertisement.

TO DELIVER LECTURE
Dr. Wilmer R. Batt, of the State Department of Health, will deliver a lecture next Friday evening to members of the Harrisburg Academy of Medicine, in the Academy Building, 319 North Second street. The subject of the lecture is, "Biometric Findings."
