"Holy Week" Reveals Depth of Day's Religious Sentiment

Special Passion Services in Other Than Ritualistic Churches Now Common; Revival Spirit to the Fore

(By The Religious Rambler.)

Not since the spirit-stirring days of the Civil War has America been in such a religious mood as Holy Week, 1915, discloses.

Because there is no agency to collocate the unusual spiritual phenomena from the whole country, many persons are not aware that nationally, the land is deeply stirred concerning the things of the spiritual life.

While the great "Billy" Sunday campaign in Philadelphia, which closed a week ago, with about forty thousand "trailhitters," has been the focus of nation-wide interest and discussion, there have also been literally hundreds of equally sympathetic revival meetings under way in all parts of the continent. Pennsylvania, probably more than any other State, has been the scene of union evangelistic services, with tabernacles especially erected, but there is no part of the land that has not displayed some similar symptoms of spiritual interest.

Now, Holy Week, which falls on March 28, April 3, gives even a more general revelation of the fact that the minds of men and women are turning toward the concerns of the spirit. Probably never before in the history of America have so many separate Passion Services been held by so many different denominations, union groups and individual congregations.

A New Week of Prayer
Historically, the first week in January has been the "Week of Prayer" in the Protestant churches. Of late years there has developed a tendency to shift this observance to Holy Week. This drift is so strong that the Federal Council of Churches has issued a list of suggested subjects for these meetings, with intimations to guide the thought of worshippers and preachers. The Federal Council secretary says that these are especially designed for the rural churches.

Formerly, many of the Protestant churches were so afraid of conforming to the usages of the Roman Catholic and other liturgical bodies that they refused to recognize Holy Week, or Lent. That is one reason why the first week of the year was arbitrarily chosen by the Evangelical Alliance as the Week of Prayer. Now, Presbyterians, Methodists, Baptists and Congregationalists, as well as Catholics, Episcopalians, Lutherans and Methodists, are keeping Lent. This unity in spiritual exercises is one of the deeper, quieter signs that the churches are getting together. Many of the great cities have a dozen or a score of general noon day Lenten meetings in operation, in churches of four or five different denominations.

Unifying Nation-wide Thought
Themes for the seven days of Holy Week services have been suggested by the Federal Council of Churches. They are as follows:

Sunday—"Unity in Christ." That the spirit of Christian unity may be quickened and deepened in all churches; that all disciples may be drawn closer to Christ and thus to each other, finding in Him the one center of faith, life and service.—John 17: 20-23.

Monday—"Christ's Evangel." That the spirit of Him who said, "I am come to seek and to save that which was lost," may inspire His followers with holy zeal for the salvation of men. That the churches may engage in special efforts to this end. That a tide of evangelism may sweep over the land.—Matthew 9: 35-38.

Tuesday—"Christ and the Nations." That our country may continue in peace with all the world, and may maintain such a spirit of justice, sympathy and helpfulness as shall enable it, when the proper time comes, to serve the nations in the interests of universal and abiding peace. That the divine blessing may rest upon all undertakings to relieve distress, suffering and hunger resulting from war, or from home conditions of unemployment and want. That the hearts of the stricken people may be prepared for a new era of human brotherhood based on the principles taught and exemplified by our Lord.—Matthew 22: 37-40.

Wednesday—"Christ and World Missions." That Christ's Great Commission may be more fully carried out.

That the divine blessing may rest upon all missionary agencies at home and abroad. That the churches may awake to the urgent duty of evangelizing those who come from other lands.—Matthew 28: 19-20.

Thursday—"Christ and the Home, Education and the Sabbath." That the home life of our nation may be preserved from the perils which threaten to engulf it. That the sacredness of marriage and the family ties may be realized anew. That the family altar may be re-established in Christian homes. That the proper observance of the Lord's Day may be taught and practiced by all Christians. That the Christian spirit may permeate all our schools.—II. Tim. 2: 1-2; Eph. 6: 1-9.

Friday—"Christ on the Cross." That Christians may better understand the profound significance of the Cross, and the spirit of Him who died thereon, "the propitiation for our sins; and not for ours only, but also for the sins of the whole world." That the same spirit of self-sacrificing Love may dwell in His disciples. That all peoples may find in Christ the way of saving health and everlasting life.—Matthew 27: 46; Luke 23: 34-46.

Saturday—"Christ and Social Service." That temperance may be recognized as essential to all social improvement, until our nation is freed from the evil of the liquor traffic. That the Christian churches may come to deeper realization of present social conditions which demand the united action of all good citizens.—Matthew 23: 8-12; Matthew 7: 12-23-23.

Some Practical Consequences
Thoughtful observers of religious tendencies, whose position gives them a national outlook, are asking one another whether the country is not even now in the midst of a "great awakening." The vigor and power of revivals, the unprecedented sale of Bibles and religious books, the evangelistic campaigns in colleges, the rapid spread of Christian publicity, the manifest increase of the spirit of social justice and altruism throughout the land; the enormous largesse poured out for war relief and the assistance of the unemployed; the rapid growth of a militant temperance—all these present-day factors can be explained by a deep revival of religion.

Along with these ethical expressions of the present spiritual tendencies has gone a new doctrinal emphasis which explains why Holy Week, the celebration of the Passion of Jesus, should be so definitely appealing. At Philadelphia, the Unitarians, whom "Billy" Sunday had elsewhere attacked, preceded his revival by a vigorous onslaught upon him and upon orthodoxy. They announced a systematic campaign to counteract his influence. But the lurid-linguaged evangelist speedily routed them. The Unitarian special meetings ceased. His bookroom, near the Sunday tabernacle, did not average one single attendant for every thousand that went to hear "Billy." Some Unitarians were converted, even by Sunday's intolerant and vehement sermons. Clearly, there is a reaction toward a more positive faith. Man wants a religion with a cross and a Redeemer in it.
