IS YOUR OWN TREE REAL "GRADUATE?"

City Forester Mueller Propounds 12 "Exam" Questions Leading to the "Diploma"

Is your tree a "graduate?" In an interestingly illustrated pamphlet prepared for the information of Harrisburg folks City Forester Harry J. Mueller asks that question among a dozen quizzes relative to the condition of the trees. For a satisfactory answer to each of the dozen questions Forester Mueller allows 8 1/2 per cent, and a complete answer to all entitles the tree, as the forester quaintly puts it, to a "college diploma." Here are the questions: Is opening about tree of standard size (Four feet square for tree of six inches in diameter or less; increase of foot square for every inch increase in tree size.) Is ground well-loosened to admit air and water? Does tree get good proportion of rain from sidewalk or does water all drain over curb into gutter? Is tree protected from chaffing by six-foot high, comfortably loose guard? Is tree free from "borers"? These are detected by sawdust oozing from holes in trunk and can best be detected between April and November. Are trunk and branches free from all cocoons, egg-masses, larvae, caterpillars, beetles, scale? Does tree remain green and in full leaf to middle of October? Have scars from horse bites or other injuries been cleaned out and painted to prevent harboring of insects and to stop decay? Does tree remain green and in full leaf to middle of October? Have you put as much nourishment into the soil as the tree needs for the year? Give it a treat: dig in wood ashes, ground bone or well-rotted manure. Are any wires interfering with your trees, either by swaying or by electric current, and are there any gas leaks in ground around roots? "Here," concludes City Forester Mueller, "are the twelve good points of a good street tree. The total percentage, if below par, reflects on the man, not on the tree. The tree always does its best. Man forgets that he has taken it out of the God-made forest where it could and did take care of itself and has placed it in a man-made city where it is dependent on man's care for thrifty growth."

Runaway June

She tiptoed out and hurried down the hill to the station, where she caught the first commuters' train. Arriving at the city, she sought Officer Dowd and prevailed on him to phone Ned's friends and June's parents that Ned had been kidnaped.

June in a pretty little morning robe was busy among the flowers in Mrs. Villard's boudoir window conservatory and singing softly when she heard a footstep behind her. Turning, she saw Villard towering above her, his hands in the pockets of his lounging robe, and he was grinning. "Oh!" exclaimed June, startled. "Good morning."

"So this is friend wife's pretty new companion," observed Villard. "Well, friend wife has excellent taste."

June moved away. "Don't be in a hurry," he chuckled. "We must get acquainted," and, suddenly reaching forward, he put his hand under her chin and turned up her face.

She jerked away, but he closed the door toward which she darted and, gathering her in his long arms, crushed her to him. June's struggles were futile and her shrieks muffled, but one pair of ears heard. There was a crash of glass, the flash of a long, lithe white and brown body through the room, and then Villard released his hold. Bouncer! He had sunk his teeth into Villard's arms, and now he was a whirlwind of canine fury.

The man turned pale with fear, kicking and striking at the enraged animal.

"Bouncer!" That cry from June saved Villard's life, for the dog, with a yelp of joy, was springing for his throat as he fell. The man lay back. The dog stood still, motionless. The man's hand moved nervously. The collie moved precisely that same amount. Villard did not twitch a muscle from that time on, except to speak.

"Call off the dog!" he ordered. "Watch him, Bouncer," said June quietly.

June rose from the chair into which she had limply sunk, but a cold anger had come to replace her weakness. She walked from the room and, going to the house phone in the hall, called to the kitchen.

"Has Mrs. Villard returned?" she inquired of the maid who answered. "Not yet."

"Do you know where to reach her?" "Any one down at the cottages will hunt her up and give her your message."

"Ask her to come home immediately, please. Tell her it is quite important."

She walked back to the boudoir and glanced in at the door. The two statues were as she had left them. At the sound of her footstep Bouncer wagged the tip of his tail, but not for one fleeting instant did he remove his fiery eyes from the pale gray eyes of Bert Villard.

Mrs. Villard, hurrying up the stairs within a few moments, found June in the landing alcove, white, shivering as if with cold.

"I'm sorry, Mrs. Villard, but I am going at once," she said before the older woman had even a chance to speak.

"Why, child?" Mrs. Villard's face was full of concern, but as she stared at June her brows knotted and a flush crept into her cheeks—"what—what is the matter?" she faltered.

June was already halfway up the stairs. She turned. Mrs. Villard, with out a word, followed her. Side by side the two women stood looking at the man and the dog. Mrs. Villard needed no explanation to tell her what had happened. For the first time in her married life she gave way to anger.

"You beast!" she cried, her cheeks scarlet and her eyes flashing. "This is the last! I warned you to leave this girl alone! I hate you! I could see you torn to shreds! Go on, Bouncer!"

The collie crouched at June's feet. The man rose cautiously. "You forget!" harked the man. "We have a bargain!"

Mrs. Villard lowered her eyes for a moment. "It is broken!" she suddenly flared. "You have paid me well, and I have served you well. But we were not to interfere with each other's life. You have interfered with mine. I am through!"

She stripped her hands of her rings and threw them at him. She swept from the room, followed by June and Bouncer. They heard the man telephoning for his racer at a nearby garage, and while Mrs. Villard was still packing her clothing her husband came along the hall. He stopped at the door. "I don't think you will find that your new line of work will pay you as well as being my wife," the man snarled.

Mrs. Villard sprang to the door and closed it in his face, and Villard laughed mockingly.

"He is a beast!" said Mrs. Villard and sat down as if she wished to say something more. There was the sound of wheels at the door. Mrs. Villard suddenly buried her face in her hands and cried.

CHAPTER III. MONEY! June was face to face with another angle of that eternal problem, which, it seemed to her, had complicated the entire relationship of men and women. Mrs. Villard had plainly sold herself, and the price is never great enough for any woman who has done that. Always in June's rapidly widening observation the man gave and the woman received, and her very dependence made the question of matrimony one of essential barrier and sale. It was wrong! It destroyed the very source and fount of

A Message To Women

Those of Middle Age Especially.

When you have found no remedy for the horrors that oppress you during change of life, when through the long hours of the day it seems as though your back would break, when your head aches constantly, you are nervous, depressed and suffer from those dreadful bearing down pains, don't forget that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the safest and surest remedy, and has carried hundreds of women safely through this critical period.

Read what these three women say:

From Mrs. Hornung, Buffalo, N. Y.

BUFFALO, N. Y.—"I am writing to let you know how much your medicine has done for me. I failed terribly during the last winter and summer and every one remarked about my appearance. I suffered from a female trouble and always had pains in my back, no appetite and at times was very weak.

"I was visiting at a friend's house one day and she thought I needed Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I took it and have gained eight pounds, have a good appetite and am feeling better every day. Everybody is asking me what I am doing and I recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. You may publish this letter if you wish and I hope others who have the same complaint will see it and get health from your medicine as I did."—Mrs. A. HORNUNG, 91 Stanton St., Buffalo, N. Y.

Made Me Well and Strong.

MACEDON, N. Y.—"I was all run down and very thin in flesh, nervous, no appetite, could not sleep and was weak, and felt badly all the time. The doctors said I had poor blood and what I had was turning to water. I took different medicines which did not help me, but Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound made me well and strong, and I am recommending it to my friends."—Mrs. FRED CHACE, R. No. 2, Macedon, N. Y.

The Change of Life.

BELTSVILLE, MD.—"By the use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I have successfully passed through a most trying time, the Change of Life. I suffered with a weakness, and had to stay in bed three days at a time. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound restored me to perfect health, and I am praising it for the benefit of other women who suffer as I did."—Mrs. W. S. DUVALL, Route No. 1, Beltsville, Md.

For 30 years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been the standard remedy for female ills. No one sick with woman's ailments does justice to herself if she does not try this famous medicine made from roots and herbs, it was restored so many suffering women to health.

Write to LYDIA E. PINKHAM MEDICINE CO. (CONFIDENTIAL) LYNN, MASS., for advice. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

love. Was there no remedy? June, shaken though she was by her painful experience of the morning, was strengthened in her own resolve. The answer to the problem was independent even though she suffered in the attainment of it, even though Ned suffered. Their love would be all the stronger for it, and it would be pure always.

Could she have seen Ned at that moment all her theories and all her deductions would have taken swift flight, and she would have bathed with her tears the swollen wrist which he had just freed from the rough rope that had bound it.
