Well-known Physician, Soldier and Former Member of State Legislature

Special to The Telegraph
Dallastown, April 2.—Dr. William Brooks Bigler, the oldest resident of this place as well as one of the foremost in promoting the town's interests, died yesterday from bronchial pneumonia after 10 days' sickness, at the age of 82. He is survived by his son, William M. Bigler, and two daughters, Mrs. E. J. Hess and Mrs. J. A. Thompson, all of this place, and one sister, Mrs. William Grove, of Red Lion, the last survivor of a family of eight. The funeral will be held Saturday morning at 10 o'clock at the house and proceed to New Harmony Presbyterian Church Cemetery for burial.

Dr. William Brooks Bigler was born October 6, 1833, in Fairview township, York county, and raised at what is now the Spangler mills, but then known as the Books mill, where he learned the milling trade. He became one of Cumberland county's best known teachers, and a member of the corps of teachers of the famous old White Hall academy. While at that place he began reading medicine under his brother-in-law, Dr. E. F. Porter, of Chanceford township, York county, and graduated from Jefferson Medical college, Philadelphia, in the Spring of 1856. Air Full of Bricks When Cops Arrive

When the police arrived in the Eighth ward last night in response to a riot call, they found fifty negroes beating and kicking William Jones, for making it, it is alleged, an insulting remark to a woman. The air was full of bricks, clubs, stones and other missiles. Jones was hustled to the hospital by Policemen Parson, Murphy and Fetrow in the ambulance where he had lacerations of the scalp and minor cuts and bruises of the body treated. No arrests were made.
