THERE ARE RIGHT AND WRONG WAYS OF BUILDING BIRD HOUSES

M'FARLAND PRAISES "BIRD-HOTEL" IDEA

Hole-Nesters Arriving The time of year has arrived when preparations should be made for constructing and erecting the boxes for the hole-nesting birds when they begin to arrive from the south. In thou-callouses, Foot Lumps Go the hole-nesting birds when they begin to arrive from the south. In thousands of schools throughout the country this kind of work has been begun by eager children under the teachers direction.

As yet, however, there is a very hazy conception of how to make the proper kind of bird houses and five out of six made by children are entirely worthless. A child's conception of a bird house is naturally that of a human dwelling with the door or entrance hole placed on a level with the floor. This is entirely wrong, except in a few cases. The hole should be at least six inches from the floor of the box.

The question of suitable situation for placing bird boxes should also be carefully studied by all those who desire to provide nesting places for wild birds.

Bearing on this point, special attention is called to a most useful publication recently issued by the United 'Bird Houses and How to Build Them," and written by Ned Dearborn, of the Biological Survey. The pamphlet contains many suggestions, drawings and specifications for constructing bird henry W. Henshaw, chief of the Biological Survey, Washington, D. C.

New York State High School Pupils Tour Battlefield

Special to The Telegraph
Gettysburg, Pa., April 9.—One hundred pupils from five high schools of New York State visited the battle-field to-day on an educational tour through this part of the country and started early this morning over the field to spend the entire day. They represented the Lancaster, Depew, Kenmore, Blasdell and Gowanda, New York State high schools. The trip is financed by the scholars who raise the money by holding food sales and giving entertainments.

TO IMPROVE CAMP

ON LAMBERTON DEATH

Resolutions of regret because of the death of the late James Mcormick Lamberton were unanimously adopted Lamberton were unanimously adopted yesterday afternoon by the board of and in home gardens. If Harrisburg started them officially it would probably be the first city to do so.

"But the one drawback to comfortable bird houses is the certainty of them being crowded by sparrows to the exclusion of song birds unless sparrow traps are provided. These traps are designed to catch only the sparrows and keep the houses free for the birds we should encourage."

West Fairview Juniors Give Reception to Senior Class of High School

Class of High School

West Fairview, Pa., April 9.—One of the most successful and enjoyable affairs of the West Fairview high school was celebrated last evening when the junior class held a reception for the senior class at the home of Miss Romayne Honich, in Pennsylvania avenue. The idea is an original one with the junior class and had its inception at a meeting of the class two weeks ago. The members of the senior class met at the home of their president, Miss Midired Eslinger, in Main street, and proceeded to the home in Pennsylvania avenue where the funior class and the principal of the school, Professor R. D. Reider, were in waiting. Upon entering the house the school yell was given by the entire group. The president of the junior class, Luther Eckert, made an address in which he reviewed the friendship that has existed between the classes since entering the high school and urging the continuation of the same after their school ties are severed. After singing the "Star Spangled Banner" and a recitation by Miss Edna Barmhart, a plano duet was rendered by the Misses Romayne Honich and Mary Boyer. A reading, "The Old Rose and White" was given by Vernon Hawbaker, after which Professor Reider made a short address, in which he complimented the class of 1916 for the precedent which they have established.

complimented the class of 1916 for the precedent which they have established.

The history of the senior class was read by Miss Romayne Honich and the prophecy by Miss Edna Barnhart. The Misses Mildred Eslinger, Carrie Worley and Ruth Wolf, of the class of 1915, rendered plano solos and the entire class sang their class song. An elaborate supper was served, the table decorations being orange and black, the senior colors, old rose and white, the junior colors, and Marguerites and sweet peas, the flowers of the senior and junior classes, respectively.

The seniors were each presented with a corsage bouquet of their class flower tied with their colors. The house decorations were very elaborate, being in the colors of both classes, together with their pennants.

The following were present: Professor R. D. Rider, principal of the high school; senior class, Misses Mildred Eslinger, Carrie Worley, Ruth Wolf, Priscilla Lilley, Lillian Boughter, Hazel Davis and John Langletz; junior class, Misses Edna Barnhart and Romayne Honich; Messrs, Luther Eckert, Frank Everhart, Robert Marshall, Charles Smeltzer, Joe Wachtman, Vernon Hawbaker, Also Miss Mary Boyer, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Honich.
