HOW TO BE SLIM

If you are fat and want to reduce your weight 15 or 20 pounds, don't starve and weaken your system, or think you must always be laughing at the count of your fat, but go to W. H. Kennedy or any other good druggist, and get a box of Oil of Kerosin capsules, take one after each meal and one before retiring at night.

Weight yourself once a week and note what a pleasant and reliable method this is for removing superfluous fat from any part of the body. It costs little, is absolutely harmless and I am sure a week's trial should convince anyone that it is unnecessary to be burdened with even a single pound of unsightly fat.—Advertisement.

Senator Jenkins, Philadelphia, presented a bill which will keep on the city plans of Philadelphia for five years without action plans for parks and parkways in built-up sections of that city. LEGISLATOR IS INJURED

Dr. Isaac K. Ulrich, of Lebanon County, badly hurt by a fall. Special to The Telegraph. Annville, Pa., April 20.—Dr. Isaac K. Ulrich, a member of the House of Representatives from Lebanon county, was taken to the Lebanon Sanatorium last evening for treatment for complications resulting from a fall.

In leaving the home of a patient Dr. Ulrich, who weighs 250 pounds, fell off a porch, injuring both legs and suffering greatly from shock. He will not be able to be in his seat Wednesday and his absence means the loss of one vote against the passage of the local option bill. Dr. Ulrich was elected on a liquor platform.

LOCAL OPTION BILL GOES UNCHANGED

Haggood's Effort to Change the Unit Fails to Get Much Support in the House

The Williams local option bill, which is backed by Governor Brumbaugh, went sailing through the House on second reading last night without a dissenting vote after an attempt to change the unit had been voted down. An agreement had been made by advocates of the bill and leaders of the opposition that no fight would be made on second reading and to the surprise of everyone Mr. Haggood, McKean, offered an amendment when the bill was read. This amendment provided that the units should be townships, boroughs or cities instead of counties. The McKean member argued that the county unit proposition had been acted upon in previous legislatures and asserted that there is no sentiment for a county unit. He contended that because of the larger vote in the cities and sentiment which he believed would be against local option counties would be kept "wet," whereas if the counties could vote without the cities there would be increase of "dry" territory.

Mr. Roney, Philadelphia, declared the attempted amendment was unfair because the people of the State have been considering a county unit bill. He said that all the arguments had been made on a county unit basis, and while he intended to vote against "the governor's bill," as he termed it, he considered the effort to amend to be unfair to both sides. He closed with a plea that the bill should not be changed, but go to a fair test on Wednesday.

Mr. Williams, Tioga, who introduced the bill, declared that there had been an understanding reached to vote on the bill finally on Wednesday without amendment and asked defeat of the proposed change of unit. When a viva voce vote was taken only a few members voted for the amendment and there was a loud chorus of "noes."

The bill will be on third reading at 11 a. m. Wednesday. Numerous petitions for enactment of the local option law were presented to the House by members, many of them from churches and religious organizations. Mr. Vickerman, Allegheny, presented petitions signed by 130,000 boys and girls asking for passage of the law.

FULL CREW BILL PASSES THE HOUSE

Vote on the Measure Is 135 to 68 and Voting Is Watched by Very Large Crowds

The full crew repealer, subject of the most remarkable letter writing campaign ever known in the Pennsylvania Legislature, and given two spectacular hearings, was passed finally in the House of Representatives last night by 135 to 68 and goes to the Senate for action. The result was a surprise to a good many people, who did not expect the affirmative vote to be so large, but neither the chairman of the committee and conductors who are active in the campaign mean to give up and the battle will be carried to the Senate and then to the Governor's desk.

One of the largest crowds of the session crowded into the galleries and lined the sides of the big hall to hear the debate. The speechmaking took almost two hours and was heard with close attention. Several men planned to speak, but gave it up because of the lateness of the hour when the vote was taken. The announcement by Speaker Ambler was received with applause.

The Dauphin, Cumberland and Perry men voted for the repealer, as did Mr. Welmer, of Lebanon. Dr. Ulrich was absent.

The Long Debate. Mr. Myers, Washington, opened the debate by an attack on the law as rigid and impracticable and asserting that the supervision of trains could be left to the Public Service Commission. Mr. Kuhn, Greene, also spoke for the bill, saying that the law put an unfair burden on railroads and that the railroads could be depended upon to take care of their patrons.

Mr. Palmer, Schuylkill, declared that the railroads had not established by preponderance of evidence that the law was not needed. He attacked the railroads for raising fares after being granted a freight rate increase. Petitions had been poured in on legislators from people who did not know what they were signing. The extra rates, he said, would yield $50,000,000 a year to the railroads, but cost but $2,000,000. Death rates go up and so does tonnage, said Mr. Palmer, who predicted that the repealer would throw many men out of work, and that for himself he preferred to see money spent for wages that bought food and clothing than for steel cars.

In closing he warned that if the law was repealed it would cause people to demand still more drastic laws. An extended speech against the bill was made by Mr. Maurer, Berks, who charged that the railroads had started an unheeded campaign of letters. He had received 30,000 letters and thought other members had received more. He calculated that the postage in the campaign cost $100,000 and the printing and stationery, $500,000 more. In addition there were expenses running into thousands. Mr. Maurer said the letters were not a true expression of sentiment and that the men were coerced into signing letters. The Berks man alleged that railroad lobbyists had been busy right on the floor and that he had heard some legislators had been taken on an automobile trip to Gettysburg. He ridiculed the claim that the full crew law was responsible for the business depression of the State, and the purchase power of the railroads. After some attacks on railroad corporations he made a plea for defeat of the bill on behalf of organized railroad men.

No legislator ever required Pennsylvania's railroads to adopt the telegraph or the block signal system, contended Mr. Walter Franklin, and the men managing railroads could be depended upon to safely run the properties as a matter of plain business. The cry that men would lose their jobs, he said, was raised when reaping machines came into use in the grain fields and was as old as modern industry. Repeating to Mr. Maurer, who was repeating against the repealer writer, that the bill was not a party measure.

Mr. Ehrhardt, Lackawanna, who presented the bill based in 111, declared legislators should not heed the letters which had been mailed in such large numbers. He said there are members of the present House who voted for the full crew law, but none who voted against it.

A fair play plea was made by Mr. Spangler, York, who said that a law requiring men to be paid when there was no fair return brought about an economic waste and was a monstrosity.

Mr. Rich, Clinton, declared that a good many people in his district believed the present law unnecessary. Mr. Herman, Wyoming, spoke in support of the bill and Mr. Baldwin, Delaware, sponsor for the bill, asked leave to file his remarks. The call of the roll began at 11.15 p. m. The announcement of the vote was received by a burst of handclapping.

Does Not Carry Any Increases of Salary and Meets Objections of the Governor

A bill appropriating $303,200 from the revenue derived from hunters' licenses to the State Game Commission was introduced in the House last night and sent to the committee. Two hundred and fifty-one bills were passed on first reading in the House, including 229 appropriation bills for hospitals and homes. The bills for marine schools, exempting all school district loans from taxes and providing for a State Agricultural Commission also passed in the first reading list.

The House defeated the bill providing that all horse drawn vehicles in first and second class cities shall display names and addresses of owners. The bill amending the acts relative to collateral inheritance taxes so that registers of wills shall name attorneys and employ clerks was passed finally.

The House passed finally: Increasing salaries of commissioners in counties having between 125,000 and 150,000 population from $1,800 to $3,000 annually. Authorizing State Commissioner of Health to establish a detention camp for lepers on a State forest reserve.
