ONE PENITENTIARY BACKED BY HOUSE

Hess Bill Passed After Considerable Debate in the Lower Chamber About Convicts

After much debating the House last night passed the Hess bill providing that the plans for the new Western Penitentiary in Center county shall be modified so as to provide for ultimate consolidation of the two State penal institutions. The vote, which was on a special order, was 123 to 52 after opposition had been made by Philadelphia members.

Mr. Hess, Lancaster, urged the bill because the plan was to give convicts work, mentioning the value of crops raised, the building stone, power and materials available for construction. He said that the consolidated institution could be made practically self supporting.

Mr. McNichol, Philadelphia, declared that the Eastern Penitentiary taught trades and that the expense would not be justified. Mr. Hess rejoined that the State could pay for the new institution by sale of the present buildings in the cities. Mr. Stein, Allegheny, made a plea for the bill because of the better conditions it would bring for prisoners.

By a vote of 149 yeas to but 19 nays the House defeated the bill to remove the exemption of insurance corporations with no capital stock from the act of 1913 making personal property taxable for county purposes only. Mr. Roney, Philadelphia, made a plea for the bill because the exemption deprived Philadelphia of $584,000 tax, but he was opposed by members from Erie, Allegheny and other counties.

Nissley's New Bill
A bill to amend the third class city legislation law so that a voter preempted from registering on one of the appointed days may claim the right to noon of the Saturday preceding a primary or election was presented by Mr. Nissley, Dauphin.

The House refused to recommit the bill requiring railroads to annually abolish one grade crossing on each thirty miles of track and sent back several appropriation bills. The balloon bill, recalled from the Governor, was amended by Mr. Hess, Lancaster.

The House defeated the Harper bill amending the Public Service law of 1913 to permit appeals in grade crossing cases and regulating taking of testimony. Other public service bills were postponed. Fifty-nine appropriation bills were passed on first reading and go through on second reading to-day. All vetoes by the Governor were laid on the table.

The House passed by a vote of 184 to 4 the Cox bill relating to the business of making small loans. Mr. Cox said that the bill had been drawn by Philadelphia police authorities to correct defects in the act of last session. It provided for a State license to be issued by the Banking Commission, filing of a bond and examinations while the rates of interest and fees are fixed.

Other bills passed were:
Senate bill regulating practice of veterinary medicine, surgery and dentistry.

Senate bill fixing salary of probation officers of Philadelphia municipal court.

House bills passed:
Requiring use of legal names in assessments of voters.

Providing that dogs at large in sheep fields may be killed.

The House adjourned until 10 a. m. Tuesday at 11 p. m.

Three More Vetoes by Dr. Brumbaugh

Governor Brumbaugh last night added three to his list of vetoes, sending the total for the session over thirty.

The Governor vetoed the Curry bill exempting from the present law of regulation maimure on a wharf for shipment beyond the limits of Philadelphia. The Governor said the Board of Health should retain jurisdiction.

The Governor also vetoed the Flynn bill permitting foreign companies manufacturing explosives, fire bricks and refractories, and of cheese, butter or other dairy or creamery products to hold real estate in Pennsylvania. The Governor said that the bill in effect "taxes a corporation for its existence under our laws and exempts it when it is chartered beyond our State. I do not deem this fair to our industries."

The Powell bill doubling the compensation of members of the mine inspectors' examining boards was also vetoed. The Governor said their work is being satisfactorily done and to increase the compensation "seems unwise."

Governor Brumbaugh signed these bills:

Amending the school code so that where a child under 16 years leaves its employment or is absent five days from such employment, the employer shall immediately notify the school official who issued the child's employment certificate.

Providing for a commission to codify and revise the law of decedents' estates.

Authorizing counties and municipalities to unite in providing in court-houses certain rest or waiting rooms.

Increasing salaries of deputy school superintendents from $2,000 to $3,000.

Health Conservation Given Strong Support

The House appropriations committee last night reported as committed the bill appropriating $2,375,507 to the State Department of Health for maintenance of the State tuberculosis sanatoria and dispensaries.

Appropriation bills reported out were:

Folk Institution for Feeble Minded, $845,000.

Huntingdon Reformatory, $260,000.

Brownsville Hospital, $45,000.

Panama Exposition Commission, $18,000.

State School fund, forestry department revenues, $80,814.31.

Want Convention to Come to Quaker City

A resolution requesting the Republican national committee to designate Philadelphia for the Republican National convention of 1916 was adopted by the House last night at the opening of the session. The resolution was presented by Mr. Willard, president of the State League of Republican Clubs.

The secretary of the Senate and chief clerk of the House were named as a committee to forward the resolution to the National committee.

Governor Brumbaugh and prominent men are in hearty accord with the resolution.
