ROOSEVELT EXCUSED FROM WITNESS STAND

The then district attorney wrote that the "men and the policies responsible" for the corrupt funds were not confined to any one party.

Colonel Roosevelt was excused from the stand shortly after this letter was introduced.

"How did you happen to be nominated for Vice-President in 1900?" the Colonel was asked.

"I have written more than 150,000 letters. I have made over 40,000 appointments. I have signed 30,000 laws, carrying appropriations of several billion dollars. I have made thousands of speeches."

"Did you accept after receiving the message?"

"I accepted so as to gratify President McKinley. I do not remember hearing that any of the men named by Mr. Ivin contributed to your campaign fund in 1904."

Many Other Questions The Colonel was then asked a few questions concerning the DuPont Powder Company, Northern Pacific Railroad Company, Standard Oil Company, Tennessee Coal and Iron Company, New Haven railroad and the International Harvester Company.

Recall of 1907 Panic Mr. Roosevelt told of the panic of 1907 and of two United States Steel Corporation directors coming to see him about the steel corporation taking over Tennessee. Mr. Gary, one of the directors, said if Pierpont Morgan's company took immediate control of the Tennessee, the stock of the company would immediately be enhanced in value and that the result would be the end of the company.

"Mr. Gary told me the Morgan company did not want to buy the stock as they were trying to reduce their holdings."

Colonel Roosevelt continued: "I asked them to wait until the Attorney General got over from Baltimore. They said the situation was acute and that if something wasn't done before the market opened the crash would come. I called in the newspaper men and told them of the action I had decided to take. The news was printed all over the country and the panic was stopped."

"Since you became Governor how many letters have you written?"

MRS. BERGDOLL DECLARES SON SANE

tion was filed yesterday by Congressman George S. Graham and ex-Sheriff Joseph Gilliland, acting for Charles A. Bergdoll, an older brother of Grover and the latter's guardian during his minority. It was said that Mr. Graham and Mr. Gilliland were acting for the entire Bergdoll family. This was not borne out by Mrs. Emma Bergdoll, widow of the multi-millionaire brewer, when she was told of the lunacy commission application. She was seen at the new mansion she purchased recently at Fifty-second street and Wynfield avenue.

"This is the last straw," said Mrs. Bergdoll, "and I wish you would make it emphatic that I will fight this action to the very last. I will spend my last cent to prevent them trying to make my boy out as insane. I wish you would say that I make the assertion that Grover has more sense and is better equipped mentally than either of his older brothers, Louis or Charlie. They are the ones who are behind this latest move."

"Now, my boy has been persecuted and all manner of things said about his reckless automobile driving and other things. I have kept silent and tried to smooth matters over. But this is too much. I will not stand by and countenance any attempt to railroad him to an insane asylum. The boy is all right. He is just a boy, and some of the things he has done were no more than any other boys do. If he was seen going down the street in an automobile everybody said he was speeding. I have persuaded him to give up his fast cars, and one of them I, personally, had locks and chains put on."

"This application for a lunacy commission simply is a matter of family jealousy on the part of Charlie and Louis. It only shows how far some persons will go, even to harm their own kin. I am his mother and their mother, and I am going to have something to say in this case."

HARRISBURG BILLS PASSED BY HOUSE

instigations, the maintenance of the insane, the support of the National Guard and the continuation of the work of the State in combatting tuberculosis and for other objects were passed finally in the House of Representatives yesterday. The appropriation bills passed by the Senate will be held in the committee until within ten days of the date for adjournment when they will be put through the House, the same procedure being planned for the Senate in regard to bills from the House carrying appropriations.

Conferences were held to-day by Chairman Buckman and Woodward of the legislative appropriation committees, with heads of departments of the State Government on the general appropriation bill, which it is expected will be in shape to report out next week. The bill will carry only administrative expenses for the highway, health and other departments whose general work will be provided for in separate bills.

TERRIFIC FIGHTING IN DARDANELLES REGION

make no mention of the victory along a 12-mile front which the German war office announced yesterday. Neither has it conceded the reported Austrian victory in Bukovina, on the eastern end of the front, which is said to have compelled the Russians to fall back to the border.

A Berlin news agency announces that the Austrian-Italian negotiations are progressing toward a satisfactory adjustment and that the most important points have been settled. Rome advices, however, say that Italy is unyielding and that a representative of the government has admitted no agreement is in sight. Austria is reported to have stopped all ordinary traffic on railroads along the border for the purpose of rushing in large numbers of troops.

In the Russian campaign capture by the Germans of a Polish village, is claimed, as well as the occupation of a Russian position near the Warsaw front. This is the first indication for several weeks of fighting of consequence along this line where occurred some of the most severe engagements of the war when the Germans were attempting to capture Warsaw.

Italy Reaches Agreement Petrograd attaches importance to the Russian capture of Loubnia north-east of Izsook Pass. Possession of this town, it is said, will enable the Russians to interrupt the operation of the railroad on which the Austrians have relied for moving troops along the Beskid mountains.

It is reported from Rome that Italy has reached an agreement with Great Britain and France that, if she enters the war, it will be contemporaneously with a concerted offensive movement against Germany and Austria by all their opponents. The agreement is said to provide also for the territory which Italy is to acquire in event of victory and for a new and permanent alliance between Italy and the powers of the Triple Entente.

Germans Believe They Are Justified in Using New Asphyxiating Bombs

By Associated Press

London, April 29. The Prussian military organ, the Kreuz Zeitung, and the Frankfurter Zeitung and Cologne Gazette, copies of which have been received here, admit that the Germans use new asphyxiating bombs, which they justified.

The Frankfurter Zeitung contends that it is more humane to employ such bombs, which do not cause pain and death, than to pour a hurricane of shells on a single spot to destroy and break to atoms everything living there.

JAPAN MAKES CONCESSIONS

By Associated Press

Tokio, April 29, 9:45 P. M.—Japan's new proposals to China show concessions on the very last point. They are said to omit the demand of the nonalienating of China's coastal territory. Out of consideration for Great Britain, some modification is suggested in the demand to railroad concessions in South China.

GASEOUS CLOUDS EXTEND 300 FEET INTO THE AIR

By Associated Press

Havre, France, April 29, 5 A. M.—The official Belgian committee reports violations of the laws of the Hague entered into by the Germans of asphyxiating gases. It is stated that gaseous clouds extending 300 feet into the air were carried away from the German lines by the wind. The clouds were green in color at the base, gradually shading to light yellow toward the top. Several bands of gases appear to have been used.

ALLIES DO NOT WANT GREECE

By Associated Press

London, April 29.—Telegraphing from Sofia, the "Daily Mail" correspondent says: "The Greek Government which has shown its refusal of the invitation of the entente to join the war, has now offered them Greece's definite co-operation. The allied powers, however, are not now so eager to receive demands such as offers little."

SHIP GERMAN SUBMARINES

GERMANS HELD FOR ACTS INSTITUTED BY BRITISH

By Associated Press

Berlin, April 29, via London, 2:05 a. m.—The statements made yesterday by the House of Commons and the Churchill, first lord of the admiralty, Premier Asquith and Lord Kitchener regarding the treatment of the captured crews of German submarines and Germany's retaliation of British officer prisoners in this country here as regarded in high quarters here as "well defined cases of imputing to Germany responsibility for measures which were inaugurated by Great Britain."

SMALL AREA NOW HOLDS GREATEST POSSIBILITIES

By Associated Press

London, April 29, 12:55 P. M.—The fighting at the tip of the Gallipoli peninsula, across which the British have struck their forces, and the efforts to dislodge the Germans from Steenstrate, the only point on the western bank of the Y, which the invaders have been able to hold since the recent rush in Flanders, may be isolated to-day as the areas which, although comparatively small, hold the greatest possibilities for far-reaching results.

Harrisburg Among America's Most Progressive Cities

Julian Street Missed an Interesting Chapter For His Book When He Failed to Visit the Pennsylvania Capital

JULIAN STREET has given Americans, especially those interested in the making over of our cities, much to think about in his latest volume, "Abroad at Home." It suggests Mark Twain's "Innocents Abroad" and also the American notes of Charles Dickens. It is one of the most delightful and illuminating portraits of American life and character that has been painted in many a long year. It not only sparkles with wit and humor, but there is crowded into the five hundred-odd pages more information about a number of the leading cities of the country than can be found in the search of a dozen libraries. But it must not be understood that it is a statistical and prosaic book. It is a book that distinctly states that he has avoided statistics so far as possible, and not even the bustling Chambers of Commerce and the Boards of Trade and the various statistics into his system on his way across the continent.

After reading this unusual book one is impressed with the fact that Harrisburg is no mean city. It has already set the pace for many larger communities, and that we of this city have done in the last dozen years and are doing now, in many commendable things concerning which other cities are just getting awake. As the famous author observes: "There are communities which are strong, self-confident, aggressive; others are shy and inert. There are cities which are cultivated, others which crave 'culture' but take 'culture' like someone drinking from the wrong bottle; and still others almost unaware as yet that esthetic things exist. Some cities seem to fairly smile at you; others are grim and wicked and full of ill or oppressed with business troubles. And there are dowdy cities and fashionable cities—the latter resembling one another in the direction of the same cities seem to have an active sense of duty, others none."

In his trip across the continent Mr. Street declares that "people have studied the things we are doing, and what to write and what to leave out. As for statistics," he adds, "I have been loaded with them to the point of purchasing another trunk. I intend to use them as sparingly as possible and every time I use them I shall groan." Thus it was and in this spirit that the famous writer proceeded on his trip and that in the several cities he visited between New York and San Francisco. We can only regret that he did not visit Harrisburg. He would have found here many pleasant things about which to write and much that would have undoubtedly opened his eyes to the public spiritedness of our people.

Commenting on Buffalo, for instance, he was reminded of an earlier reflection "that railway stations should express their own feeling and tell the thought is painful. If that city were in fact expressed by its present railway station, people would not get off there voluntarily; they would have to be put off. Aiding this reflection reminds us once more of the conditions surrounding the entrance to the Pennsylvania Railroad station in Harrisburg. This is a fine example of the magnificent and fronting on the principal business thoroughfare, the approach to the station is anything but what it should be. Perhaps with the turn of the business tide these little red brick buildings on the Market street fringe of the railroad property will be removed, allowing the creation of a splendid plaza and making a noble entrance to the station. We don't want some such writer as the brilliant Street to some time visit Harrisburg and set it with this comment: "The old station still stands—at least it was standing when I left Buffalo, for I was very careful not to bump it with my suitcase."

There is scarcely an important city in Europe where the idea expressed in this humorous American writer is not expressed in splendid railroad buildings and ornate environment. The first impression a visitor obtains of any city is likely to be lasting. Harrisburg will hope that the spirit which has pervaded this city in its important public improvement will permeate even more than ever the railroad officials who have, generally speaking, co-operated in the city's advancement.

Excuse Some Cities Give Still further along in his discussion of Buffalo Mr. Street speaks of the more abundant cities which give as their excuse for not doing this or that commendable thing: "No, we haven't this, and we haven't that, but this is a safe town in time of financial panic." "These cities," says the writer, "are not worrying about financial panics which may come here, some day, but are busy with the things which are wrong with his town," says Mr. Street, "and he will probably attack you; and as for Los Angeles!—Such a question in Los Angeles would mean the calling out of the national guard, the Chamber of Commerce, the Rotary Club and all the boosters (which is to say the entire population of the city), a declaring of martial law, speaking by summary court-martial and your immediate execution."

And that in a spirit which largely controls in Harrisburg to-day. "Time was when citizens of Harrisburg were almost ashamed that they lived here, but a few years have changed all this and now few can be found who will not tell with all possible pride of the great improvement which has taken place in a little more than a decade.

One of the things which impressed the continental tourist particularly was the great civic center plan of Cleveland, and this reminds us of our possibilities in this direction. Harrisburg has already made possible a great civic center through practical co-operation with the State. With the final treatment of the Capitol Extension area a civic center that would be dignified and entirely feasible might easily be established. We already have the Technical high school on one side of the proposed park and the Central high school which faces on the same park in North street. We have also the new Y. W. C. A. building, the proposed consistory building at North and Capital streets, and in the course of years the public activities of the city might be centered in the Capitol district.

Mr. Street refers to the great advantages of the water life of Cleveland and Detroit, and should he visit Harrisburg in the future he will undoubtedly say something nice about what he will then see here.

Harmonious Development Speaking of the municipal group plan, it will not be forgotten that Harrisburg has already its Planning Commission, and the educational work is going forward so that our own people will learn the value of harmonious building and development. In Chicago Mr. Street discovered that the great civic plan there was getting city-wide comprehension through lectures before the schools and clubs. Harrisburg has already had more or less of public education in this way and should now have in our schools and public places still further education along these lines.

Those who have not yet enjoyed Mr. Street's comments and observations have a treat in store for them. Harrisburg is planning to take over the planning of still more beautiful towns and cities in the future. Fortunately for Harrisburg, the awakening of 1901 has saved this city much in the way of mistaken development. Our splendidly paved streets, the filtration of our water supplies, the great park system and the enlightened character of our public improvement campaign has given this city a high place among the municipalities of the United States.

Terms Under Which Italy Will Fight on Side of Allies Are Made Public

By Associated Press

Rome, via Paris, April 29, 11:30 A. M.—From news agencies gathered with the war situation as it affects Italy there was obtained to-day information which indicates that the government has arrived at an understanding with Great Britain and France concerning the terms upon which Italy will enter the war, if she eventually decides to do so. This information, which is being gathered from men who have made a close and careful study of the situation. The agreement is described as follows: "First, a provision for concerted military operations, and the present front of hostilities during the present stage of desultory trench warfare, which would enable Germany and Austria to concentrate a large part of their forces against her. She will time her blow contemporaneously with a general effort by all the opponents of central empires now in the field.

"Second, an undertaking concerning the territory to be awarded to Italy in the event of victory. "Third, a provision that after the war an alliance shall be formed between Italy and the present triple entente of Great Britain, France and Russia."

placed on the engine, which will drive the machinery in the new mills. The new wheel is ten feet in diameter, a built of boiler plates riveted together and is said to be the largest wheel of the kind in any steel plant. The big gas engine which will be used in the operation of the new blast furnace, yesterday was given its initial test. This is said to be the largest engine of its type ever built. The Machine Company, of Pittsburgh, witnessed the test, which was said to be successful.

The erection of these new mills means the passing of a number of antiquated mills at the local plant. No. 2 slab mill was abandoned two weeks ago and is now being dismantled. The slab will go out of business when the new mill begins to operate and the 20-inch structural mill at the Merchant Mill department will be abandoned.

The voting is light throughout the city and but little interest is being taken in the election. The Republican organization is supporting the loan proposition and it no doubt will be approved.
