

Clears Skin—Stops All Blood Troubles

Goes Right Down to Where the Germs Start From.

The action of S. S. S. the famous blood purifier, is not in the skin. It is but natural that blood impurities should seek an outlet. Water, gas, oil and nearly all the active products of nature seek the surface. It seems to be a cosmic law. Even our thoughts will undertake to find expression. And so whatever we take into our system will eventually come out changed in form, converted into some other substance, but constituting always either waste or that which has served its useful purpose and must be eliminated. And the skin is the principal avenue for escape of certain acids or poisons. If the skin and blood be healthy, these wastes pass off as vapor or perspiration. But impure blood leads the skin into eczema, pimples, acne, rheumatism, rash, fever blisters, blood risings and other eruptions. And S. S. S. has been found the very best, safest and most effective remedy to purify the blood and thus restore the skin to clear and attractive health. Get a bottle today of any druggist, but be emphatic. Do not allow anyone to hand you a substitute. Wrapped around the bottle is an interesting circular that tells you how to obtain skillful advice free on any subject concerning the blood.

S. S. S. is prepared only by The Swift Specific Co., 113 Swift Bldg., Atlanta, Ga. Look for this name on the package.

WHAT DYSPEPTICS SHOULD EAT

A PHYSICIAN'S ADVICE
"Indigestion and practically all forms of stomach trouble are, nine times out of ten, due to acidity; therefore stomach sufferers should, whenever possible, avoid eating food that is acid in its nature, or which has a chemical action in the stomach develops acidity. Unfortunately, such a rule eliminates most foods which are pleasant to the taste as well as those which are rich in blood, flesh and nerve building properties. This is the reason why dyspeptics and stomach sufferers are usually so thin, emaciated and lacking in that vital energy which can only come from a well fed body. For the benefit of those sufferers who have been obliged to exclude from their diet all starchy, sweet or fatty food, and are trying to keep up a miserable existence on glutinous and bland diet, suggest that you should try a meal of any food or foods which you may like, in moderate amount, immediately after a tepid magnesium in a little hot or cold water. This will neutralize any acid which may be present, or which may be formed, and instead of the usual feeling of uneasiness and fullness, you will find that your food agrees with you perfectly. Bismarcked magnesium is doubtless the best food corrective and antacid known. It has no direct action on the stomach; but by neutralizing the acidity of the food contents and thus removing the source of the acid irritation which inflames the delicate stomach lining, it does more than could possibly be done by any drug or medicine. As a physician, I believe in the use of medicine whenever necessary, but I must admit that I cannot see the sense of dosing an inflamed and irritated stomach with drugs, instead of getting rid of the acid—the cause of all the trouble. Get a little bismarcked magnesium from your druggist, eat what you want at your next meal, take some of the bismarcked magnesium as directed above, and see if I'm not right."—Advertisement.

Runaway June

By George Randolph Chester and Lillian Chester. Copyright 1915, by Serial Publication Corporation.

"We were rehearsing, Mr. Warner," explained Blye quietly. "Yes, Ned!" June was crying, but, though Ned saw her, he paid no attention to her. "We were to take the actual picture the next morning in the studio, and we were working out some scenes. It may help you if I tell you that Mr. Cunningham is the pursuing villain in 'The Runaway Bride.' I have taken the liberty several times of showing Mr. Cunningham how I wished scenes enacted. I also play the deserted groom." And his black eyes flashed. Ned laughed, but there was no mirth in it. June shrank under his contemptuous gaze, and her mother patted gently the hand which lay in her arm. "I'll swear it was not a moving picture rehearsal the night you dragged my wife out of the New York cafe and took her on board your yacht." "You bet it wasn't." It was the heavy T. J. Edwards, and he was bobbing his round head vigorously. "A contract is a contract. When your wife saw you she wouldn't go on board the yacht; she wouldn't finish the pictures; she couldn't do anything. My heavens, man, do you know I had already spent $75,000 on this feature? And if this girl quit we couldn't get another one to take her place, could we? So we dragged her on board the yacht." And he glared his defiance at all of them. Money was money. Ned Warner had been sitting on the edge of a table. Now he sprang to his feet, and his eyes flashed. He caught his wife by the wrist and pulled her away from her mother.

as was the gayest of the gay. The eyes of the white mustached Orin Cunningham twinkled incessantly, and heavy T. J. Edwards sat with a smile of intense satisfaction on his thick lips. The feature was finished without an accident, and the first of the films was fine. Bobbie Blethering and Blye took an instant liking to one another. The old feud was entirely forgotten. "They're good people, Ned," whispered the happy June. "And they were so good to me!" Ned beamed down at June with delight in every inflection of her voice, in every turn of her beautiful head, in every fleeting expression of her lovely countenance, in every glance of her lustrous eyes. Quite forgotten was all the tearing strain of these past days; quite gone were all his bitterness and hate. In her wedding gown, which she had donned once again, June was a vision of beauty. Up rose Gilbert Blye at the head of the table. In his hand he held a small shining object. He made a wonderful speech about it, a speech full of wit and sentiment and good will and things which made everybody happy, and with an extraordinary flourish of words he presented that watch to the little runaway bride. Amid whacking applause the little runaway bride made a blushing speech of acceptance; then there was a whis-

June Was a Vision of Beauty.

"Here's one thing you can't explain." He dropped her wrist, and she stood swaying with half closed eyes, but there was no mercy in him. "I saw you rush from a house in a filmy stage costume." There was a strained tensi in the group which surrounded them. John Moore started to come to his daughter, but Ned fiercely waved him back. "It was moving picture work. Very well. But tell me this—how could any girl who could not endure the humiliation of accepting money from her husband consent to appear on the street for any purpose in such a costume?" There was a deathlike stillness among them, broken by a wild sobbing from the little runaway bride. "Ned!" she cried. "Oh, Ned!" And she clung upon his arm. He held coldly rigid. "Forgive me! You can't know how I've suffered! I was so mistaken, so wrong! I thought I had such a wonderful ideal. When I need no longer look to you for money, I was to return to you, and we were to walk hand in hand through life in that love which can be founded only upon mutual respect, which asks love for love and nothing more. I meant our love to be without a flaw. No man can understand the hurt to a woman when after marriage she becomes absolutely dependent on his charity."

"Why, June!" The small, mild voice of Mrs. Moore, and she stepped forward with deep concern on her gentle face. "What is all this talk about a husband's charity?" And she turned with wonder to Father Moore. "A husband makes only one gift to his wife, and that is at the altar. After that everything he has is hers, if people will only remember the marriage service. Your ring is a symbol of it. 'With all my worldly goods I thee endow.'" Gilbert Blye clutched his black Vandyke and looked at the ceiling; then he smiled suavely. "That's a great idea! I'll work it into the feature!" But no one heard him. There was an audible snuffle from Iris Blethering, and Tommy Thomas was looking intensely sentimental. "And you, my son!" She turned with surprising severity on Ned Warner. "Have you forgotten that you promised to love, cherish and protect my daughter?" There was a cry from the little runaway bride and a sob from Ned Warner as, oblivious to all around them, they clasped each other in a solemn embrace.

From that loving clasp the beautiful wife of Ned Warner raised a radiantly happy countenance to her mother. "And I have no problem," she laughed, and then she cried. And Iris Blethering and Tommy Thomas sobbed together and formed a lasting friendship. And everybody was happy, including Marie and Officer Dowd, who had become conscious at the mention of the marriage service, and Aunt Debby, who was praising her Redeemer in an unconsciously audible voice, and Bouncer, who was leaping and barking indiscriminately for the benefit of everybody and anybody. "Where are they? Where are they?" screamed a shrill voice, and Honoria Blye burst into the group. Gilbert Blye walked serenely over to meet her.

"You may go home to your parrot, Honoria," he advised her quite happily. Then there came a cold sobriety in his black eyes. "You can't interfere with my business this time, as you have done ever since we were married, and you can no longer assume a dominance over me with your money." Suddenly the glow returned to his black eyes, and he looked to June and smiled his suave smile. "I have worked out my independence."

CHAPTER III. THERE was a gay supper party at the New York cafe that night. The Blye Stock company entered, and their departing star and her friends. Ned Warner sat beside his happy June. There seemed an extra affection tonight between Father and Mother Moore and Bobbie and Iris Blethering, and Tommy Thom-

A Plain Talk on Gibson Stone Lined Refrigerators

GIBSON REFRIGERATORS

To prove and convince you the "Gibson" is superior to all other makes, it is positively necessary to show you its construction and to tell you the details. This can only be accomplished by your visiting the department and having the various sizes and styles of "Gibson" Refrigerators demonstrated. A household necessity of this value should be bought very carefully, hence give us the opportunity to prove to you your money buys the most value when it is invested in a "Gibson."

THE GIBSON LASTS LONGER

The life of the ordinary Refrigerator averages only about five years. The life of the Gibson Refrigerator is fully TWENTY-FIVE years. This is a fact which has been proved hundreds of times by people who bought Gibson Refrigerators a generation ago and are still using them.

"IT'S SO EASY TO CLEAN"

Food cannot be kept pure and healthful and wholesome if the inside of the Refrigerator is mouldy or in any way tainted with dirt. Wood, or rough metal, or hard-to-get-at corners hold the dirt and increase the labor. And that is just why we make the Gibson Sanitary Refrigerator with its inside parts ALL REMOVABLE. You can take them out in a minute, wash them thoroughly, clean the smooth porcelain walls, and in another minute have every part back in place. There is no spot where dirt can possibly hide or stick.
