LUSITANIA SURVIVOR TELLS GRAPHIC STORY OF VESSEL'S DEATH

Queenstown, via London, May 8, 3:45 P. M.—Clinton Bernard, of New York city, one of the first cabin survivors of the Lusitania, had this to say of his experience.

"Although it was a tremendous shock to everybody, there was not as much excitement as one would expect in such a catastrophe. It occurred so suddenly we had not much time to realize what was happening. When I saw the ship was sinking I jumped overboard just as I was. I had no life-raft, but I picked up a bit of float-wood. Finally I got to an upturned boat and clung to that. Later, with some others who had swam to this boat, we managed to right it. Then we climbed in and started to rescue as many people as we could reach.

"The German submarine made no attempt to save anybody. We saw it for a moment just before it dove. "The first torpedo struck us between the first and second funnels. The Lusitania shook and settled down a bit. Two other torpedoes quickly followed and soon finished our ship. Four or five of our lifeboats went down with her and the tremendous suction as she went down engulfed dragged many people down also.

"The noise of the explosion was not very great. The first torpedo burst with a big bang and we knew that we were doomed. We had floated about two hours in our small boats before the first rescue steamers arrived. Previous to this time some small shore boats and fishing smacks came along and helped us in."

After a short, sharp struggle with the swift current, he succeeded in saving the lad. After rescuing the lad, Oves and his companions turned him over to a brother without learning his name.

WHOLE PLAZA TO BE PAVED, BOWMAN PLANS

Superintendent of Public Safety Announces Further Details For Treating Promenade

Further details of the plan of treatment for the plaza which City Commissioner Harry F. Bowman will build along the river front in the rear of the pumping station were announced today by the superintendent of public safety.

The plaza will be formed by the construction of a 240-foot-long concrete wall, which will reach a height of fifteen feet above the level of the river walk. At both ends the wall will curve in a graceful sweep to the banks in such a way as to satisfactorily retain the earth and at the same time present an effective appearance. Behind this wall the space will be filled in where necessary with ashes. From the balustrade to the eastern edge of the present upper walk which now winds past the pumping station the promenade space of the plaza will be paved with bricks. At first Mr. Bowman had only intended paving the walk in the plaza, but he has decided to change his original scheme by improving the whole space in order to make it more attractive to promenaders in wet weather.

East of the present walk, however, there will be a place for the ashes from the pumping station firerooms, but this will be nicely screened from the view of strollers on the plaza by a fringe of hedge or shrubbery. Mr. Bowman is also planning an effective decorative scheme for the shrubbery within the plaza enclosure.

Travelers intending to embark on the Atlantic voyage are reminded that a state of war exists between Germany and her allies, and Great Britain and her allies, that the zone of war includes the water adjacent to the British Isles; that in accordance with formal notice given by the Imperial German Government, vessels flying the flag of Great Britain, or of any of her allies, are liable to destruction in those waters and that travelers sailing in the war zone on ships of Great Britain or her allies do so at their own risk.

The above is the notice the German embassy inserted in the papers before the Lusitania sailed.

CODDLING THE STOMACH

The So-Called "Scientific" Feeding.

In this twentieth century of advancement, people are too apt to listen to new theories and put into practice new-fangled notions of feeding. Not only do adults follow so-called "scientific systems," but they cram down the mouths of their children such scientific so-called foods that require no exercise of the digestive organs, and the children are apt to become fragile and their stomachs too weak to take in strengthening food and be able to assimilate it. This is a hothouse condition that no man can afford to neglect.

The muscles of the stomach require exercise just as any other muscles of the body; neglect them with too much care and inaction and you raise a dyspeptic. Use a tonic made of medicinal herbs which will stimulate the stomach into greater activity—a remedy which will do this is one which has stood the test of time and is permitted for over forty years, containing no alcohol or narcotic. We refer to Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery.

It arouses the little muscular fibers into activity and causes the gastric juices to thoroughly mix with the food you eat, simply because it supplies the stomach with pure, rich blood. It's weak, impure blood that causes stomach weakness. Get good blood through the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, and you will have no more indigestion.

Sick people are invited to consult Dr. Pierce by letter, free. All correspondence is held as strictly private and sacredly confidential.
