War between Italy and the cen-tral empires is now regarded in Rome as almost unavoidable. There is said to be only a slender chance that an agreement will be reached. Military agreement will be reached. Military preparations are being pushed vigorously and political opposition to war apparently has largely died away. In Paris it is rumored Germany and Austria have declared war on Italy, but so far as is known there is no basis for such reports. A Milan dispatch gives what purports to be an offer of territorial concessions from Austria, described as unacceptable to Italy inasmuch as it excludes Triest and Iştria.

Austria, described as unacceptable to Italy inasmuch as it excludes Triest and Istria.

Heavy fighting has been in progress on the Galipoli peninsula during the last few days, although accounts of the results are in complete contradiction. An official statement issued at Constantinople says French and British troops made four attacks near Avi Burnu on Sunday but were driven back with heavy losses. It is asserted three battalions or about 3,000 men, were annihilated. A press dispatch from Athens to London says that the alliess made important advances on Friday and Saturday and that the Turkish losses in the fighting were estimated at 45,000 men.

Russ Claim Victories

Victory in several engagements along the Carpathians is reported in an official Russian statement. Dispatches to Switzerland says the Russians have begun a strong offensive at Tarnow, reported to have been captured last week by the Austrians, as well as in the Baltic provinces to the north. German and Austrian accounts of important successes in these regions have not been qualified.

SEND NOTE TO EMPEROR ON LUSITANIA INCIDENT

Intimated in Washington That Usual Form of Correspondence Will Be Abandoned and That Demands of American Government Will Be Forwarded to Kaiser Personally; Executive Says His Philadelphia Speech Did Not Refer to Disaster Off Irish Coast

Washington, May 11.—President Wilson said to-day that his speech in Philadelphia last night was not a declaration of policy in reference to the Lusitania disaster; that he was not thinking of any such matter but of the newly naturalized Americans in his audience.

The President used the expression that he was thinking of the "Cain" some people were trying to raise.

The President said he would make a decision on the policy to be followed in the Lusitania case as soon as had all the elements in mind. For the present he had nothing to add, he said, to his statement of last Saturday night which was that he was considering "rever carnestly but very calmit the right course of action to pursue and that he knew the country expected him to act with deliberation as well as with firmmess."

No Decision Reached

The President made it clear that he was expressing a personal attitude and not referring to any specific case. That led to the belief in many quarters that the President had not reached a decision in the Lusitania case and was speaking his personal elelings as to the ideal the United States should have in this situation as well as other phases of the worldwide war. It was taken that he was the states should have in this situation as well as other phases of the worldwide war. the White House where it was expected President Wilson would give some Indication to his advisers what course the United States will pursue in the present emergency. To-day's Cabinet meeting is the first to be held since the Lusitania disaster.

President Wilson returned early to-day from Philadelphia where he addressed a gathering of naturalized citizens last night. His speech was being widely discussed here to-day. While the President did not refer specifically to the situation brought about by the sinking of the Lusitania some thought that he intimated that while the United States would remain at peace, an endeavor would be made to show Germany from the American viewpoint that her action was wrong. One of his advisers said the President's chief aim would be humanity first, no matter how vigorous the course adopted.

Speculation Continues

Speculation as to what will be the policy of the United States still continued to-day. President Wilson, in the seclusion of the White House, has for the past three days been giving constant attention to the matter realizing that American people wish a speedy determination as to what action will be taken.

Secretary Bryan and other officials of the State Department to-day awaited receipt of the German Government's note expressing its deepest sympathy at the loss of American lives in the Lusitania disaster, but placing the responsibility upon the British Government's "plan of starving the civilian population of Germany." Unofficial advices said that the communication had been cabled to the German embassy here. Secretary Bryan had already received a communication from Count Bernstorff, the German embassador which, he said, he regarded as an expression of regret from the ambassador himself.
