The Dream

James Jones, twenty-five, in good health and spirits, with a fair position, a wife and baby—dreamed.

In his dreams he saw riches come rapidly. Among other things an automobile entered his mind—a limousine, large and luxurious.

But though thrifty and successful, time dragged on and a limousine was still far away—still in dreams.

The Reality

In the Classified Ads of his favorite paper one day he saw an ad—an automobile ad. It told of a good, well-preserved car of late model and well-known make.

Investigation developed the fact that it could be bought for small cost and maintained at a cost within his reach.

James Jones now rides in his Classified Classified Ad automobile and Telegraph Classified Ad have made the practical part of his dream come true. SEE CLASSIFIED PAGE.

BEAUTIFUL WEDDING HOME OF BRIDE

Miss Elizabeth Ellenberger and Joseph Griffin to Be Married This Evening

One of the prettiest weddings of the year will take place this evening at 7 o'clock at the beautiful suburban residence of Professor and Mrs. Charles Alfred Ellenberger, 3207 Riverside Drive, when their daughter, Miss Elizabeth Ellenberger, is united in marriage with Joseph D. Griffin, of Boston. The ceremony will be performed in the presence of many friends of the young people by the Rev. Dr. John D. Fox, pastor of the Grace Methodist Church, of this city. Mrs. Bent Weaver will play the bridal chorus from "Lohengrin" as a professional for the bride party and the Mendelssohn wedding march as a recessional, with "Elsa's Dream" softly during the service. A reception and supper with Scott, of the Country Club, catering, will follow.

The bride, who will be given in marriage by her father, will wear an exquisite costume of white gros de l'indes, with full short skirt caught up at the hem with orange blossoms. Two rows of deep ivory lace are full on in deep scallops caught with orange blossoms in overskirt effect. The bodice is of lace and tulle with short sleeves, a bouquet of valley lilies, orchids and bride roses, with lace ruffle.

Mrs. Chester J. Payne, of Wichita, Kan., will be matron of honor for her sister, Margaret Miller. The bridesmaids, wearing dresses of creamy charmeuse, entraine, with garnitures of pearls and princess lace enhancing the draperies of pink chiffon. Miss Margaret Miller, of this city, the bridesmaid, will wear a dainty frock of white chiffon and lace with touches of pink. Both bridesmaids will have bouquets of pink snapdragons, sweet peas tied with broad pink ribbons to white shepherdess crooks. Gordon D. Hoopie, of New York city, a fraternity brother of Mr. Griffin, will be best man and the groomsmen will be William Richardson, of Reading.

Appointments of Pink Spring flowers and shrubbery decorate the home, color scheme of pink prevailing. The bride's table, laid for ten, has a centerpiece of pink Killarney roses, and snapdragons with orange blossoms relieving the pink. The place cards are bride and bridegroom figures. The wedding journey to New England coast resorts will be followed by a stay in Boston, where Mr. Griffin is claimant for an annuity for the Fidelity and Casualty Company of New York. Mr. Griffin is a native of Greensboro, N. C., and a son of Mrs. Edward Griffin of that city. He attended the Fork Union Military Academy of North Carolina and Pennington Seminary, New Jersey. He is an Alpha Chi Rho college fraternity man and member of the New York State Bar.

Miss Ellenberger is a graduate of the Harrisburg high school and Syracuse University and has won several tennis championships both at college and in this city events. Among the out-of-town guests here for the wedding are Mr. and Mrs. William Wills, Miss Anna Wills, Mr. and Mrs. Stiles Duncan, Joseph Hawley, Mr. and Mrs. James Wilson and Dr. and Mrs. Reuter, all of Duncan; Miss Ruth Ryder, Norristown; Miss Ruth Hoopie and Gordon Hoopie, New York city; William Richardson, York; Mrs. Margaret Miller, Chester; John Snyder, of Reading; Mrs. Chester J. Payne, Wichita, Kan., and Mr. and Mrs. C. Landis Rudy, of West Philadelphia.

The Plainest Girl Can Be Good-Looking
There is economy in good looks. There is every girl to be good-looking and every woman owes it to herself to be as attractive as possible.

It is unfortunate that all women are not born beautiful, but nearly all can acquire good looks. The plain girl not only must take care in the selection of her clothes, but give special attention to her hair—thin, wispy, dull and faded locks will destroy half the beauty of even a pretty face. If your hair is not beautiful, lacking that enviable softness, lustre and fluffiness, or is falling out, full of dandruff, too dry, by all means use Parisian Sage, an inexpensive liquid tonic, easily obtained at any drug counter. Simply rub Parisian Sage well into the scalp. It will go right to the hair roots, nourish and stimulate, and cause the hair to grow strong and luxuriant. It removes all dandruff, thoroughly cleanses the hair of dust and excess oil, and makes it appear twice as abundant. Parisian Sage is a scientific tonic that gives the hair just what is needed to make it fluffy, soft and gloriously radiant and pretty hair will surely increase the charm and beauty of even the plainest girl.

MISS ILLMAN HEARD IN STORY HOUR TALK

Last Meeting of Story Telling Club Will Be Held May 25

A large and appreciative audience had the pleasure of hearing Miss Adelaide Illman in a "Story Hour Lecture" at the Public Library last evening. Miss Illman profusely illustrated with stories her subject, "The Uses of the Story to Portray Types of Character." Miss Illman said that "On the images presented in childhood depend the spirit and character of the later life. If the child thinks small images he will be small in his manhood. To purge the child's mind of small images used the stories that will make small views of life appear ridiculous to him." To illustrate this point she used an animal story and "A Little Girl's Trip into the World," the goal of which was the kindergarten. These, famous in the old Greek myths, was used as a type of hero who conquers because he realizes that to become worthy of the name he must do hard tasks. To prepare the boy for life, Miss Illman used an unusually fine story of David, the ideal boy shepherd who loved and protected his sheep, and in nature discerned God, the great Shepherd, after whom as the "shepherd king" he fashioned his life.

"Raggybug" was used to portray an animal heroine, and to show how a baby learned caution.

The native story of the Swiss boy Ewald, who sold his pet goat for a buttercack showed that often the price of self pleasure is too dear.

To show how nature stories can be used to mold the plastic character of the child, Miss Illman told the story of "The Boy Who Listened."

Sometimes mortals must appeal for aid to the supernatural beings. To prove this the audience was told an exceptionally fine story, "Old Pipes and the Dryad."

To dispel a fear that may haunt the child's mind by laughing it away, Miss Illman told about "The Boy Who Was Scared of Dying."

Hans Christian Andersen's "Brave Tin Soldiers" was given as the type instance of all the traits of character essential to the ideal hero.

The audience was won with Miss Illman's quiet, sympathetic, genial manner, versatile selection and fine interpretation power. Those who heard her cannot help telling a story better.

The final meeting of the Story Telling Club will be held Tuesday evening, May 25, when a fine program will be given, which may be enjoyed by anyone who likes to hear stories.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Payne and Mr. and Mrs. Philip T. Meredith were dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis E. Sadler, at Carlisle, Monday evening.

John P. Miller, of Frederickburg, is the guest of his daughter, Mrs. Geo. Eberly, 1356 Vernon street.

CAREFUL DELIBERATION TAFT'S IDEA; ROOSEVELT FAVORS HASTY ACTION

STAND BY PRESIDENT, DELIBERATION TIME IS ADVICE OF TAFT PAST, DECLARES T. R.

In Address to Members of Union League He Praises Work of Wilson Says U. S. Should Cut Off Commerce Relations With Germany in 24 Hours

GERMANY'S ACTS INHUMAN REVIEWS WILSON'S SPEECH

"Our Honor Is Safe With Him," Says Taft of Chief Executive Doubts If Policy of Blood and Iron Can Meet Policy of Milk and Water

Philadelphia, May 12.—Former President Taft at the fifth anniversary dinner of the Union League last night, when he addressed 300 of Philadelphia's most representative citizens, made the following statement concerning the Lusitania affair and the diplomatic crisis with Germany: "We are at a critical stage in our foreign relations, growing out of the great European war. The belligerents on both sides have announced policies with respect to the principles and rights of neutrals that are contrary to heretofore accepted principles of international law. "Germany has not only announced, but enforced, contrary to the laws of war, a policy in her naval warfare by submarines and torpedoes, against the unarmored commercial ships of her enemy that is inhuman, not only to the defenseless subjects of her enemy, but to the peaceful citizens of the United States traveling on board such ships, and entitled to her aid and rescue before such ships are sunk. "This naturally arouses our deepest indignation. It was done in the face of our protest, against the assertion of any such declaration, and our declaration that we would hold Germany to the strictest accountability for the loss of property or of lives.

Method of Redress
"Now, what has been done? Since men, respondent to what they believe their patriotic duty, demand extreme measures as the only method of enforcing that accountability, is war the only method of making a nation accountable? Let us look into our own history. England connived at the sinking of the Lusitania, and we were not to kill our sailors. We protested, and what did we do then? We held her strictly accountable in the Geneva Conference. Was not our honor as much preserved by this method as it would have been had we declared war?"

I agree that the inhumanity of the circumstances in the case now presses us on, but in the heat of our indignation, is this the best time to act, when action involves such momentous consequences and means untold loss of life and treasure and brings us things worse than war, but delay does not calm deliberation cannot change the situation or minimize the effect of what we finally conclude to do.

With the present condition of the war in Europe, our action, if it is to be extreme, will not lose efficiency by giving time to the people, whose war it will be, to know what they are facing.

"Under our Constitution the President conducts our foreign affairs until Congress finds it necessary to declare war. Upon him rests the responsibility in such a crisis. If he were to yield to the cry of the extremists and summon Congress to take extreme measures, he would have great influence in the case under such a provocation. Indeed, the impulse to such action has usually been stronger with Congress than with the Executive.

"Consider the attitude of President McKinley in the Spanish war. See how he held back and how Congress forced him on. Now, it may be that a series of laws of humanity and violations of the laws of war, to our national detriment, and against our citizens, may force us on and lead our people to believe that whatever the cost it will be to us, to know what they are facing.

"But we must bear in mind that if we have a war it is the people, the men and women, fathers and mothers, brothers and sisters, who must pay the lives and money the cost of them, and, therefore, they should not be hurried into the needed sacrifices until it is clear that they wish it and know what they are doing when they wish it.

Will Act as Brake
"For this reason every President with a respect for his oath and the rule of the people will, in moments of popular excitement and just indignation pointing to war, act as a brake; will caution against haste; will hunt for some escape from the horrors of war consistent with dignity and patriotism, knowing that if no other alternative exists Congress in its constitutional power, after time for deliberation has disclosed the real popular opinion, will act.

"A demand for war that cannot survive the passion of the first days of public indignation and will not endure the test of delay and deliberation by all the people is not one that should be looked to.

"Look back at our history and answer me, if the resistance of Presidents to the demand of extremists for war has not earned for them the gratitude of their country. Is it remembered now to the discredit of Washington that he kept us out of war with England; or of McKinley, that he struggled so hard, against just such warlike expressions as we hear now, to keep us out of the war with Spain.

Heavy Task For President
"The task of the President is a heavy one. He is our President. He is acting for the whole country. He is anxious to find a way out of the present difficulty without war.

"Before party, before ourselves, we of this league are for our country. That is what he is working for. Shall we give you an internationalist? He will be hindered by our count.

"He will not surrender our country's rights. It may be necessary that for a hundred lives and the method of their taking we should lose thousands and hundreds of thousands of lives. The national honor and interest may ultimately demand it, but that is not the way to be pursued. Weighing the consequences will not prejudice the justice of our cause or the opportunity to vindicate it, and that, then, the president may be counted on to secure.

"It is the people's cause, not his alone, and he does well, when quick action is of no critical importance, to allow excitement and to await the regular and studied action of the people's representatives.

"Let us stand by him in this juncture. Our honor is safe with him. Let us give you an internationalist? He will be hindered by our count.
