Governor Signs the Whitaker Bill in the Presence of Its Chester Sponsor

The Whitaker bill providing for the State Commission of Agriculture to take the place of the State Department of Agriculture became a law last night when it was signed by Governor Brumbaugh in the presence of Representative Samuel A. Whitaker, of Chester county.

Governor Brumbaugh said today that he would not make the appointments for some time as he desired to get the best men to carry out his plans for making the department of agriculture a great force in the State's affairs. The Governor is much interested in the new scheme for the department and arrangements were made today to make the appropriation for the conduct of the department conform to the terms of the bill.

It is assumed in London that sweeping changes will be made in forming the coalition government.

A dispatch from Mytilene says British troops have been landed by the allies on the Asiatic side of the Dardanelles near the entrance to the straits. The Turks are now said to possess an abundant supply of shells after having been threatened for some time with a shortage.

Situation in East Never So Grave as at Present

By Associated Press

London, May 19.—"Never since the war began has any one day brought so grave a bulletin as that received last night," says the Petrograd correspondent of The Post.

"On this occasion, for the first time since hostilities opened, I failed to find any indications that suggest a promising set-off to what the future seems something like a collapse of the Russian forces. Over a front extending some 200 miles the Germans have caused the Russians to retreat.

who drafted the bills, was elated with their passage. "The Senate has certainly done a handsome thing," he said. "I will do my utmost to make the law a success and give the State of Pennsylvania an ideal system of workmen's compensation."

The Senate amended the bills only in minor details satisfactory to Governor Brumbaugh. The House is expected to concur in the amendments without any opposition.

The passage of the bills is the culmination of four years of effort. Governor Tener officially started the movement by creating a commission to consider workmen's compensation with the result that a series of bills were presented to the 1915 Legislature. They failed of passage because various interests could not agree on certain provisions.

DR. HIBBEN URGES WISE PREPAREDNESS

international law so that hereafter all obligations of nation to nation in a state of war will be swept away. "This is not a question of mere academic interest which we are discussing," he concluded. "We as a nation are looking into a future that is dark and mysterious. In the high tension of international hate and international suspicion the next insignificant accident may chance to precipitate for us a national catastrophe. And in the emergency if it should come, what would we say? Peace? Peace at any price?"

Dare Not Betray Honor

"By all means let us pay any price which can buy peace—restraint of passion, long suffering, sacrifice of material wealth or of every personal convenience and comfort. Let us sacrifice it all, everything which can buy peace. But let us not forget that there are some things which cannot buy peace. If we sacrifice them in order to secure peace, the peace thus sought becomes for us the vilest torment of a living hell. We dare not trade honor for peace. We dare not betray duty in order that we may bargain for peace. We dare not indulge ourselves in the enjoyment of the blessings of peace while we turn deaf ears to the cry of distress to the summons of a righteous cause."

Never in the 21 years of its existence has the Lake Mohonok Conference heard such a call to arms. The Princeton president's appeal aroused intense interest and discussion among more than 200 delegates here from all parts of the country.

The conference was opened by Daniel Smiley, who, as usual, was host to all the members of the conference and their wives. The president's address was delivered by John B. Bassett, professor of international law and diplomacy at Columbia University and formerly counsellor of the State Department. His subject was "The Attraction of Objects of Common Interest Through International Action."

The Good Will company is anxious to provide sufficient funds to remodel the old front street school building for a firehouse. The school building had been condemned as a place of study for the children but the firemen believe it can be altered and strengthened in such a way as to make very comfortable quarters. Furthermore the company has never had really any sort of a place of its own and the firemen want to raise the necessary money for the proposed changes just as quickly as possible.
