NO WOMEN ARE TO BE WATCHERS AT POLLS

House Not Gallant in Its Handling of the Vane Senate Bill Last Night

The Senate bill permitting appointment of women watchers at the polls at the November election, when the suffrage amendment is voted upon, was defeated in the House last night, the vote following the refusal of the House to sustain a point of unconstitutionality raised by Mr. Stern, Philadelphia. Mr. Stern contended that the Constitution limited election officers to qualified voters. He argued that women are not qualified to vote. The point was hotly debated, Mr. Wilson, Philadelphia, declaring that the House should not forget its chivalry and Mr. Baldwin, Delaware, asking that the House give the women a square deal. The point was voted down, 95 to 88, and then the bill was debated for half an hour. The final vote was 99 yeas to 88 nays. An attempt to reconsider was lost.

The Walton third class city service bill, which would have put policemen, firemen, engineering force and electrical employees of over thirty cities under civil service, was defeated. It fell six short of the required majority. The bill was passed some time ago and recalled from the Governor for amendment. Mr. Maurer, Berks, objected to the bill, which was defended by Messrs. Walton, Lawrence, and Wilson, Philadelphia.

Objections to reading for the first time were made in the House when the bill allowing a fee of $5 in making loans on personal property was offered. The resolution authorizing the Attorney General, State Treasurer and Auditor General to make settlement of the Harmony Society estate in West-cra, Pennsylvania was passed.

Efforts to revive the bill were defeated amid loud imitations of "bullies."

MAYORS MAY RUN TO SUCCEED SELVES

House Passed the Catlin Bill, Which Is Different From Another Now Pending

The Catlin Senate bill to permit mayors of third class cities to succeed themselves was passed finally in the House at the afternoon session after a battle between the representatives of the third class cities. It was attacked as subversive of long established custom, but the point was made that councilmen succeed themselves and mayors should have the same privilege.

The House also passed the Senate bill amending the party government act so that state committees shall elect the national committeemen, the vote being 149 to 42.

An effort to reconsider the defeat of the bill for a constitutional convention was defeated and the bills to protect bullfrogs and tadpoles were killed on second reading. The House then proceeded to work on the third reading calendar, passing over twenty Senate bills.

Objections were made to the Senate bill regulating collection of county, school and poor taxes by the city treasurers of third class cities by Mr. Ramsey, Delaware, who contended that it made two classes of cities. Mr. Glenn, Venango, declared it would be a convenience to cities having less than 25,000 population because the treasurers of such municipalities would collect all taxes. Mr. Ramsey objected again and the bill was stricken from the calendar.

The House defeated the Senate bill increasing salaries of heads of the State police and reducing State tax on corporations which pay a mercantile tax. The resolution authorizing the State Board of Education to report on the desirability of erecting a building for the education department of the State government was amended by cutting out requirement that the building shall be a memorial to the founders of the public school system. It then passed.

The second class city police pension fund bill was passed. It requires one-half of 1 per cent. of taxes to be appropriated to the fund.

STATE TO CONDEMN THE TOLL BRIDGES

Senate Bill Passed by the Lower Branch With Only Three Votes in the Negative

Legislation to enable the State to condemn toll bridges on main highways on the same plan as it may condemn toll roads was passed in the House last night with only 3 votes in the negative. It has already passed the Senate.

The Senate bill authorizing cities to regulate jitneys was dropped from the calendar after fruitless efforts to postpone.

Among Senate bills passed finally: Regulating "basements" in first class cities.

Authorizing cities to make appropriations to build trunk sewers.

Authorizing counties to build trunk sewers.

Regulating proceedings in equity.

Authorizing county controllers to appoint solicitors in counties having between 115,000 to 260,000 population.

Increasing salary of chief of the Department of Mines to $5,000 and increasing salary of deputy chief.

GOVERNOR GIVES HANDSOME DINNER

Newspaper Correspondents Dined at the Executive at "Plain Talk" Function

Governor Brumbaugh was host last night to the legislative correspondents at a beautifully appointed dinner at the Executive Mansion. The dinner is a biennial affair and the Governor usually gives some "straight talk" on State affairs. Last night was no exception.

The decorations of the dinner were roses and daisies arranged in three large plaques with a border of yellow roses and yellow daisies. The boutonniere were gardenias.

The Governor asked the newspapermen to urge the people of the State to see Pennsylvania first and to visit its mountains and valleys before going to other lands and climes.

CUNNINGHAM ON ROAD PROSPECTS

Discusses the Outlook For Highway Improvement With People From Lancaster County

State Highway Commissioner Cunningham told a delegation from Lancaster county that it had been definitely decided that the amount of money available for maintenance and repair of State highways during the next two years would be $6,000,000. He called their attention to the fact that this would make it impossible for the State to do any construction work, as $2,000,000 a year would be barely sufficient to maintain the ten thousand miles of highways comprising the Sproul system.

The Lancaster delegation sought to have the road from Lancaster to Ephrata reconstructed. The delegation was headed by Senators Gerberich and Homsher, of Lancaster, and by Representatives Hoffman, Rhoads and Hibshman. Others in the delegation were G. M. Wechter, C. F. Steiner and H. E. Romig, all of Akron, and Charles M. Relling, chairman of the good roads committee of the Lancaster Automobile Club and representing also the Lancaster Chamber of Commerce.

CHEAPER COAL BUT NOT CHEAPER QUALITY

Difference in price does not mean any difference in the quality of coal. Because furnace sizes are 50c cheaper and hard range is 25c cheaper now and will continue to be till July 1, does not mean that you are offered inferior grades of coal.

The real reason is the desire to switch some of the rush business of early cold weather to Summer, making it worth your while to anticipate next Winter's coal needs by lowering prices. Pay less now for the same quality.
