Laymen in A Secret League of Prayer For the President

A Nameless and Officerless Movement That Has Been Growing For Weeks Past; the Church and a National Crisis

(By The Religious Rambler.)

THE critical condition of international affairs during the past few days makes it possible to tell the story of the spread of a movement, during recent weeks, among church people, for united, individual prayer in behalf of the President and the nation.

no literature. The identity of the originator of it is not known to twenty persons. Yet the idea, I happen to know, has extended to all parts of the land, and includes alike eminent theologians and pastors, and plain, everyday, undistinguished laymen.

A Pious and Patriotic Purpose The project was born in the concern of a Washington layman, a subordinate official in one of the government departments, who has long been active in Christian work in the District of Columbia.

The Power of the Church Crowd Doubtless the man who set this movement going perceived the power that it would exert in promoting patriotism. No man can pray daily for his country and her President without thinking of the reasons why such prayer is called for at the present time.

The Psychology of the Thing is that it centers the attention of the nation's needs and upon heaven's help. As a method of spiritualizing and exalting and increasing patriotism, nothing finer could be devised.

The President as a Churchman Especially quick and responsive have been the churches to President Wilson's leadership in this hour of gravity because they have all along regarded him as peculiarly their representative.

A New Kind of Patriotism This tremendous Christian propaganda must be borne in mind in any endeavor to interpret the present state of American opinion. The notable absence of hysteria and ranting jingoism in this country, following the sinking of the Lusitania, may in part be accounted for by the fact that throughout all communions, during the past decade, there has been a systematic cultivation of what may be called Christian internationalism.

SHADE FOR HOGS IN SUMMER ESSENTIAL

Heat Is Severe on Animals of Non-Sweating Type and Sunstroke Is Frequent

The hog, like the sheep, is a non-sweating animal, and hot weather is much more severe on animals of this type than on those that perspire, and thus relieve themselves of internal heat. To such animals shade in summer is absolutely essential and if none is provided much suffering is caused the animal and losses frequently occur from overheating, sunstroke and the like.

On some farms natural shade is scarce, and if so, artificial shade should be provided. When the hogs are given their freedom on pasture, as is the case on most farms during summer, they do most of their foraging during the night or early morning and evening hours. Then when the sun gets warmer they prefer to lie in the shade or mud the rest of the day. As mud baths are objectionable in many ways, it pays to supply the shade. Several ways may be used to supply shade. It may consist of temporary makeshifts, but a much better plan is to erect cheap but serviceable portable shade houses out of 2x4s, 1x4s, and ordinary lumber. In most cases the material to build such shelters will be found on the premises, making it infrequently necessary to invest much money in their construction.

The sheds should be about three feet in height, with a sloping roof, open on three sides, and built facing the north or east to exclude most of the sunshine. The shed should be sufficiently large to allow all the hogs kept to find shelter without crowding. If plenty of shade is provided it is not necessary to supply water for them to lie in, although they greatly appreciate such kindness when it is shown. Where it is convenient to supply sanitary concrete hog baths, do so. The wallow of the hogs' own construction should be discouraged at every opportunity, and the hog should have rings in his nose to prevent his making them. They are not only unsightly and sometimes dangerous to other live stock accidentally falling into them, but are likely to furnish breeding places for germs of various sorts.

Please bear in mind that the profitable hog is the comfortable one, and that any time or money expended to make him so will be paid for in increased pork production.—Farm Life.

From Generation to Generation

In 1842 a sturdy pioneer started in a crude shed what has since become this immense plant with its world-wide business. Little did he realize then how thousands—yes, hundreds of thousands—would be affected in later days by the simple code of sound business principles he then formulated. This code of business honor has caused grandfathers and fathers to teach their sons and grandsons the value of CASE products.

That is why so many men today believe in the CASE Car. The name behind it signifies generations of success. It recalls their fathers' words that the CASE Hidden Values are always as great as CASE Seen Values.

What other car has such a pedigree?

All those fundamentals that have made the name of CASE famous are incorporated in the CASE Car. Which is another way of saying that this car is thrifty in upkeep and unusually long-lived. Mechanical excellence has been combined with beauty of outline and ease of operation. Men know they can place their faith in CASE.

The Name Behind the Goods

And best of all, low owning cost is preceded by low buying cost. For the CASE Car, unlike others, comes really ready for the road, equipped with those necessities one has to buy later. Such as Extra Tire and Tube on Rim with Tire Cover, Weed Non-Skid Tire Chains and 8-Day Clock.

All these additional features are covered by the first price—$1350—with a 5 per cent discount for cash.

Surely, when you see the CASE Car and ride in it—when you know its supreme superiority—you will consider its purchase a fortunate investment. Especially as time goes on.

Any day you wish to inspect the CASE Car and learn more about its values, seen and unseen, we are at your service. Will you come in today or tomorrow?
