60,000 BRETHREN AT HERSHEY MEETING

Great Convention Hall Erected in Park For National Convention Next Week

Hershey, Pa., May 25.—When the national conference of the Church of the Brethren opens here next week there will be no less than 10,000 members of the denomination lodging in sheds, tents and private residences in Hershey and nearby places and from 5,000 to 10,000 more attending the sessions from day to day as transient visitors. Plans are being made to accommodate 60,000 visitors on the day of the biggest meeting.

A large convention building has been erected in the park by the management. This structure is being provided especially for the coming conference, but will remain intact after the sessions for the purposes of future conventions. The building will have a capacity of from seven to ten thousand. It will not be large enough to accommodate all who attend the business meetings of the big convention, but surrounding buildings will be used for overflow meetings.

Read this proof: "After treatment by three doctors, without result, I have been cured of a very bad case of rheumatism by using two bottles of Rheuma.
