British Admiralty Announces Torpedo Hit Steamer; Ship's Captain in Doubt

Washington, D. C., May 27.—The report of Ambassador Page on the American steamer Nebraska, damaged off the coast of Ireland, was laid before President Wilson to-day.

Administration officials still awaited authentic advice as to how the Nebraska was damaged. The British admiralty reported that the ship had been torpedoed, but the captain's report to the owners indicated a doubt as to whether she had been struck by a torpedo or a mine.

It is not expected here that definite information regarding the matter will be disclosed until an investigation is made, pending which the course of the American Government will not be determined upon.

Washington, May 27.—Delay of the British government's reply to the American government's inquiry for an explanation of the meaning of the recent admiralty order, relative to the "northabout route" around the British Isles is believed by officials here to be due in some measure to the cabinet changes in London.

ITALIANS ENCOUNTER LITTLE DIFFICULTY IN INVADING OF AUSTRIA

Germans Again Carry War to Shores of England by Dropping Bombs on Towns 40 Miles From London; Allies Unable to Extend Greatly Their Field of Operations on Gallipoli Peninsula

The war has again been carried to the shores of England. German aeroplanes attacked South End, forty miles from London, last night, and after raining bombs on the town escaped, pursued by British aviators.

Notwithstanding their heavy losses in men and warships, the allies are continuing incessantly the campaign which aims at the conquest of Constantinople. An Athens dispatch states they are constantly bringing up reinforcements and that the Turks are greatly impressed with the unrelenting vigor of their assaults.

The Italians have as yet encountered no dangerous opposition in their invasion of Austria, now under way at several points along the frontier.

It is believed the Austrians will fall back on the Isonzo river, toward which the Italians are advancing, and there attempt to halt the movement toward Trieste.
