CREVE COEURS

It is generally admitted that the Creve Coeur owes some of its characteristics to Polish ancestry; but, like all breeds existing prior to sixty or creased. The hens are splendid layall breeds existing prior to sixty or seventy years ago, its exact origin is obscured. Definite records of 1852 report the Creve Coeur to be native to certain sections of France and to be considered of great value as a layer and table fowl. Splendid specimens have been imported to Great Britain and to America, but its breeding in these countries is chiefly confined to fanciers. On the other hand, it is yet considered one of the finest utility fowls of France, and there it is widely bred, both for eggs and meat.

This fowl is one of the ancestors of the famous Houdan fowl of France, considered by many as the best of French utility poultry.

The hens are splendid layers of large, white eggs, and seldom tecome broody. In this respect they may be considered non-sitters. A French writer claims that this fowl is very popular and widely kept by farmers, market gardeners and others in certain designated sections of France, white eggs, and seldom tecome broody. # COSTS MORE - WEARS LONGER

We recommend RU-BER-OID be-cause we know that it will give you lasting satisfaction. It costs more than ordinary prepared roofings, but it is cheaper by the year. Our customers who have used it know its worth and long life.

RU-BER-OID is solid through and through. It is permanently water-proofed with a compound of high-grade animal and vegetable substances. It contains no coal-tar or asphaltic oils that might crack in cold weather or run in hot weather.

RU-BER-OID Roofs applied more than 20 years ago are still giving perfect service without repairs. You end roof troubles when you use it.

The U. S. Court of Appeals has enjoined imitators from using the word "Rubberoid or any similar name as the trade name or brand" of their roofing.

There are many imitations of RUBER-OID. We sell the genuine, which has the "Ru-ber-oid Man" (shown above) on every roll. Come in and examine it.
