LORD NORTHCLIFFE
The British government has begun action against the London Times, of which Lord Northcliffe, believed by many newspaper men to be the greatest est publisher in the world, is the owner. The charge is made in connection with a statement printed some time ago about the French army.

It is held that the statement gave information to the enemy. However, the prosecution is considered a result of the fight Lord Northcliffe's newspapers have made on Lord Kitchener, war minister. Repeatedly the Times and the Daily Mail have charged that the British army in France was not supplied with sufficient ammunition and that battles and men were lost because of this. The charges, with those made by Lord Fisher against Winston Churchill, led to the recorganization of the British cabinet. Kitchener held his place. But it was considered by many that the Times charges were admitted by the government when it took from Kitchener the control of the supply of munitions of war and made Lloyd-George minister of munitions.

Magneto Ignition Proves Its

Superiority in Big Race

It is seldom that the accessories in a big automobile race are given credit for the way in which they withstand the excessive strains, but the average motorist can readily imagine the adverse conditions under which an ignition system, for instance, performs its functions, especially when fitted to the high speed racing cars such as took part in the 500-mile Sweepstakes at Indianapolis on May 31.

The small capacity, high speed engines which are coming more and more into popularity are putting a greater strain upon the ignition system than formerly applied, because, among other things, the engines are being called upon to turn over at much higher speeds. In addition to this, the terrific external heat and excessive vibration are extremely trying or they are called upon recommendation of the content of the engine revolves.

Knowing well these conditions, racing drivers are now a unit in their selection of the ignition equipment, and for the 500-mile race, the Bosch Magneto was selected in every instance, making the third big race run this year in which this type of ignition has been selected by every driver to enter the race. That the selection of Bosch was a wise one was proven by the fact that the race was completed without one driver complaining about his ignition system, while the fact that a few world's record was established, (nearly ninety miles an hour for 500 miles continuous running) proves without a doubt, the efficiency of the Bosch Magneto; for there can be no question as to the importance the spark plays in the ultimate result. A weak thin spark would not fire the mixture as effectively as the fat, archive, penetrating spark produced by all the customers who visit them from time to time in order to have their ignition systems changed from some unsatisfactory system to a Bosch Ignition system.

Mr. Sheehan, however, insisted that he be permitted to deduct the additional expense of $883.23 for clerks. This the auditor general refused and the case was put up to the Dauphin courts. "At the termination of this great war, which, please God, may end soon, there will be hundreds of thousands of persons coming to our shores to escape the burdens left by that conflict. And it is up to you citizens to see that these men are worthy of our citizenship. It is not that we do not want them, but it is that we want them to have the spirit of this new republic."

Dr. Brumbaugh announced as some of the things which make for good citizenship that men keep themselves financially solvent, pay their debts, that they live lawfully, and not only lawfully, but see to it that only good laws are enacted; that their word be as good as their bond, and finally that they put their trust in God. He added:
"The greatest test of a good citizen is that he lives lawfully and the best proof of a good citizen is that his life is such that one feels when he meets him instantly at home."
