

FIFTEEN DEATHS IN ZEPPELIN RAID ON COAST OF ENGLAND

Germans Retaliate For Attack of Allies on Karlsruhe, Where 19 Were Slain

SEVERAL FIRES STARTED Increasing Number of Aerial Attacks Shows Determination to Force Air Fighting

London, June 16, 1:03 p. m.—A Zeppelin airship visited the northeast coast of England last evening and dropped bombs.

Fifteen deaths are reported from the district in question and fifteen persons were wounded.

Some fires were started by the projectiles from the Zeppelin, but by this morning they had been overcome.

This information was contained in an official announcement in London today.

Beginning with the German raid on the municipal area of London May 31, in which four persons were killed, the past sixteen days, have brought reports of a number of aerial attacks by both sides, all of which indicate a determination to force the fighting from the clouds.

An air attack by the birdmen of one side has been followed so closely by a counter attack from the other, although on a different locality that retaliation is strongly indicated.

For instance, yesterday morning twenty-three aeroplanes delivered an attack upon the German city of Karlsruhe, killing nineteen persons and wounding fourteen, and inflicting material damage.

The raid on England mentioned in the foregoing dispatch followed this onslaught within twenty-four hours.

German Editors Want an Attack Made on London

Berlin, via London, June 15.—Commenting on the aerial attack upon Karlsruhe, Paul Becker, assistant chief editor of the Tages Zeitung, terms it a "nefarious and senseless act" for which "unscrupulous retaliation is demanded."

He declares Germany hitherto has retaliated for the bombardment of defenseless unfortified cities only by the bombardment of military localities, but that an example now should be made.

Herr Becker suggests that the best step would be a bombardment of the western portion of the coast. He says the retaliatory measures should be extended also to other departments of warfare.
