

WOMEN AND THEIR INTERESTS

THE GOODLY FRUITS OF EARTH

MOST Americans cherish among their dearest memories of childhood the preserves, the jams and the jellies that were made by some wise old-fashioned housekeeper from receipts that "came down in the family." It is just as possible to make such preserves now as it ever was—more so, if anything, for one does not have to depend on the old-fashioned preserving kettle and leisure to give days at a time to the work. To-day one can have enameled preserving kettles in two or three different sizes, and either buy a large quantity of fruit when it is at its best, making a business of preserving for perhaps two days, or do the work a little at a time as fruit and opportunity present themselves.

Which method is preferable depends entirely on the circumstances of the housekeeper, and what she wants to make. If it is a case of pickles or catsup or currant jelly it will probably be best to take a day off and do it, for most receipts for these things are intended for making large quantities, and the process itself is a trifle complex and needs all one's attention for awhile. It saves time to make pickle brine or vinegar, or any one of the various fruit wines and cordials, like currant wine, cherry or blackberry brandy or kirsch, in quantity, because they have to be kept standing about for awhile and looked after from time to time, and it is just as easy to do that with a gallon as with half the amount; moreover, fruit is cheaper by wholesale. In the case of currant jelly, it ought to be made early in the season because later the currants will be likely to be over-ripe and as the sagacious foreign-born cook of an inexperienced housekeeper put it, "fruit what is ripe cannot make jelly well." Even these luxuries, however, can be made in the tiniest apartment if one knows how, and cares to take the time.

Jellies and Preserves. The average family, nevertheless, is more concerned with preserves that cannot be duplicated by commerce—plain fruit jellies, preserved fruits and the various kinds of jams; and these can be made in small quantities just as well and more conveniently. For the ordinary preserving receipts you need an enameled kettle that will hold several gallons—nearly or quite as large as a soup kettle—but an enameled saucepan that will hold from two quarts to a gallon is all that most women will need to stock a whole cupboard with nice things. The one important point is that it must be enameled—not metal. No fruit jellies or pickles can be successfully cooked in metal. Having secured the kettle, which should have a cover also of enameled ware and spoons for stirring and measuring, likewise enameled, see to it that the receptacles for your fruit are also of the material that will not rust or other metal. To leave strawberries, after hulling, in a tin pan for several hours preceding the cooking, is not going to improve the taste of your jam. It pays to have several shallow pans and plates of enameled ware for berries, for if they are left for any length of time in a deep large dish where they do not get the air they mould. Have also a measuring cup of enamel or glass—the former is of course more durable—for you may have to use that cup in measuring fruit juice or vinegar scalding hot. A long-handled dipper, and a skimmer, are also useful in preserving, and a collander is almost a necessity. It is not economical to skimp on sugar in any sort of canning process. There is no better rule than the old reliable one of a pound of sugar to a pound of fruit; and if in addition you take care that the fruit is not in the least overripe you will be on the road to success. Jelly cannot be made at all with overripe fruit, and for this reason many wild fruits such as plum, fox grapes and even barberry and wild cherry, are better for jellies than cultivated fruits—they are not so sweet. A quantity of these fruits, if they are any fruit of the market will often

A FASHIONABLE BLOUSE

An Interesting Model that can be given the Military Suggestion by the Use of the High Collar and Patch Pockets.

By MAY MANTON

8627 Blouse with Deep Cuffs, 34 to 44 bust.

Women who are seeking dainty, soft blouses for summer wear will like this one made as it is on the figure. Those who like the tailored finish and the military idea will be pleased with the straight high collar and the pockets, for they completely transform the garment and give it an entirely different aspect. In whichever way it is treated, however, it is a pretty, attractive blouse, equally correct for wear with the odd skirt and to be used as part of a gown. The full fronts are becoming and the deep cuffs are new and smart and the edges that meet at the front, allow a most effective use of small buttons connected by means of cords. On the figure, the material is crepe de chine in the new, sand color and pearl buttons are used. The military waist is made of voile, but it would be smart for any reasonable material and either in white or in sand color or in a color to match the skirt or suit. The back is extended over the fronts to give the suggestion of a yoke and when the rolled over collar is used, the fronts are cut out slightly.

For the medium size will be required 3 1/2 yds. of material 36 in. wide, 2 3/4 yds. 36, 1 7/8 yds. 44 in. wide. The pattern 8627 is cut in sizes from 34 to 44 in. bust measure. It will be mailed to any address by the Fashion Department of this paper, on receipt of

Miss Fairfax Answers Queries

STUBBORNNESS. DEAR MISS FAIRFAX: I have been keeping company with a girl of my age for about half a year. I love her dearly and she returns my love. Now, Miss Fairfax, am I misguided with her on account of her egotism. Every time I suggest something she never gives in. Could you tell me how I can make her change without hurting her feelings. B. R. L. The girl is a little selfish and spoiled—and stubborn, too, no doubt. But perhaps you are a bit dictatorial and inclined to fall in consideration of her tastes. Why not make a little "fifty-fifty" agreement, whereby each way take turns at having your own way. Talk it over with her and see if you cannot make her feel that it is fair to be more equal partners.

FAR TOO YOUNG

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX: I am eighteen and desperately in love with a girl two years my junior. About eight months ago a quarrel separated us. But I knew she loved me. We differ in nationalities, but I love her all the same. Would you advise me to try and gain back her sincere love, or would you advise differently. ANXIOUS. I would advise you to attend to your work, whether that is studying or earning your living. You are far too young for serious thought of love and marriage.

PERFECTLY PROPER

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX: Recently my employer's son whom I have known for eight months to be an honorable young man, asked me to go to a show with him. I accepted his offer. We were accompanied by his sister. Now, while in conversation with a friend of mine was told this was improper.

ASK YOUR MOTHER

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX: I am not twenty-one, and engaged to a man of twenty-one. Now, through a little misunderstanding with my mother, he does not call on me at my home. In the past I have always given in my full salary at home, namely $11, and now he wants me to keep $6 each week and give $5 for my board. I cannot do this, as my mother needs every cent I can give her. He says we will part on account of it, if I don't do as he asks. I love him and he loves me, I try to do as he asks me, to keep his love, and at the same time love my mother and cannot do her injustice. Now, what should I do—give him up, which I know would kill me, or do as he says; I really believe my mother needs every cent I earn. JUSTINE R. The man has absolutely no right to dictate what you shall do with your salary. A good daughter makes a good wife—and he ought to respect your desire to help your own people. But on the other hand, a girl has some rights in the money she earns—and if she is contemplating marrying she ought to be purchasing a few things toward a modest trousseau. Talk the whole thing over calmly with your mother and see if you cannot work out an arrangement that will be fair to her and to yourself.

LOIS WEBER AND PHILLIPS SMALL, LEY IN "SUNSHINE MOLLY." AT THE REGENT TODAY AND TOMORROW. "Sunshine Molly," one of the most powerful photo-plays yet produced, featuring Lois Weber, at the Regent to-day and to-morrow. This is a powerful story of the oil fields, full of dramatic action with a vein of comedy running throughout and staged with a close attention to detail and naturalness. Some remarkable scenes are shown of "gushers" and a magnificent fire scene shows the burning of the immense oil field. Miss Weber, the authoress of "Sunshine Molly," plays the title role.

"THE GODDESS" AT THE VICTORIA TODAY. This beautiful serial story is shown in pictures every Wednesday, and to-day's showing is the fourth instalment. Sufficient to say that the leading roles are in such capable hands as Earl Williams, showing the latest scenes are shown of "gushers" and a magnificent fire scene shows the burning of the immense oil field. Miss Weber, the authoress of "Sunshine Molly," plays the title role.

When it comes to novelties in vaudeville, Madam Obersta and her girls present a genuine one in their offering at Paxtang Park this week. The wonderful electrical effects produced in the act surpass anything of the kind ever seen in Harrisburg before. Spectacular beauty is the object of Madam Obersta's effort, and she has attained her object with remarkable success. The riot of light and color produced is positively dazzling. Other acts on the park bill this week worthy of special mention are: George Moore, comedy juggler; Permane, the wizard of the accordion; Billy Brierley, musical mimic, and Thessen's Dogs, a remarkably clever canine offering.—Advertisement.

SEATTLE AWAITING COMING OF MYSTIC SHRINE COUNCIL. Special to The Telegraph. Seattle, Wash., June 30.—Final preparations for the opening of the forty-first imperial council session of the Mystic Shrine, one of the most important gatherings in the history of the order, have been completed here. The vanguard of the Shrine visitors will arrive Saturday, July 10, and from that time on special trains from every part of the country will bring bands, patrols and delegations from the 137 temples until Monday evening, preceding the opening of the session. The imperial council itself will convene Tuesday morning, July 13, and will be in session three days.

If Your Little Baby Could Talk. He would tell you that he does not want cow's milk that settles into lumps on his little stomach—that makes the long, hot, close days of summer feel like a leaden weight on his little hot head—that the still, sultry nights would be easy for him and for you, if he had the food his small stomach could digest.

Nestlé's Food. The nearest food to mother's milk. Begin at the fourth month with one feeding a day—then slowly make it two, then three feedings—until at last your baby will be weaned—and neither you nor the baby will know the difference. Wean your baby on NESTLÉ'S because NESTLÉ'S brings health, while cow's milk may carry sickness.
