Abandoned Auto Found in Atlantic City Owned by J. G. Dartt, Chambersburg

WEDNESDAY EVENING,

Atlantic City, ... J., June 30.—The police have an automobile bearing the Pennsylvania tag No. 89866, abandoned yesterday morning by three colored men who are now sought by the state and shore authorities. It is thought that they stole the machine in the Quaker City and left it in the street when it became stalled as a policeman was approaching.

Four new cases of typhoid fever on Allison Hill, reported to the City Health Bureau, are keeping the officers busy in tracing the source of contagion. The physicians that reported the cases are taking a census of each one in order to locate where the disease was contracted.

This morning sediment tests were made in the plants of local milk wholesalers and retailers. To-morrow the members of the "Pure Milk Campalan Party," will tour Susquehanna and Lower Paxton townships inspecting the farms.

The regular meeting of the officers of the City Health Bureau will be held late this afternoon in the offices of the department. It is probable that the recent condition found on nearby farms will be discussed, but Dr. Raunick said this morning that nothing definite will be done until more information is secured.

The city health officer is preparing to have all the reports of tests tabulated for reference and information. These will not be published before August it is believed.
