

Save the Babies.

INFANT MORTALITY is something frightful. We can hardly realize that of all the children born in civilized countries, twentytwo per cent., or nearly one-quarter, die before they reach one year; thirtyseven per cent., or more than one-third, before they are five, and one-half before they are fifteen!

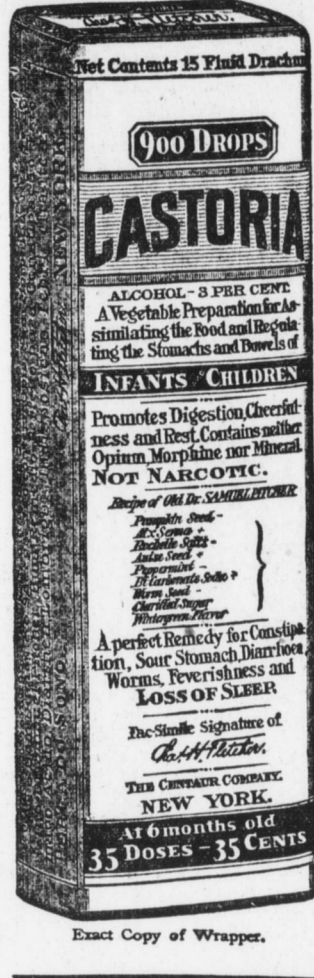

We do not hesitate to say that a timely use of Castoria would save a majority of these precious lives. Neither do we hesitate to say that many of these infantile deaths are occasioned by the use of narcotic preparations. Drops, tinctures and soothing syrups sold for children's complaints contain more or less opium, or morphine. They are, in considerable quantities, deadly poisons. In any quantity they stupefy, retard circulation and lead to congestions, sickness, death. Castoria operates exactly the reverse, but you must see that it bears the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher. Castoria causes the blood to circulate properly, opens the pores of the skin and allays fever.

Letters from Prominent Physicians addressed to Chas. H. Fletcher.

Dr. A. F. Peeler, of St. Louis, Mo., says: "I have prescribed your Castoria in many cases and have always found it an efficient and speedy remedy." Dr. Frederick D. Rogers, of Chicago, Ill., says: "I have found Fletcher's Castoria very useful in the treatment of children's complaints." Dr. William C. Bloomer, of Cleveland, Ohio, says: "In my practice I am glad to recommend your Castoria, knowing it is perfectly harmless and always satisfactory." Dr. E. Down, of Philadelphia, Pa., says: "I have prescribed your Castoria in my practice for many years with great satisfaction to myself and benefit to my patients." Dr. Edward Parrish, of Brooklyn, N. Y., says: "I have used your Castoria in my own household with good results, and have advised several patients to use it for its mild laxative effect and freedom from harm." Dr. J. B. Elliott, of New York City, says: "Having during the past six years prescribed your Castoria for infantile stomach disorders, I most heartily commend its use. The formula contains nothing deleterious to the most delicate of children." Dr. C. G. Sprague, of Omaha, Neb., says: "Your Castoria is an ideal medicine for children, and I frequently prescribe it. While I do not advocate the indiscriminate use of proprietary medicines, yet Castoria is an exception for conditions which arise in the care of children." Dr. J. A. Parker, of Kansas City, Mo., says: "Your Castoria holds the esteem of the medical profession in a manner held by no other proprietary preparation. It is a sure and reliable medicine for infants and children. In fact, it is the universal household remedy for infantile ailments." Dr. H. F. Merrill, of Augusta, Me., says: "Castoria is one of the very finest and most remarkable remedies for infants and children. In my opinion your Castoria has saved thousands from an early grave. I can furnish hundreds of testimonials from this locality as to its efficiency and merits."

If he thought this foul corruption existed in the office of an executive entrusted as the District Attorney, what of the courts, judges, lawyers, police department? He felt for the first time since he entered the government service, how small, how ineffectual was his personal power for the good he wanted to do. How could he fight the gigantic, irresistible machine, fed by the votes of the public, and oiled by the gold of unmentionable vice-plotters who bought and sold chief executives as one might a dancing toy—a toy whose steps were regulated by the mechanism of the controlling party?

When he reached his office, he was surprised to find a young man already there awaiting him. It was the very man, he realized in a flash, who, the night before last he had seen sitting and drinking with that dancing girl in the gambling table he had picked up accidentally—the same dissipated pink-faced, tiny-eyed low-foreheaded individual who had allowed himself to be persuaded by the dancing girl to buck the bank. Mason wondered fearfully, apprehensively, what this young man of all young men should want in his office—wondered whether he had been recognized there in spite of the secluded table he had picked to escape observation. Was it possible that the young bouncer had seen him talking with the dancing girl, and recognizing him from his numerous pictures in the paper, he came up here to be ugly—possibly with an attempt at intimidation—at blackmail? He was alarmed for the moment, but was quickly reassured as the tiny eyed one told his story.

"Are you Mr. Bell, the District Attorney?" "No. Mr. Bell has been called suddenly away, and won't be back until the morning. I'm the Assistant District Attorney—acting District Attorney at the present time."—here Bell's words "acting District Attorney" flashed across his mind and made him shudder.

"My name's Mason—Ellis Mason. Can I help you?" "Well, you'll do," said the pink faced one, in a hard patronizing voice. "It's this way. I'm a clerk in Marge & Barnes—Mercantile Insurance Green's my name—Ralph Green. don't claim to be an angel."—(Mason thought there was nothing particularly striking about the statement.)

"I have my fun like the rest of them—no better, no worse. I don't kick when I lose fair; but I do kick and kick hard when I get buncoed—and I've been buncoed a few times." Here he told Ellis the story; told him the story he already knew, told it from beginning to end, and we shall take it up with Mason where, for us it left off on the night that Mason stumbled upon the notorious "S. S. Dodge's place, turning wide open."

"You see," he finished, "I wasn't sure that whole outfit is as crooked as hell. I would come up her squealing like a kid. But I'm dead sure the dice were loaded, the wheel was loaded and the cards were marked; and I think that this rotten lot of under hand pirates' rascals conspired at his qualifying adjective—"should be son up."

Mason felt it was a strange trick of Fate that sent that young loose mouthed rascal to the District Attorney's office at just the time that was possible for him to act. He had been admonished by his chief to "forget it" when he reported that flagrant violation of the law, and it seemed to him highly improbable that this moment had been opportunistically selected by an unseen Judge to weigh the sincerity of his principles against the material "success" of his career. He knew that the principles were right—that his ideals were noble, aspiring, splendid true—knew that they would be true no matter how their injunctions were slighted, glossed over, spurned, kneeled, Truth was unalterable, everlasting, infinite. Truth wouldn't be any the less Truth or his ideals any the less because he failed to stand by them. What good would it be—where was the advantage of his broad conception of what was right and just if he failed to acknowledge it in his actions?

IV. That night the busy traffic of St. Dodge's gilded cafe was interrupted in the rat of its feverish play by a squad of police, headed by Ellis Mason and the entire outfit loaded into a waiting patrol wagon. Clarice Adair the dancing girl and "guiding spirit" of the place, recognized Mason as the man who, two nights before, had refused her urgent persuasion to play.

While the police were busy taking charge of the place, he went up to her. "I'm sorry, but you'll have to be detained. You remember, I said I'd be back soon, when I felt luck to be with me," he laughed; "You see, I've made a clean sweep of this broad con." She looked up at him, all the fierce vindictiveness of her passionate soul finding expression in the concentrated stare of her hate-glowing eyes.

"Yes, you have made a clean sweep of it this time," she said slowly, intensely. "Make the most of it. The banker always wins—in the end." He turned from her, smilingly, but annoyed at her over-treat, and proceeded in the direction of the mess under him.

V. Charles Gilson was a "pillar of society." Ponderous and portly, he was endowed by nature with a dignified, heavy face, and pompous air that his snow white hair and ivory-headed cane did a great deal toward making impressive. He was fifty-five years old and seemed sixty-five. His deeply scamed face and massive jaw were his greatest assets, and he had vouched for him, had the rest of his appearance needed endorsement.

NO CLAIMS FOR DAMAGES By Associated Press Washington, July 22.—No actual claim for damages on account of the Lusitania disaster has yet been filed with the State department. This is due both to the fact that the question is bound up in the exchanges of notes with Germany on submarine warfare generally and to lack of knowledge on the part of prospective claimants as to methods of procedure.

HEAVY DEMAND FOR VESSELS By Associated Press Washington, July 22.—Ship building activity, due to the heavy demand for vessels since the European war began, is greater in the United States than it has been for several years. More steel vessels were being built or where under contract July 1 than at any time in any year since 1901.

Women AND THEIR Interests

The Light That Defies the Storm

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX
No great victory has ever been won without enthusiasm. The defenders of a citadel need only determination and stubbornness to enable them to hold their position. But to take the offensive and to storm any fortress needs the white heat of supreme enthusiasm.
The force of enthusiastic hope and enthusiastic endeavor has saved many a lost cause. Depression sinks away before the force of bright-eyed desire to be up and doing. How many of us enthrall ourselves about each new opportunity that touches our horizon. But the cold winds of waiting may chill our first ardor and the frost of our own doubts may even destroy it. But it is only counterfeit enthusiasm that so easily perishes. The genuine feeling endures in the face of hardship and slow accomplishment and conquers by force of zestful determination to reach its goal.
Youth, in its first flush of proud consciousness, is likely to think it can conquer the world. BUT THE ENTHUSIASM THAT CAN MAKE A WHOLE LIFE SPLENDID IS THAT WHICH ENDURES TO THE VERY END OF LIFE'S DISAPPOINTMENTS AND TRANSCENDS THEM ALL.
Cultivate the enthusiasm that endures. It will make a dull world brighter—it will make you a cheerful optimist in which hope lives and who has the power to endure disappointments in the light of the belief that

YOUNG ISSUES STATEMENT ON SEMIMONTHLY PAY

State Treasurer Young to-day announced that inasmuch as the semi-monthly pay act, applying to employees of the State who receive an annual salary which was passed by the last Legislature, becomes effective at a time of year when many of the employees have made vacation plans, the Department will pay those departments desiring payments but once a month July 26, if the payrolls have reached the department prior to that time. This departure from the letter of the act applies to such departments as make application for one payment per month and for the present month only. Hereafter the act will be strictly observed as far as the Treasury Department is concerned.
