$5,000 DAMAGE DONE WHEN BUILDINGS BURN

Spontaneous Combustion Is Believed to Have Been Cause at Shippensburg

Special to The Telegraph
Shippensburg, Pa., July 26.—An early morning fire destroyed three residences and a restaurant to-day, entailing a loss estimated at $5,000. Occupants of the homes escaped in their nightclothes. The buildings were all frame and were located in East King street.

The fire started in the restaurant of J. K. Irvin, it is the belief, from spontaneous combustion in a package of fireworks, stored away for next year. The restaurant is a total loss. The flames spread to the home of Henry Dukes, a retired merchant, and from there to the homes of Harry Bechtel and William Turner, on the same row. All the houses, which are owned by Mr. Dukes, were burned to the ground. Much of the furniture was saved.

Mr. Dukes estimates his loss at $2,000 on his private residence and $2,000 on the other buildings. The loss is partly covered by insurance. The furniture taken from the other homes is scattered over town, and the personal losses of the occupants are believed to be $1,000.

Mrs. E. S. Musser of Marietta and grandson, Stanton Blacksmith, of Harrisburg, are spending a week at the Marietta.

EYE INJURIES FROM ALKALIES

The daily papers and magazines of the past two years, at home and abroad, have contained numerous instances of more or less serious injuries to the eyes from the explosion of the central in a receptacle next to the ice. This will bring it to as low a temperature as is healthful. Iced drinks interfere with digestion and are a menace to health. They often arrest digestion and not infrequently produce death. Red meats should never be frozen or placed in contact with ice.

Scrupulous cleanliness will be repaid by the saving in foodstuffs and the maintaining of their quality.

DEATH OF MRS. ELLIS SMITH

Special to The Telegraph
Union Deposit, Pa., July 26.—Mrs. Ellis Smith died on Saturday night at the home of her son, Levi Smith, after a week's illness. She was 76 years old. ### A SPEEDY TRIP FROM CHICAGO

Roy Light, of Harrisburg, returned home Wednesday on his Indian motorcycle from Chicago. Enroute home he encountered the heavy rainstorms which made some roads impassible, the wheels going into water up to the hubs. This made it necessary to cover fifteen miles over railroad ties, and through wheat and cornfields. Mr. Light made the trip in two days and two hours, twenty-six hours of riding.

DIET UNDER WAR CONDITIONS

The European war has changed the supply of readily available foods, and brought about an enforced movement toward a partial vegetarian diet, in place of the more extensive use of meats, eggs, butter and wheat products. These changes, being the subject of governmental regulation and enforcement, place new restrictions on the dietary of the sick. It sounds strange to our ears to hear that patients are actually required to enable them to procure wheat flour or wheat bread for the preparation of toast. The refinements of cookery, along with the modern milling of the various grains and the preparation of dried vegetables, are likely to eliminate in part the wide distinctions between animal and vegetable products. This is in harmony with the success of numerous sanatoriums conducted on vegetarian principles in matters of diet.

The various devices of the German army for furnishing suitable food to the troops in action are responsible for the unimpaired health of many soldiers. Fresh meats, potatoes and vegetables poorly cooked by the individual soldier under stress of army conditions are certain to lead to dyspeptic diarrheas and irritations, the forerunners of infectious invasion. Experience in former wars abundantly verifies this statement, says the Journal of the American Medical Association. But the present field kitchens of the German army, the "Gulaschkanonen" as they have been fancifully called, have furnished foods that are cooked with great thoroughness, so that they are readily comminuted and then easily digested. The lessons of this diet service may well appeal to us.
