AMUSEMENTS

VICTOR MOORE IN "SNOBS" AT THE REGENT
To-day is the last of "Snobs" featuring Victor Moore at the Regent. The role played by Mr. Moore is that of Charles Disney, a milkman of no pretensions whatsoever, who suddenly finds himself the sole heir to the title and vast estates of an English Duke. He immediately gets an advance on his inheritance and proceeds to break into society in a thoroughly novel and extremely funny manner.

The remainder of the week will be shown "Hypocrites," a photoplay written and directed by Lois Weber. It is one of the most striking and unusual pictures on the market. It is strongly dramatic, but has interwoven with its main theme a remarkable vein of allegory and fantasy, which is bound to make it one of the most talked of pictures put before the public. It deals frankly with the sin of hypocrisy, and the fear that possesses many people when brought face to face with truth. "Hypocrites" is remarkable also for the beauty and artistry of the production. Among the players are Myrtle Stedman, Herbert Standing, Adele Farrington, Dixie Carr and Margaret Edwards, the latter in the difficult role of the Spirit of Truth. See this wonderful play.

PAXTANG PARK
The big feature vaudeville bill at the Paxtang Park theater this week is a crackerjack, and last evening the huge audience showed their appreciation by hearty laughs and wild applause. From the opening number to the closing act there is not an act that wouldn't be a credit to any vaudeville theater. The hit of the bill was scored by Joe F. Willard and Harry Bond in "The Battle of Bunco Hill," with their untamed cavalry steed, "Devilskin," an old war horse that when he smells powder, becomes unmanageable and tries to dislodge "Philip Schiltz," who is detailed to carry a message for reinforcements. The horse's antics and the German's efforts to stay in the saddle are decidedly laughable.

McCowan and Gordon in a comedy skit called "Two in One," were also the cause of considerable laughter and applause. Their act is above the average singing and talking skit played one and merited the appreciation shown by the park audience.

The Cuban Trio, an act that played the park earlier in the season with great success, seemed to please the park audience with their extraordinary acrobatics, even better than they did before.
Sikitchi, a Japanese, presents a very interesting Oriental offering, while the Winkle Kids, two very small Lilliputians, do a singing and dancing act that is a decided novelty.
Great preparations are being made by Manager Davis for the big fireworks display that will be given at the park to-morrow evening. A program of great variety, introducing some new and beautiful features in pyrotechnics is promised. Special attention will be paid to the fireworks used this week and some unusually magnificent bombs and rockets are scheduled for to-morrow evening's show.—Advertisement.
