INSPECTION PLAN IS OBJECTED TO

Said to Be Probability That National Guard May Go Back to the Former Method

The system of inspection of the National Guard in vogue this year and which was recently announced in The Telegraph is being sharply criticised all over the State according to newspapers and officers are recommending changes. The Philadelphia Inquirer says of it: "It is probable that the system of rating at the next inspection will be the same as it was last year, which seems more fair to the officers and men. It is more competitive and one that seems to be the new one, which has been declared unsatisfactory by officers high in rank in the guard. "It is interesting to note that out of all the companies in the National Guard of Pennsylvania only six received the highest rating of "Passed plus," which means excellent. These honor companies were Companies G, Ninth Infantry; L, I and B, of the Fourth Infantry, and K and I of the Tenth Infantry. Thirty-six companies in all received the lowest rating of "passed minus."

The inspectors speak of the great number of absences and declare that it is entirely too great. The personnel of the men generally was good. Colonel Sweeney calls attention to the apparent neglect of the study of the Manual of Interior Guard Duty. In nearly every company there is reported a shortage of equipment and in many cases the shortage is large. Based upon the conduct of the troops, on the evening of inspection, the discipline is reported as good. However, from the small attendance reported at weekly drills, and the disobedience of orders evidenced in the large number of absentees without leave, reported at this inspection, it is obvious that the general discipline of such organizations must be poor. Improvement is noted in military courtesy. The paper work of the guard appears to be well in hand and receiving proper consideration. All the troops, the hospital detachment and the headquarters of the First Cavalry were rated by Colonel John P. Wood as "passed." Most of the troops according to Colonel Wood, are without adequate accommodations for the proper care of public property, and have not sufficient room for drill purposes. There is also urgent need of provisions for more mounted drills in all of the troops.

German-Americans Oppose Plans For Prohibition

By Associated Press. San Francisco, Calif., Aug. 3.—Opposition to national prohibition was expected to take some tangible form today in the shape of a definite program at the second day's business session of the National German-American Alliance of the United States. Dr. C. J. Hexamer, of Philadelphia, president of the organization, said resolutions dealing with the subject of prohibition would occupy a prominent part of the convention, which is to conclude Saturday. The report of Secretary Adolph Timm, of Philadelphia, recommending that prohibition be opposed, was adopted yesterday and steps were taken by some of the 650 delegates to formulate a plan of action. It was indicated that the alliance was not opposed to prohibition in itself, but that the methods of gaining it were not likely to stamp out the drink habit. Education, it was contended, was a better means of modernizing the consumption of liquor.

P. O. RECEIPTS FOR YEAR HALF MILLION

Exceeds Last Year's Business by Thousands of Dollars, Report Shows

During the fiscal year ending, March 31, nearly a half million dollars' worth of business was transacted at the local post office. From present indications this year's business will exceed that mark by thousands of dollars. From all sources receipts reached $463,150.38, against $378,820.20 for the preceding year. Probably the largest single item was the money order business. Domestic ones amounted to $465,510.06 while those paid were $787,724.13. International money orders totaled $28,151.21, while those paid were $3,936.45. Nearly 500,000 money orders were issued. The sale of stamps, stamped envelopes and other postal supplies netted nearly $500,000. Second, third and fourth class matter brought in about $59,000. Box rents amounted to more than $5,000.

ing the year there were 716 deposits and 326 withdrawals, while open accounts, June 30 stood at 207. Postmaster Frank C. Sites has issued a warning to post office patrons to be careful. An unusually large number of persons recently have left their keys in the locks and failed to properly close it after getting their mail. Loss of mail has sometimes resulted. The postmaster has decided to continue his policy, inaugurated last year of placing parcel post booths at all nearby fairs, and exhibitions so that farmers may become more thoroughly acquainted with this branch of the postal service.

TO HAVE NEW SCHOOL FOR OFFICE TRAINING

W. H. KELLER

Harrisburg is to have a new Office Training School that gives promises of being a real live wire in the business world. This school will open in the new Kaufman Building, 4 South Market Square, August 30, with M. E. Keller, principal, and W. H. Keller, business manager. It now has a temporary office at 309 Patriot Building. The thought that is uppermost in the minds of those who are at the head of this school is to give such a practical business education to its pupils that they will at once reap a practical advantage in the world and be prepared to move to higher stations in life as rapidly as opportunity arrives. The fact that this school does not claim to be a university from which one may step directly to the head of some big business is in itself something to inspire confidence. Its claim is that it lays the groundwork of a thorough business education which supplies the young man or woman with energy and ambition, a foundation upon which he or she may build business success. Another confidence-inspiring feature of this new institution is the thoroughly demonstrated capability of its organizers. M. E. Keller, principal, was for four years principal and manager of the Waynesboro Business College, and in addition has had considerable experience in teaching special subjects in private schools. W. H. Keller, business manager, was for eight years business manager of a local business school, during which time the school more than doubled its attendance. His experience as teacher and business man for a quarter of a century is at the command of every student every day. These men have already trained hundreds of young people and placed them in good positions. They are in a position to do the same for hundreds of others. The course they have laid out includes Gregg shorthand, bookkeeping, touch typewriting, penmanship, office practice, business English, spelling, letter writing, punctuation, business law, business forms and business arithmetic. To complete it means not merely to study these things, but to have a thorough training in them. The work is so planned that each student may advance as fast as ability permits. No better location for such a school could be found in the city. The new Kaufman building is one of the most modern and best equipped buildings in the city, convenient to all car and railroad lines. The Office Training School is on the third floor, its various rooms being separated by glass partitions, which afford unusual advantage for daylight. Every desk in every room is light and cheerful and the furnishings are all new and of the best approved sanitary kind. The school has a private entrance at 4 South Market Square. Nothing has been left undone that can minister to the comfort and convenience of the students. The school has in preparation a booklet entitled "The Art of Getting Along in the World," full of valuable information, which will be sent without cost to any interested person writing for it.—Advertisement.

M. E. KELLER
