the owner, knows well what it is worth. What it will bring is entirely up to the bidders.

DESCRIPTION of PREMISES: 3-story frame; mansard roof; 8 rooms and bath; improvements; and cemented cellar; size of lot 13x73: 3-foot alley in rear. All in first class condition and for past two years has been a prompt renter at $20 per month. PROPERTY is FREE and CLEAR of all incumbrance; immediate possession.

TERMS and CONDITIONS of SALE: Property will be sold without reserve to the highest and best bidder. Buyer paying 10 per cent. when property is knocked down; 30 per cent. additional within 10 days; 60 per cent. can remain on two year mortgage at 6 per cent. Or, if buyer prefers, entire amount can be paid in full.

A WORD: The undersigned owner of the above property has for years been a believer in Auction Sales. Not for big prices but for quick results—as auction creates legitimate competition in buyers and compels them to ACT quick, thus proving QUICK SALES with small profit or even without a profit is frequently an advantage to the Seller. This sale will test out my theory and the exact conditions of a LAZY, MIDSUMMER HARRISBURG REAL ESTATE MARKET.

PLAINLY SPEAKING, this is not a hard luck sale, but a GOOD LUCK sale; not a DISASTER, but an EVENT; not a funeral, but a FEAST that should give me a lot of good advertising that means for me more REAL ESTATE BUSINESS. All you get out of it is—All there is to get. One thing certain; the property will not be withdrawn but will positively be sold to the highest and best bidder.

MR. GOOD CITIZEN—MR. SPECULATOR—MR. DOUBTER and PESSIMIST, we cordially invite you to be present the day of sale as I want you to be a witness to the fact that sale of property was in every detail just as represented, as I expect to sell other properties in this manner in the very near future.

Prospective buyers wishing easier terms than the above may make satisfactory arrangement by calling at this office before sale day.

I desire to consider Dostoievsky from one angle alone — the angle, if the dish rag. The angle of of the dish rag. The angle of of the dish rag. Dostoievsky shows us — to speak fantastically—the souls of dish rags. He lets us hear the lamentations of the lowest, the vilest, the most shameless. From the mud the drunkard speaks. The coward speaks from his black sulking-place. Thieves speak, and the murderer of old women; harlots speak, and men who live on harlots 'gain. And le, all those volces are beautiful. They are sad and beautiful. All those ruined souls are like you and me. Like you and me, they love virtue. Like you and me, they love virtue. Like you and me, they loathe vice. And they mourn, down there in the morass, they mourn their incredible fall as you and I would mourn if, by some incredible mischance, we ourselves fell.

Dostolevsky reveals the soul of the lowly and the degraded. That is his essence. That is the one thing which he alone can do. The souls of our great picturesque, grandiose sinners have been revealed to us, lamenting in their jewelled robes, their marble palaces, from time immemorial. But the soul of the drunkard kept in drink by his harlot daughter; the soul of the elderly coward pawnbroker whose girl-wife kills herself rather than endure his petty cruelties; it is Dostolevsky alone who reveals the terrible beauty of these. — W. B. Trites, in The North American Review.

1,800 PIES AN HOUR The fastest machine devised for making pies is operated by a foreman and six assistants, and will turn out 1,800 pies an hour. The machine is provided with eighteen revolving pie holders which move around an pie holders which move around an oblong table or platform; two crust rollers, one for the lower and the other for the upper crust; a set of four automatic moistening brushes; and a pie trimming wheel. The six operators of the machine place the crusts, fill the pies, and remove them from the table when th operation of moistening and trimming has been automatically completed. — The World's Work.
