READING TROTTER WINS IN FAST TIME

Al Lee Takes Big Purse in Only Split Heat Race at Lebanon Fair

Special to The Telegraph Lebanon, Pa., Aug. 20.—Al Lee, owned by Allan Cummings, of Reading, furnished the excitement in yesterday's Lebanon Fair races. The Reading horse won the 2.15 trot, five heats being necessary. The 2.15 class pace produced a field of six side wheelers. Sam Be Sure won in straight heats, taking a record of 2:11 1/4; Sally Patrick, June Bug and Mary Coastman were the contestants in turn. Horsemen generally thought Mary Coastman won the final heat, which was very close, but the judges decided Sam the winner. The free-for-all pace on the closing card to-morrow includes Pickles, 2:00 1/4, and Peter Stever, 2:02 1/4, among the entries. FUN AND BASEBALL IN GAME AT CHAMBERSBURG; JOYFUL DAY FOR INDIANS

By Wellington G. Jones.

Chambersburg fans had a highly entertaining exhibition of baseball yesterday. It was a mixture of Class A. and Blue Ridge League playing. Harrisburg outplayed the Chambersburg bunch and won, score 6 to 3. The story of the game will be recorded in Colonel John Pomeroy's book of baseball history as one of the big events of the season. Folks at Chambersburg looked upon Harrisburg as an attraction extraordinary, as was proved by the big crowd. An accurate count of noses brought a total of 1,246. There were three others at the game, but they did not count. They were sporting writers from Harrisburg. Chambersburg has an army of women fans and they were more in evidence with their rooting than the men. The game started at 5 o'clock for the benefit of the business and professional men of Chambersburg. It also permitted "Jimmy" Hamilton, city editor of the Franklin Repository, to go to press early and get his dinner before the game. All business in Chambersburg shot down at 4:30. Harrisburg went to Chambersburg in automobiles by way of Gettysburg. Tire troubles and rough roads tied up one of the cars between the battlefield and Chambersburg. There were six players in the car. Manager Eddie Zimmerman was about to sign "Bob" Magee, Frank Hortling and Frank Seiss so the game could start when the last boys turned up. The arrival of the Harrisburg team on the ball field located between Wolfe's lake and a large cornfield was the signal for an outburst of applause. Most of the applause came from the grandstand. Bleachers have to go careful with the applause at Chambersburg. They occupy circus seats. Jim Thorpe was the headliner in yesterday's show. When he stepped from his automobile and walked across the field there was prolonged cheering until he lifted his cap. Eddie Zimmerman came next and he, too, is also well known in Chambersburg. York sent a delegation to the game and they did not overlook their fellow townsman. After "Doc" Stover had delivered the bats and Bill Douglass handed Eddie Zimmerman three new baseballs with instructions to keep them clean, the ump, Ed Cleary, who has a brother working in the International League, got busy. He is an important man in the Blue Ridge League. "Batter-ee-ees—Harrisburg, Smith and Regan; home team—Strickler and Moore. Play ball!" The game was on. It was a battle that will be talked about for many days. Chambersburg has a good team. Why they hold a cellar position in the

BONEHEAD PLAYS IN BASEBALL GAME

Fan Sends List to New York Sun; Many Prove Rather Costly

Bonehead plays in baseball have been numerous. They have also proven rather costly. Pennants have been lost by foolish headwork. Official scorers as a rule do not keep records of the "bones" in baseball. Some fans do. Here is a collection from a fan printed in the New York Sun under the heading "Our Whole Skeleton". "To the Editor of the Sun—Sir: Following are some of the famous 'bones' pulled in baseball during the last fifteen years. "When Bill Devery accomplished the release of George Stallings as manager of the Yanks. "When Fred Merkle forgot to touch second and thereby robbed the Giants of a pennant. "When Frank Chance traded Hal Chase for Borton and Rollie Zieder. "When Chubby Charles Ebbs refused to pay Joe Tinker the salary demanded by the latter to play with Brooklyn, which resulted in the 'making' of the Federal League. "When Cincinnati traded Mathewson for Ames Rusie. "When Chief Bender refused to come to New York in 1914 to look the Boston Braves over to discover the 'batter's' weak points. Subsequently the Braves won their first title from the Athletics for the world's championship. "When Connie Mack and Organized Ball permitted Eddie Plank to join the Federal League. "When Anderson stole second with the bases full. "When Vincent Campbell and Whaling of the Braves jumped to the Federal League and lost their share of the world series money. "When the Feds reduced the price of admission to one dime. Mathewson Has His "When Mathewson grooved a ball for 'Home Run' Baker in the world series, which the latter knocked into the right field bleachers for a home run. "When the Athletic management refused to permit the Philadelphia newspapers to place the scores on their bulletin boards. "When Jack Chesbro of the Yankees pitched a game in the rain and permanently disabled his pitching arm. "When Cy Seymour ignored Mathewson's request to play 'deeps' for Joe Tinker and the latter knocked a three bagger over his head and won the deciding game for the National League pennant. "When Charlie Murphy deposed Johnny Evers as manager of the Cubs. "When Rollie Zieder permitted his famous union to interfere with his playing while in the Yankees. "When Ed Sweeney became a walking delegate for the Players' Fraternity. "When Jim Thorpe played professional ball in a minor league under an assumed name and disqualified himself as an amateur. "When Fred Clarke traded Hyatt Wilson, Robinson and Dolan to St. Louis for Ketchy, Mowry and Harmon. "When Walter Johnson returned that $20,000 check to the Chicago Federal. "When O'Mara, the Brooklyn shortstop, refused to run out a safe but, although three of his team mates tried to drag him down to first base. "When the Cleveland management replaced George Stovall with Harry Davis as manager of the Indians. Connie Mack Too "When Connie Mack refused to sell 'Home Run' Baker to the Yankees. "When Clarke Griffith refused to sign Eddie Collins for the Yankees. "When Weegrmaw of Chicago handed out free passes in his lunch rooms for admission to the Chiefs grounds. "When Appleton of Brooklyn threw the ball to Miller Huggins, manager of St. Louis, who was coaching at third base, and allowed two Cardinals to score, thus losing his game. "When Devore of the Giants permitted Evers of the Cubs to work the concealed ball trick on him, depriving the Giants of a run. "When Horace Bagel tried to make a first baseman out of Mathewson. "When McGraw tried to play Benny Kauff in the outfield, although the latter was ineligible according to the rules of Organized Baseball. "When Hal Chase tried to play shortstop for the Yankees. "When Howard Camnitz signed a contract with the Feds, containing a release clause, and then was released unconditionally. "When the Baltimore fans refused to support the best minor league team ever put together, turning their allegiance to the Feds, which produced a tallender, but killed International League ball. "FAN. "New York, August 18."

FLAG STATION BECOMES CITY

Seven or eight months ago Hopewell Va., was an obscure flag station on a branch line of the Norfolk and Western Railway some fifteen miles from Petersburg. It was a sleepy and practically unknown point out in a sleepy stretch of country where land could be purchased readily for $50 an acre. To-day it is a city of probably more than 1,000 people. The lots are being sold for as much as $3,000 and $4,000 each and in some cases rented for $200, or more, a month. The situation is explained in an interesting article in the August Popular Mechanics Magazine. "Hopewell is a raw, wild, excited boom town with factories running day and night with black after black of dwellings springing up as rapidly as a new street is marked off, with barracks, shacks and tents everywhere, and hundreds more in the course of erection. Like Goldfield and Gary in earlier days, it has dozens of saloons, fly-infested eatinghouses, and improvised stores where a gaudy outlay of goods is displayed in the streets in crude, hurriedly built shacks made of rough lumber. Its buildings are unscrupled, and sanitation is unknown. Garbage is thrown into the street, and sewage carried off in open ditches. Drinking water is drawn from shallow wells. Flies swarm in clouds. Yet, in spite of all this, the town— which doesn't even know its real name and is called by a half dozen different ones—is one of the most interesting in America. Its population six months or more, from now, is estimated, may range between 25,000 and 35,000. War orders from Great Britain and her allies so completely swamped a large American tin and tin plate factory facilities. The city of Hopewell, Va., is the result. Shortly before the first of this year the company's corporation quietly purchased 1,200 acres of farm land adjacent to the flag station. This was inclosed by a 10-foot barbed wire barricade. Several hundred men were imported and set to work throwing up brick and concrete factory buildings. On April 1 the place had a population of 500 persons. On June 1 about 13,000 employees were listed on the company's payrolls, and the inhabitants of Hopewell numbered approximately 18,000. Each day these numbers are increased. "Every minute of the day and night the factory site is patrolled by several hundred armed guards. No person other than an employe, unless he has a written permit issued at the main offices of the company in Delaware, is allowed within the barricade. The output of the plant is not publicly known. Two factories are engaged in the manufacture of gun cotton and a third is producing cordite."
