Thinking you heard the tread
And stir of one who goes Down old remembered paths—but now is dead?
—Hildegarde Hawthorne in Harper's Magazine for July. And yet, have you not sometimes turn

THE DESERTED MILL It stands alone and silent Beside the singing stream; And at the time of twilight The sunset's fading beam Rests on it like the shadow Of some forgotten dream.

Its wheels have long been quiet;
It braves the rain and snow;
And yet its heart is aching.
With emptiness and woe;
And I am sure it misses
The grain that used to flow. Beneath its sloping shelter, In June the lovers stand, And tell a sweet old story That lives in every land, (They think that it is sleeping And does not understand)

It stands alone and wistful
Beside the sighing stream;
And at the time of twilight
The sunset's dying beam
Rests on it like the promise
Of some forgotten dream.
Margaret E. Sangster, Jr., in Christian Herald.

QUINCE AND SWEET APPLE JAM Quince and sweet apple preserve is preferred by many to preserves made of quinces only. Use two-thirds quinces and one-third sweet apples. Pare, core, slice and weigh. To every pound of fruit allow three-fourths of a pound of sugar. Steam the fruit until tender.
Make a syrup of sugar and water and boil until thick, then add the fruit and simmer until it looks clear. If at that time there seems to be too much syrup, simmer until it looks clear. If at that time there seems to be too much syrup, lift out the fruit with a strainer into preserve jars or glasses, boil down the syrup and pour over the fruit.—Sep-tember Mother's Magazine.

Ex-President Says German-Amer-

By Associated Press

Plattsburg, N. Y., Aug. 26.-Colonel Theodore Roosevelt, speaking last night on the drill plain of the United States Military Instruction Camp on the shore of Lake Champlain, nounced in unmeasured terms the hyphenated American, the professional pacifist, the poltroon, the 'college sissy," and the man with "a mean soul," all of whom he let it be clearly understood he considered beyond the pale of real and true Americanism

It was a regular old-time Roosevelt speech, and the Colonel was at his best. The Kaiser, had he been present, would certainly not have been among those who so vociferously applicated what the ex-President had to among those who so vociferously appliauded what the ex-President had to say.

"The German-American..." declared the Colonel, "had defied the United States even to the verge of treason," he said, "in the belief that no one would dare offend the German-American vote; but if you gentlemen think as I do and war were declared, these gentlemen would fight or be shot, and they could choose whether they would be shot in front or in the back. "And you must remember that while people will sympathize with a weak man who is wrong they work; sympathize with the most powerful—not with us, the richest nation in the world, if we fall to prepare to defend our own. The surest way to invite disaster is to be rich, aggressive and unarmed."

"Probably no body of citizens in the United States during the last five years have wrought so efficiently for national decadence and international degradation as the professional pacificists, the peace-at-any-price men, who have tried to teach our people that silly all-inclusive arbitration treaties and the utterance of famous platitudes at peace congresses are substitutes for adequate military preparedness. Sneers at Professional Pacificists "As for the professional pacificists and the poltroons and colege sissies who organize peace-at-any-price societies, and the mere money-spenders, they should be made to understand that they have got to render whatever service the country demands."
