TWO ENGAGEMENTS ANNOUNCED Special to The Telegraph Duncannon, Pa., Aug. 27.—Mr. and Mrs. Charles Feller, of North High street, announce the engagement of their daughter, Elizabeth Ellen Feller to Curtis S. Books, son of Mr. and Mrs. William E. Books, of Altoona. The wedding will occur in early autumn.

At a pretty appointed luncheon at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Emanuel Jenkyn, on Wednesday afternoon, the engagement of their daughter, Edna Bertha Jenkyn, to Charles William Bothwell, was announced. Covers were laid for forty guests. The wedding will be an early autumn event.

10,000 OLD HOME WEEK GUESTS Special to The Telegraph Watsonstown, Pa., Aug. 27.—A half million dollars' worth of automobiles took part in a parade here last night as a portion of the Old Home Week Celebration. Dr. L. Housel was the chief marshal. There was also a parade of children and babies. There were 10,000 visitors in the town.

Special to The Telegraph Waynesboro, Pa., Aug. 27.—Yesterday was one of the biggest days at Pen Mar this season—in fact, it was the second largest of the big days at the park. It was the fortieth anniversary of the park and there was a gathering of about 10,000 people. There were many contests for the prizes offered for the best dancers, prettiest women, handsomest men, best-dressed lady and child and man; also a baby show, in which over a thousand babies were entered. Judges of the baby show were Walter T. Todd, of Waynesboro; Charles Allen and James E. Haul, of Baltimore.

The greased pig that was turned loose in the park was captured by Howard Aughinbaugh, of Rouzerville, after a spirited chase down the mountainside.

"Mayor of Old Factory" Given Ovation at Lancaster Special to The Telegraph Columbia, Pa., Aug. 27.—William Rote, better known as the "Mayor of Old Factory," a name given to the southeast section of Lancaster, was given an ovation by his grandchildren, to the number of twenty-four, who assembled at his home in that city and held a reunion. Mr. Rote's home on what is still known as the Old Factory road and he is one of the few individuals who enjoys the distinction of having succeeded in abolishing a holiday that for many years existed on that pike. He also was instrumental in having Duke street, in that city, extended to the city limits, and opened the way for extensive improvements which have since been made.

The grandchildren who assembled at his home and whom he entertained came from Philadelphia, Harrisburg, York and five or six from Rhode Island, the latter having made the trip in order to take part in the reunion.

BRIDE IN MOTOR INJURED Special to The Telegraph York, Pa., Aug. 27.—Three members of a wedding party, including the bride, came to grief yesterday while enjoying a ride in a gaily decorated automobile near Spring Grove. Their car struck a wire cable left hanging across the road by linemen who were doing repair work in that vicinity. The cable struck the bride, Mrs. Roman Shuman, in the face, severely lacerating and bruising it. Frances Allen, the best man, and Tersea Shuman, bridesmaid, also were cut about the face and neck. The bride, groom and the minister, the Rev. Camillus Killian, escaped injury.
