ROBERT SIMPSON

Many Residents of This City, Expires While on Trip

Robert Simpson, aged 55, chief editorial writer on the Pittsburgh Chron-icle Telegraph and one of the best known newspaper writers in Western Pernsylvania, died last night in the railroad station at Hamilton, Ontario, Canada. Mr. Simpson had been re-cuperating from illness in Ontario for three weeks. His condition was ap-parently improved yesterday and he started home. He became ill on the train, however, and alighted to seek relief at the home of his cousin in Hamilton.

Mr. Simpson, who was well known many Harrisburgers, was born March 6, 1860, in Toronto, Ontario, His father died when he was

March 6, 1860, in Toronto, Ontario, Canada. His father died when he was an infant. With his mother and sister he went to Oil City, Pa., in the early seventies. He served an apprenticeship in the composing room of the Oil City Derrick, but later took up the reportorial end of the profession and filled responsible positions with the Derrick and the Bilzzard, also of Oil City. He left the latter publication in July, 1856, and went to the Pittsburgh Dispatch.

Shortly afterward he joined the staff of the Commercial Gazette as political writer and legislative correspondent. He made a notable record during the several sessions of the Legislature in Harrisburg. In 1892 he was appointed managing editor of the Commercial Gazette. In this year also he married Mrs. Maude Nagle, of Meadwille. She died eight years ago. Mr. Simpson continued as managing editor of the Commercial Gazette until about 1901, when he became editorial writer on the Chronicle Telegraph.

Several years later he rejoined the staff of the Gazette Times as editorial writer and in 1908 was appointed Washington correspondent of the Gazette Times and remained in that position until he rejoined the staff of the Chronicle Telegraph as chief editorial writer.

Mr. Simpson was a member of the Pittsburgh Press Club, the Pittsburgh Athletic Association and the National Press Club, washington. D. C. While in the latter city he was held in such high esteem by his fellow-members of the newspaper fraternity that they elected him a member of the board of governors of the National Press Club after only one year's stay in the capital. Mr. Simpson was a warm friend of William H. Taft and was always welcomed at the White House when Mr. Taft was President.

Mechanicsburg, Pa., Aug. 31.—The largest crowd in the 42 years of the Grangers' picnic at Williams Grove, marked the opening night, despite rather unpleasant weather conditions. The ground is drying off and prospects are for a good week. Yesterday was general preparation day and people were occupied with erecting booths, tents and setting up machinery. Campers were busy preparing for the night and bed ticks filled with straw were everywhere in evidence. Stove pipe was so much in demand that the manager said people were not concerned as to whether their valuables were safe, but whether they could keep marauders from the precious pipe.

Wedding Arrangement Was Only a Judgment Note

The marital agreement that Mary Mravic and Mile Gladic, Steeltonians, signed some months ago wasn't an agreement to wed at all, Mile says he has since discovered; it was a judge exemption note. He got the tip when notice was served upon him that Mary had obtained judgment against his property. That fact developed to-day when Mile asked Judge Henry's permission to open the judgment and be allowed to make a defense. The petition was made returnable in ten days.

tition was made returnable in ten days.

A little matter of $800 is involved. Mary lived with Mile, it appears, as his housekeeper. Both were married and both took steps to obtain a divorce. They arranged an agreement through Spiridon Fursich and through an attorney, who, the petitioner says, was Recorder O. G. Wickersham, by which they would wed as soon as the divorces were obtained. As a marriage portion Mary was to give $800 to her prospective husband. This she did, it appears, whereupon he signed a paper which he thought was the marital agreement. Later he learned it was an exemption note. The pair have not yet married.
