

DAUPHIN COUNTY BAR MEMBERS HAVE THEIR PICTURES TAKEN

When you enter the average law office these days the chances are you will feel in some curious way, that you are particularly expected to gaze upon the walls and if you don't happen to analyze the feeling enough to look about you, it's ten to one that the lawyer himself will modestly refer you to the latest art decoration of his office; this is the newly photographed and framed series of pictures of the members of the Dauphin county bar. Roshon, the photographer, has just completed a handsome oval frame bearing the individual pictures of President Judge George Kunkel and Additional Law Judge S. J. M. McCarrell and the other members of the bar. And it's safe to say that there is a copy in every lawyer's office. So the Telegraph reproduces the picture and here are the lawyers whose faces appear on the accompanying etching:

BIDDLE TO ARM BIBLE CLASS
Heads Movement For Enlisting 80,000 in Defense Army
Special to The Telegraph
 Philadelphia, Sept. 1. — The first organized religious movement in the United States to provide a national defense organization will be launched in this city this week when the directors of the Drexel Biddle Bible classes will announce their plans for training their members along military lines.
 The idea, according to Anthony J. Drexel Biddle, father of the movement, is to form the military organization for peace purposes rather than for war and it will cover 80,000 members of the Bible classes in thirty States of the Union. Thousands of pledges have been sent among the churches.

WRECK AIRSHIP MAKER'S HOME
Special to The Telegraph
 Depew, N. Y., Sept. 1. — A dynamite bomb placed in front of the home of Maurice F. Coombs, head of an airplane company, whose plant, now in course of erection, will be used for the manufacture of aeroplanes for the allies, exploded yesterday. The explosion wrecked the wall and shattered windows in the vicinity.

REMEDIES FOR CHOKING
 This time of year the stock raiser is apt to be troubled with his cattle and horses becoming choked.
 There are three kinds of choke, viz: At the top of the throat, near the middle, and just above the opening into the stomach.
 The ox is really the most susceptible to choking, due to the fact that he swallows without chewing. This is apt to cause a blocking up or impaction of the oesophagus.
 The symptoms of choking are easily detected. The animal stands with muzzle projected, coughs, champs the jaws, throws head, sometimes bellows and becomes unmanageable. There is a profuse flow of saliva from the mouth, while feeding and chewing stops. However there are attempts at swallowing.

 In urgent cases eyes are projected and bloodshot.
 When choke is in the pharynx, or top of the throat, coughing is most marked and the stomach is much distended with gas. This is the most dangerous choke, as animal suffocates in a short time.
 The cervical choke, or that in the middle throat, can be detected in left jugular furrow.

 The horse as a rule becomes choked on shelled oats or tough forage, while the ox is choked on apples or foreign substances.
 If the choke cannot be removed with the hands, it will have to be forced down.
 Lubricate the throat with mucil- aginous drinks, raw eggs or powdered elm bark. If this fails to remove it, it would be advisable to call your local veterinarian and have him pass the stomach tube.—Dr. Years in Farm Life.

GRIT ALWAYS WINS
 Grit is the thing that counts. We all know young men who are hanging around, waiting for Father to slip out of his old shoes. As if a pair of old shoes ever made a man out of a loafer! Why, Father's shoes are ten sizes too big for any man that thinks money somebody else has earned will make him a gentleman!

 Grit is what these young chaps need, whether they know it or not. The day will come when the only man the world will count worthy of its respect will be the man who does things, even if he is forced to shut his teeth hard to keep back the groan of pain. Folks used to think that the only real soldier was the man who marched away to the sound of fife and drum, to shoot and kill and destroy. It is not so.—E. L. Vincent in Farm Life.

Simple Beauty Marks the Showing of Autumn Millinery.

At no former season has the voidness of elaborate trimming been so clearly pronounced—almost bordering on severity; and in not a few styles, only a touch of trimming will be found. And strange as it may seem, the plainer the style, the more striking the effect.

There's much to be said about assortments; for of different styles there's no end, and variations in each particular style are many.

A woman may rely upon her individual taste almost wholly in selecting from so many different shapes and sizes, of which we believe a more complete assemblage could not be found in Harrisburg.
